REGULAR PAINS

The modern Miss needs no "time out" for the time of month.

If you've ever taken Bayer Aspirin for a headache, you know how soon the pain subsides. It is just as effective in the relief of those pains peculiar to women!

Don't dedicate certain days of every month to suffering. It's old-fashioned. It's unnecessary. Aspirin will always enable you to carry-on in comfort. Take enough to assure you complete comfort. If it is genuine aspirin it cannot possibly hurt you. Bayer Aspirin does not depress the heart. It does nothing but stop the pain, so use it freely.

Headaches come at inconvenient times. So do colds. But a little Bayer Aspirin will always save the day. Neuralgia. Neuritis. Rheumatism. Pains that once kept people home are forgotten half an hour after taking a few of these remarkable tablets. So are the little nagging aches that bring fatigue and "nerves" by day or a sleepless night.

Genuine Bayer Aspirin tablets cost so very little after all, that it doesn't pay to experiment with imitations!

Digging Back Into History of Yucatan

But for Edward H. Thompson, for many years United States consul to Yucatan, much of the vastly interesting story of the early Mayan civilization would probably be lost to modern knowledge. We would not know that this great ancient city was in high development as late as 600 A. D. But for Mr. Thompson, thousands of relics that help establish evidence of that early civilization and give strength to meager knowledge would still be buried in the tangles of Yucatan jungle, with chance or eventual discovery growing more and more remote. Mr. Thompson labored more than a quarter of a century in this important work.

He translated dim tradition of the sacrificial use by the Mayas of the sacred well at Chi-chen Itza into supportable fact, when, after years of work and study, he recovered hundreds of gold, flint, jade and hardened copper relics buried under the silt and debris of uncounted centuries at the bottom of the well, guarded through time by the waters of the great basin. Bones of scores of maidens sacrificed as "brides of the Rain God" were brought to the surface and preserved to science. All of this work was done with a bulky hand dredge, supplemented in the later stages by diving operations of most dangerous character.

In the course of this work Mr. Thompson was led by a tradition recited by an aged tribesman to excavate one of the many buried temples in search of the "Stone Book." The tablet was found and revealed that the particular temple the tablet adorned was erected or dedicated in 600 A. D. This does not in any way indicate the date of the founding of this City of the Sacred Well. But it at least gives limit to the time when the civilization of the Mayas began to decline.

And this City of the Sacred Well offers a deeper glimpse into the past through the knowledge that it was constructed largely from an older city of that part of Yucatan, built and occupied and for some unknown reason abandoned long before the year 600. What the ruins of that earlier city may reveal when archeologists finally bring its secrets to the knowledge of man can only be problematical.

The ruins of scores of ancient cities in Yucatan and other Central American states still exist. These evidences were there centuries before the modern history of Yucatan began with the expedition of Francisco Hernandez de Cordova, Spanish adventurer from Cuba, who discovered the east coast in 1517. Ten years later Francisco de Montejo undertook the conquest of the peninsula, but by 1549 he had established Spanish rule over only half of the territory. This adventurer found evidence of high aboriginal civilization, which already had entered decline. Deserted cities were falling into ruins and others like Chi-chen Itza and Uxmal were still occupied by remnants of the former population.

Many of the relics found by Mr. Thompson are believed to be in possession of Peabody museum of Harvard university, as it was under approval of this institute and of the American Antiquarian society that the former consul carried on the work. In recent months it is said the task has been turned over to antiquarians of the Carnegie foundation for continuation.

Machine Aids Study of Sun

The Scripps institution of oceanography of the University of California is making a scientific study of sunlight, its effect on the human body, etc. For this study a new instrument, called the "thermoelectric pyranometer," has been developed. This pyranometer is more sensitive than any instruments ever used to record changes in the amount of sunshine reaching the earth. It registers changes in sunlight like the seismograph records tremblings in earthquakes. Changes in the amount of sunlight the earth gets, it has been pointed out, are due to causes within the sun itself and to shifting haze and clouds in the air.—Pathfinder Magazine.

WHAT a relief and satisfaction it is for mothers to know that there is always Castoria to depend on when babies get fretful and uncomfortable! Whether it's teething, colic or other little upset, Castoria always brings quick comfort; and, with relief from pain, restful sleep.

And when older, fast-growing children get out of sorts and out of condition, you have only to give a more liberal dose of this pure vegetable preparation to right the disturbed condition quickly.

Because Castoria is made expressly for children, it has just the needed mildness of action. Yet you can always depend on it to be effective. It is almost certain to clear up any minor ailment and cannot possibly do the youngest child the slightest harm. So it's the first thing to think of when a child has a coated tongue, is fretful and out of sorts. Be sure to get the genuine; with Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the package.

Natural "Bridge" Once Across Behring Straits?

The theory of a land connection in the North between America and Asia is not a new one. It grew out of the very palpable fact, that there is anthropological and lingual relationship between the inhabitants of the two continents. The Asiatic origin of some, if not all, our aborigines has long been a theory of students of native life in America, but theories as to how the Asiatics crossed the Pacific have differed and still do. Naturally, because Behring straits is narrow, crossing that water in dugouts or even on logs of wood has been the favorite method of accounting for the Asiatic invasion, yet some hold that through a series of years the trans-Pacific journey was made from island to island through the South sea. The weak point of these theories is the fact that their holders have not gone far enough back in years to admit of great topographical changes. They have taken geography as it now is and have had to assume a water journey as imperative. Their minds did not go deep enough into the geological past to envision such a land connection as an ancient redwood-forested bridge, or isthmus, connecting the continents.

Violin Resembles Human Ear

In an effort to improve the tone quality of the violin without detracting from resonance or volume, a German musician and inventor has made an instrument bearing a striking resemblance to a human ear, which produces sounds of great sweetness and purity. This violin, described in Popular Mechanics Magazine, has virtually been built on edge, the sounding surfaces, therefore, do not need to be curved to make room for the bow, and this, apparently, has increased the resonance of the instrument.

COUNTY WOOL GROWERS WILL POOL WOOL JUNE 11TH

All Hancock County wool producers wishing to pool their wool with the Iowa Wool Growers Asociation, which is part f the National Wool Grower's Association,' should plan t have their wool sacked and in Garner on June 11th.

The wool will be pooled over the Rock Island loading platform in Garner on the above mentioned date. May we urge that all possible wool be brought in at that time.

We tried to make connections with the M. & St. L. R. R. whereby we could load at Britt and also at Kanawha. but, this was not possible due to backtracking. We also tried to pool over the Milwaukee road but after getting price quotations from the Milwaukee, they suggested that we pool over the Rock Island because of the price of transportation. For this reason, the wool will be pooled in Garner June 11th over the Rock Island.

ANOTHER ORCHARD SPRAY IS NOW DUE

"It's time to spray fruit trees again," is the word sent out by the County Agent Walt Weiss to the fruit growers of the county. The tiny fruits just starting to form need protection from both insects and disease pests and the only safe way to protect them is to keep them covered with spray material during this time of the year.

County Agent Weiss says that this first cover spray should be applied to all apple, pear, plum and cherry trees 10 days to two weeks after the calyx or petal fall spray, the time depends upon the amount of rainfall during this period. With heavy rains. apply the spray a few days earlier. On the apple this spray is mainly to control scab and the first of the first brood codling moth worms that will soon be entering the fruit

Mr Weiss suggests using 5 quart of liquid lime sulphur, or 3 lbs. of the dry form plus 1 to 1½ lbs of lead arsenate to 50 gallons. He says that many growers prefer a weaker fungicide in this spray, namely 1½ lbs of dry lime sulphur plus 5 lbs of hydrated lime, plus the lead arsenate. This formula, he explains, causes less ruseting or burning of the fruit a compared with the stronger strength of lime sulphur.

Mr. Weiss also warns growers to watch their gooseberry and currant bushes for the currant worm. This worm may first be noticed making tiny holes on the leaves on the inside of the bushes. When first seen the bushes should be sprayed with the above mixture, or if a grower has just a few bushes, with three tablespoonsful of lead arsenate to one gallon of water.

Recent frosts in many sections of the state have caused considerable injury to fruits. Frosts seem to have done more damage in central Iowa than any other section of the state. Many blooms were killed. Yet much late bloom escaped which may be enough to make at least a partial fruit crop We will have to wait until after the June drop before we can tell how much fruit will develop to maturity. Under conditions such as experienced this season, many growers, thinking they have no fruit, stop spraying. This is usually a mistake. Fruit growers should spray if there is any posible chance of a crop.

FARMERS SHOULD KEEP DOWN TOP GROWTH OF WEEDS

Careful Cultivation Best Way of Controlling Thistles and Bindweed

Canada thistle, the most serious weed pest found in practically every county in Iowa as well as bindweed and sow thistle, can best be eradicated by keeping the top growth down during the summer and fall, according to R. H Porter, the plant pathologist in the Extension Service at Iowa State College.

Hancock county farmers who have these weed pests will be most successful if they will keep the weeds cut off from June 1st to the end of the summer. Keeping the weeds cut off will weaken the plant and in the case of bindweed prevent it from producing seed. If Canada thistle is kept from storing food during the summer or fall the roots are in a weakened condition and many will die out during the fall or early spring.

One year of careful cultivation is worth more than ten years of ordinary cultivation such as farmer usually practice when they work their farm three or four times with a shovel cultivator.

The following plan is suggested for Hancock county farmers to use on thistle or bindweed infested land The land should be put in corn or soybeans for two years and cultivated with a surface cultivator equipped with sweeps or blades that shave the top of the ground and keep down all top growth of weeds. After the corn is laid by, thistles may be cut off each week with a hoe or with a one-horse surface cultivator. Farmers have found that the yield of corn cared for in this way when thistles are present is enough to pay for the extra labor. If soybeans are being grown on the land cultivation can be continued late in the season with a two-horse cultivator. Another method which has been used successfully is to summer fallow the land uing a surface cultivator for two uccessive years after small grain or hay crops

After following one of the above methods a good smother crop, preferably alfalfa, should be then grown on the field. Alfalfa if seeded properly and given a good chance to grow can choke out these perennial weeds after they have been weakened by cultivation.

AROUND THE COUNTY WITH AGENT WEISS

AGENT ADVISES THAT CLOVER MUST BE KEPT DOWN

Gives Some Valuable Tips On Ways Of Summer Feeding

Farmers, may I urge that you watch that sweet clover pasture. If it gets over 24 inches high, borrow some cattle or put false shoes under the mower bar and clip to six or eight inches high. Remember, too, that you may have trouble with bloating of your cattle on sweet clover. This is mostly true when the cattle are taken off for the night and then turned out on the clover in the morning A good practice is to feed the cows or cattle a dry feed such as timothy hay, corn fodder or clover before turning them on the sweet clover. In short do not turn hungry cattle out on sweet clover pasture. Another thing, try to arrange it so that while on the pasture the cattle can have all the water they want when they want it instead of having to go all day without water. There is no absolute remedy known for prevent ing bloat but the above will help.

If you are going to seed alfalfa next spring, now is a good time to test that ground for acidity and, if limestone is needed, order some and apply on the corn ground that is to be used for alfalfa or sweet clover next spring. Do this before the corn gets too tall.

Farmers, mow the roadsides and fence rows before the earliest weeds have a chance to go to seed. The latter part of the month, cut quack grass and Canadian thistle before any seed is formed.

For those using Sodium Chlorato around the 15th or 20 th of this month is the time spray. Remember that the chlorate is inflamable but not dangerous to handle unless you are careless. Remember, too, that the best time to apply is early in the morning or in the evening just before the sun goes down. However it can be applied any time on a cloudy day Don't go out in midday with the sun shining its hottest and apply the sodium chlorate. If you do it will crystalize and your results will not be as effective as they should be. The strength of solution should be about 1½ lbs. of sodium cholorate to 1 gallon of water. See that every plant is throughly covered. Spray the second time after any new shoots get to be about 4 to 8 inches tall.

Now is the time to again spray your apple trees to rid your fruit of the coddling moth larva. This is what is called the first cover spray and should consist of 4½ to 5 qts. of liquid lime sulphur or 3 to 3½ pounds of dry lime sulphur and 1¼ pounds of lead arsenate to 50 gallons of solution. Only the fruit need to be sprayed unless leaf eating insects are present.

SOMETHING FOR THE FARMER TO CONSIDER

It is estimated that at present there are some 30,000.000 pounds of quality dairy butter in storage. Prices are lowest in 25 years This may seem a tremendous surplus, but, as the Dairymen's League Co-operative Association of New York points out, it could be entirely eliminated if each of the six million American farm families would use one extra pound of butter per week for a period of five weeks.

It is brough out, further, that the dairy farmer himself is not without blame. A survey of crossroads and village grocery stores disclosed that a large part of butter substitutes sold in this country are purchased and consumed by farm families, in spite of the fact that these substitutes are lacking n the protective vitamins found in genuine quality dairy products.

It looks as if the solution to the dairy phase of the farm problem is largely a matter for the farmer himself to solve through his own dinner table.

LICENSE REQUIRED TO DRIVE AFTER JANUARY FIRST

Law Requiring Iowa Auto Drivers To Have License Signed by Turner

Governor Dan Turner signed the bill recently passed by the Iowa assembly requiring a license for drivers of motor vehicles in Iowa. The law will become effective after January 1st. Auto owners who apply for a license within three month after the act takes effect may be issued a license without examination at the option of the state motor vehicle department, the examiners being required to file a written report of thir actions with the motor vehicle department.

Examinations for license may be made by sheriffs, chiefs of police, marshalls or other persons designated by the state department.

Owners of automobiles will get a break this time as they will not be charged a fee for a license, but all other drivers will be required to pay a fee of 25c except chauffeurs who will be nicked to the tune of $2:00

The law provides that the license of a driver may be revoked upon a court report that the holder has been convicted of manslaughter resulting from operation of a motor vehicle, failure to stop after an accident, felony in which a car is used or driving while under the influence of liquor.— Bancroft Register

CUCUMBER BEETLE REAL PEST

To Control Spotted and Striped Kinds Growers' Biggest Problem

The control of the striped and the spotted cucumber beetles is probably the most important factor in growing cucumbers, according to Dr. C. J. Drake, state entomologist at Iowa State College. The overwinter beetles of the striped variety appear in large numbers at this time of the year and often completly destroy the young plants before they get well started growing.

Later in the summer the beetles eat the flowers as well as the leaves and often eat thru the rind.

The spotted cucumber beetle is common in fields thruout the summer. The two kinds of beetles do similar damage.

A dusting mixture, composed of 20 parts of gypsum or landplaster and 1 part calcium arsenate, is recommended as a control for both insects. The dust may be applied with the hands or by means of a shaker. The first application should be made when the young seedlings are breaking thru the ground, preferably early in the morning when the dew is on or after heavy rainfall. From two to three application are necessary per week, with a total of eight or ten per season.

After the cucumbers begin to blossom and form, the poison must be omitted and only the pure dust used to avoid the danger of poisoning. Many growers along the Mississippi River use pearl dust instead of gypsum in the mixture.

COCCIDIOSIS MAY SOON APPEAR

Disease Which Ravages Poultry Flocks Annually About Due

Coccidiosis, a disease which takes a deadly toll in many poultry flocks each year, will soon be making its appearance, according to a warning given out by poultry specialists in the Extension Service at Iowa State College.

Sanitation is the key to the control of coccidiosis. The house must be given a thoro cleaning when each brood is put into it. Chicks should be kept in the brooder house for one or two weeks and then allowed to range outside on clean ground or on a screen porch. The house should be cleaned each week and in case of any apparent sickness among the chicks they should be kept in the brooder house until the trouble is over. During the period of close confinement, the house should be cleaned every day, the floor kept as dry as possible and the litter removed and burned immedaetly to prevent its spreading.

Fountains should be scalded each day with boiling water. Confinement of the chicks, burning the litter and sanitation will prevent the spreading of the coccidia eggs which are passed out of infected chicks and quickly infect other birds.

In the case of an outbreak of coccidosis, it is advisable to increase the milk content of the ration, supply an abundance of properly balanced raton and keep the feed and water clean. Bloody droppings indicate that coccidiosis has been present for several days and has had a chance to spread thruout the flock

AMERICAN LEGION AUXILIARY NOTES

By Mrs. P. W. Johnson

(Left Over From Last Week)

The Auxiliary and Legion were very well represented at the Memorial Sunday services in the M. E. Church. We were especially happy that Mr. Lewis could be with us on that day. Both organizations appreciate the courtesy shown them.

The publicity chairman failed to mention Evelyn Arnold's recitation which she gave very nicely at the County meeting. This was an oversight for which we are very sorry.

Next regular meeting will be on June 11. The Legion and Auxiliary are very nicely located in their new quarters over the Lewis Produce Station and we should use every opportunity to make use of them.

Refreshments will be served at the June meeting.

The work of the American Legion Auxiliary in cooperation with President Hoover's Emergency Committee for Employment has received a personal expression of thanks from the President. In a letter to Mrs. Robert Lincoln Hoyal, National President of the Auxiliary, President Hoover said:

"I appreciate very warmly what you and the members of the American Legion Auxiliary have done in cooperation with the President's Emergency committee for Employment. This work has been of the greatest social value besides its obvious humanitarian aspeots. I will be obliged if you will convey to your asociates my cordial thanks.

NATIONAL WINNER

At the national spelling contest in Washington, Iowa's champion speller, Dorothy Greenwald, of Muscatine, went down on the word 'counselor.' She spelled it with an 'e' in the last syllable—counseler. However, she was the seventh one of the contestant to go down and won $25 for holding seventeenth place. The press reports Dorothy as taking her defeat gracefully and her teacher, Miss Sulivan also accepted the result cheerfully. The $1000 prize was won by an Illinois boy 12 years of age, by the name of Ward Randall, of White Hall. He won the national prize by spelling the word "foulard" defined as material for women's dresses. The second prize of $500 went to a boy from Bellaire Ohio, Charles Michel, 14 years of age. After the contest they were all received by President Hoover at the White House.

He gave one more all-encompassing look and strode forward, glancing at the smiling face that confronted him, confidently awaiting his rapid advance. His hand came out of his pocket with lightning-like speed.

My diary notes the following:

Chaumont, Thursday, Oct. 4, 1917.—Gen. de Castlenau called Tuesday to discuss entry of First division in the line.

Witnessed attack maneuver of the division yesterday and conducted critique.

Ambassador Sharp came today with Mr. Joseph Reinach for a visit and had lunch with us. Have cabled appeal for officers fitted for general staff.

The French, always solicitous regarding the progress of our training, were anxious that our most advanced American unit take its place in a quiet sector, for the experience. The main reason they advanced for suggesting front-line training at this time, with which I fully agreed, was that it would give new encouragement to their armies and through them to the people. The First division itself was keen to take a more active part and was soon to have the opportunity.

This division had been billeted in the training area since July 15 and had begun to show the excellent effects of the system of training we had prescribed. At the maneuver which I attended the officers handled their units with considerable skill, particularly Capt F. H. Burr, who conducted an attack with his battalion of the Twenty-eighth regiment, and Maj. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., who did a similar problem with his battalion of the Twenty-sixth regiment.

Pleased With Efficiency.

At the division school the bayonet exercises, special target practice, firing with trench mortars, bomb-throwing and other trench training were well carried out. I returned much pleased with the evidences of efficiency in this organization, which was later to become famous among the armies on the western front.

My diary says:

Paris, Wednesday, Oct. 10, 1917.—Spent Sunday at Gondirecourt, First division field meet, with General Harbord, General Ragueneau and Representative Medill McCormick. We lunched with Bullard.

Yesterday evening the officers at G. H. Q. called to extend congratulations on confirmation of my appointment as general. All heads of permanent staff departments appointed to grade of brigadier general.

A group of major generals are over on tour of inspection.

The staff department heads who became brigadier generals at that time were: James G. Harbord, chief of staff; Benjamin Alvord, adjutant general; Harry L. Rogers, quartermaster general; W. A. Bethel, judge-advocate general; Edgar Russell, chief of signal corps; G. O. Williams, chief of ordnance, and A. E. Bradley, chief surgeon.

Officers Visit Battlefields.

In accordance with my recommendation, division commanders from the states were being sent over to visit the battlefields, armies and schools in order to become acquainted with conditions and to experience the atmosphere of war. It was important that they should appreciate the realities and become fully impressed with the urgency of thorough preparation of their commands. It was thought they would become impressed with the aggressive spirit that characterized our training in France by coming into close touch with our methods.

These officers were sent to visit the allied fronts and to see demonstrations at our own training fields and schools and were also taken along the line of communications. I took occasion to give them personally my conception of the course of training that should be followed at home, making an especial point of rigid discipline, rifle practice and the instruction of junior officers in open warfare.

A number of the officers sent over were either physically unfit or had reached the age when new ideas fail to make much of an impression, and consequently I recommended that those of both classes be left at home for other duty or to be retired.

CHAPTER XVII

Marshal Joseph Joffre, upon my invitation, arrived at Chaumont October 15, 1917, to see our First division.

The French military officials were anxious to show their respect and it was arranged to have both an American and a French guard of honor drawn up to salute him upon his arrival at my residence. These two small guards vied with each other and both seemed to get a great thrill out of the ceremony.

After an interesting evening with the marshal and his staff as our guests we left the next morning by motor car for Treveray, accompanied by Generals Ragueneau and Alvord, Colonels De Chambrun and McCoy and Captain Boyd.

The troops of the division were drawn up in line ready to receive us and presented a much better appearance than at the review by President Poincare. The men were especially keen to be inspected by a marshal of France and their pride was clearly evident by their perfect lines as they swung by in the march past. The marshal in turn was enthusiastic over their vigorous appearance and military bearing.

One incident occurred that was not on the program. On the way to the field for the ceremony a well-groomed mule that happened to be running loose pricked up his ears, looked us over and decided to trot along with us. One of my staff wagered that this wise animal knew what was going on and would be present to see the march past. Sure enough, when we reached our position this Missouri product had preceded us. Cautiously approaching, he displayed the greatest curiosity in the guest of honor.

Wartime Picture of Col. E. M. House.

As all efforts to drive him away seemed futile, he hovered near as an interested spectator of the proceedings, much to the amusement of the marshal.

Review Other Units.

I gave a luncheon at Neufchateau for the marshal's party and my own and the senior officers of the First division. After that we saw the training conducted by the First corps school and visited the American and French billets at the village of St. Blin, where the One Hundred and First regiment, Twenty-sixth division, and the French Sixty-ninth passed in review in excellent form. As we returned toward Chaumont other American and French units were drawn up by the roadside in honor of the marshal.

It was rather late when we started and darkness overtook us while passing on foot through the lines. The trumpets of each regiment sounded as we approached, and with the lights from our automobiles close behind illuminating the trees that bordered the highway and the faces that peered through the shadows to catch a glimpse of the marshal the scene suggested some legendary painting.

Finally we halted and the troops, including the French One Hundred and Fifty-first infantry, which had made a remarkable record at Verdun, marched past us. As the regiments came out of the darkness into the spotlight of our autos they made a picture never to be forgotten.

Denies False Cable Rumor.

Returning to Paris October 19, I learned that a dispatch from Berlin to the New York Times represented me as having said that the German lines were impregnable. The report might have been idle gossip, but it was more probably circulated to create the impression that our armies were starting on a forlorn hope. This report was so far from the truth that I cabled the secretary of war that it was absolutely false and without any foundation whatever.

In every reference to our future operations I had strongly maintained that it was not only possible to break the German lines but that it would be done. The very system of training that we were persistently following was based on the determination to force the Germans out of their trenches and beat them in the open. On no other theory could they have been defeated.

Yet without question there were not a few among our allies and probably some in our own army who thought the task impossible, supporting their view by citing the failures of the previous three years, especially that of the spring of 1917. It was none the less a surprise, however, when a report came directly to me that such views had actually been expressed in the presence of civilian visitors by officers of rank in our army.

I was indignant to learn of that kind of talk, and in commenting on it to the Americans who had heard such statements made I said that "The German lines can be broken, they must be broken, and they will be broken," and those present will recall that it was said with considerable emphasis.

Positive steps were taken at once to eradicate such notions, or at least prevent them from being openly stated, and I was determined to relieve immediately any officer, without regard to rank, who should express any such opinion.

First Division Moves In.

My general impression of the situation at this time was set forth in a cable to Washington October 21:

"During the last week the water-soaked ground in Flanders and on the western front generally has prevented further development of offensive movements. Summing up wastage of German army in this year's campaign, a single offensive, such as the Anglo-French in Flanders in progress since July 31, is insufficient materially to weaken Germany's man power. Next year must see two offensives, continuously maintained throughout summer, if decisive result is to be obtained. This can only be secured through aid of effective United States army on this side. . . . The troops on the western front have been re-enforced by one German division from the Russian front. . . ."

As the training of the First division had now progressed sufficiently it was put into line in the quiet sector northeast of Luneville, under the supervision of the French, for actual trench experience. The division was underofficered and short of horses, clothing and many other things, especially rolling kitchens, of which a few had only recently been received, and trucks, which were borrowed from the French.

Stressed Need of Winter Clothing.

My repeated cables, beginning in July, for winter clothing had received scant attention, and with the coming of colder weather the shortage became critical. The initial stock requested was disallowed, the monthly allotments were totally inadequate and the depots were practically empty.

The explanation that came from the quartermaster general's office, that our requests could not be granted on account of the needs at home, showed a total lack of appreciation of the necessity of properly clothing the fighting man actually at the front above all others. After another urgent appeal a partial supply was sent, but we had succeeded in obtaining a quantity of clothing from the British to tide us over.

CHAPTER XVIII

Upon the invitation of General Petain I went to the French front to be present at their second offensive since General Nivelle's failure in April, arriving by motor at the headquarters of General d'Esperey, commander of the group of armies of the north, on the evening of October 22, 1917.

The plans for the attack were explained to us, and from the extreme care taken in working out the details and from their accurate knowledge of the enemy's forces and his position, there seemed to be little doubt of success.

Soon after their victory near Verdun in August the French had begun to prepare for this offensive, in which they could not well afford to fail. The advance was made by eight divisions of the Sixth army on a front of only seven and a half miles extending along the Aisne, with the object of gaining a more advantageous position for the winter and also still further building up French morale.

General Pershing Inspecting Poilus.

General Maistre, the army commander, gave the operation his personal attention, prescribing an artillery preparation covering six days, during which the expenditure of ammunition was even greater than in the offensive of August 20. The long period of artillery fire was considered necessary, as the Germans were strongly fortified along the chalky bluffs of the Aisne, where numerous caverns afforded cover for large garrisons held near the front.

Lesson for May 31

JESUS IN GETHSEMANE

GOLDEN TEXT—Saying, Father, if thou be willing, remove this cup from me: nevertheless not my will, but thine, be done.

LESSON TEXT—Luke 22:39-54.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus in the Garden.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus in the Garden.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Obeying God at Any Cost.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Meaning of Gethsemane.

I. Jesus at the Mount of Olives (v. 39).

He went from the upper room under cover of the night to the Garden of Gethsemane, a favorite resort on the slope of the Mount of Olives, a short distance east of Jerusalem (Matt. 26:30). It is a place where the oil was crushed out of the olives. Gethsemane means "oil press." Olive oil was precious, being used both for food and lighting. The bruising and crushing of Christ in this Garden has yielded the largest blessings to the world.

II. His Companions (vv. 39, 40).

Peter, James and John, who had been with him on the Mount of Transfiguration, were permitted to go with him into the deep shadows of the Garden (Matt. 26:37). He took those who were best able to apprehend the meaning of the tragic hour to be his sympathizing companions. This was needed to prepare them as his witnesses. Knowing the peculiar trial through which they would soon pass when the Shepherd should be smitten, he needed to prepare them for it. They needed to taste the bitter cup of which he drank and of which they, too, later should drink.

III. Jesus Praying (vv. 41-44).

1. Withdrawal from the disciples (v. 41). Even these members of the inner circle could not now go with him. He tore himself away from them, for he must be alone in this darkest hour. He kneeled down and prayed.

2. What he said (v. 42). "If thou be willing, remove this cup from me." The cup did not mean primarily the physical sufferings of the cross, though they were exceeding great. He did not now desire to escape from the cross and thus to stop short of his redemptive work, for this was the supreme purpose of his coming into the world (Heb. 2:14). He was so completely identified with a sinning race that the judgment of a holy God which rightfully would have fallen upon it was about to strike him—the Father's face was actually turned from him. The cup, therefore, meant his death as the bearer of sin. He came to Gethsemane with the full knowledge of what it meant, and consciously brought his human will into accord with the divine will. He bowed in submission to the Father's will. So great was his agony that he sweat, as it were, great drops of blood. In this crucial hour an angel from heaven strengthened him. He won the victory in submission to his Father's will, and from henceforth went with unfaltering steps to the cross.

IV. The Disciples Sleeping (vv. 45, 46).

They had boasted of their fidelity (Matt. 26:35), but could not watch with him for an hour. He had issued a word of warning to them (Luke 22:34), but they were so benumbed with sorrow that they failed to keep awake. He gently reprimanded them and commanded that they should arise and pray lest they enter into temptation.

V. Jesus Betrayed (vv. 47, 48).

1. The betrayer (v. 47). It was Judas, one of the twelve. He had enjoyed the most intimate relations with the Lord: eating with him, listening to his teaching, witnessing his marvelous miracles, and enjoying his countenance. These privileges intensify the horror of the deed. He even guided the mob to arrest Jesus.

2. The sign of betrayal (v. 47). It was a kiss, the token of the most tender affection and friendship.

3. Jesus' tender words to him (v. 48). These words to the infamous disciple reveal the infinite tenderness of the Lord's heart. Many professing disciples today are proving their disloyalty to Jesus and even are betraying him. All who bear the name of Christ, and especially ministers and teachers, who deny the virgin birth, deity, and vicarious atonement of Jesus Christ, are following in the footsteps of Judas.

VI. Jesus Arrested (v. 54).

The multitude led by Judas invaded the sacred precincts of the Garden and arrested Jesus and brought him before the High Priest. Peter followed him afar off. Peter's downfall may be traced to his self-confidence.

Faith a Necessity

There is only one door into heaven; that door is faith. There is only one ship that sails for the skies; her name is Faith. There is only one weapon with which to contend with opposition; that weapon is faith.—Talmage.

There is no greater mistake than to suppose that Christians can impress the world by compromising with it.—Selected.

AFTER 40

bowel trouble

Constipation may very easily become chronic after forty. And any continued constipation at that time of life may bring attacks of piles and a host of other unpleasant disorders.

Watch your bowels at any age. Guard them with particular care after forty. Whenever they need any help, remember a doctor should know what is best for them.

"Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin" is a doctor's prescription for the bowels. Tested by 47 years' practice, it has been found thoroughly effective in relieving constipation and its ills for men, women and children of all ages. It has proven perfectly safe even for babies. Made from fresh laxative herbs, pure pepsin and other harmless ingredients, it cannot gripe; will not sicken you or weaken you; can be used without harm as often as your breath is bad, or when your tongue is coated; whenever a headachy, bilious, gassy condition warns of constipation.

English

There is a unique school close to the border where the children of naturalized Mexicans are taught English. These serious little chaps purvey a laugh a minute, but it would be fatal to laugh in their presence, for they are in deadly earnest.

Not long ago, to illustrate how words are coined, the instructor said: "Suppose we take the word earthling—an inhabitant of the earth. Now see what others you can think up."

And here are some of the answers:

"Starling—an inhabitant of the stars. Inkling—a demon of the ink. Dumpling—some one who lives in a dump."

THE TRUTH ABOUT TAXE

MANY people believe that all corporations and especially the public utilities are "tax dodgers".

This belief seems to be especially prevalent in Iowa because of statements made through the press and over the radio by designing politicians seeking public favor.

Few people stop to consider that this is political propaganda which has for its object the advancement of some individual or group of individuals and is framed so as to attract attention and win popular applause.

These articles and speeches do not disclose facts that substantiate the charge of "tax dodging". They consist of vague and subtle generalities calculated to convey the impression that the corporations pay no taxes, or if any are paid, that the amount is very much less than what is paid by individuals on property of equal value.

So far as this company is concerned, the public records show, that these statements are without foundation and that all of the property of this company in Iowa is assessed for taxation purposes and that taxes are paid on it. The records will also show that the values placed on this property for taxation purposes are as high and in many cases higher than the values placed on the property of other tax payers in the several taxing districts in which it operates, and that the taxes paid by it are also relatively higher than those paid on other classes of property.

So that you may know the facts, a series of advertisements will appear in this paper which we hope you will read and consider. If you desire to verify any statement made in these advertisements we refer you to your local taxing officials and the State Board of Assessment and Review.

[No. 1 of a series. The next will appear in this paper in two weeks.]

KLEMME AND GARNER PEOPLE MAY SHARE IN LARGE ESTATE

Mrs. Tom Nelson, Jr., her sister. Mrs Myron Haskin of Garner and a brother, Dan Webner, Jr. of near Klemme, may all hare in an 85 million dollar estate, according to news dispatches whic have appeared in several dailies the past week.

The estate involved and for which attorney's are seeking all heirs, is property in New York City of William Buchanan, cousin of James Buchanan, fifteenth president of the United States. The property involved was leased from Buchanan for a ninety nine year period and the lease ra nout in February. Meantime the property has doubled and doubled in value. News dispatches say that about 1,000 people will share in the estate. Divided equally thi would give each over a quarter million dollars.

Meantime these local people who may share in the estate are taking matters as thy come and patiently awaiting the outcome. It will no doubt take some time to settle such a large estate an dto ascertain all legal heirs and to legally establish claims, which may be a long, slow process.

"---AND DON'T GO NEAR THE WATER"

Ninety-nine persons died in Iowa in 1930 from accidental drowning according to the Iowa State Department of Health. This means that there were four deaths from this cause per 100,000 of the state population. While this mortality rate is less than the rates for measles, tuberculosis, cancer and suicide, yet it does not compare favorably with the rates for typhoid fever, scarlet, fever, dptheria or poliomye litis Accidental drowning was responsible for 5 per cent of all death caused by all accidents. In other words one out of every 20 accidental deaths resulted from accidental drowning. Seventy per cent of such accidents occurred during the months of June, July and August. Thirteen deaths from this cause have already occurred this year.

Accidents are not included among the ifectious and contagious disease yet a large part of them are PREVENTABLE. Among the precautions that should be taken to prevent accidental drowning may be listed the following:

1. Do not go in swimming until at least two hours after eating.
2. Do not try to break a recrd every time you go in swimming.
3. Do not venture to far from shore in deep water. Your strength may not permit you to return.
4. Go out of the water as soon as you feel chilly.
5. Do not dive unless you know the depth of the water and be sure that there are no rocks or stumps in the way.
6. Do not bathe in water known to be contaminated. Typhoid fever may result.
7. "---And don't go near the water" if you cannot swim.

KLEMME MAY GET REDUCTION IN ELECTRIC RATES SOON

At th meeting of the town council Monday evening, three men of the Central States Electric Co. were present to meet with the coun cil to give information on bringing gas lines into Klemme. Very little aition was taken on this matter by the Council until more information san be btained on the subject.

During the meeting the Council made arrangements with the Central States representatives to send their special electric rate man to Klemme. He is expected to meet with the Council within the next ten days. Such a meeting will no doobt lead to a reduction of rates for Klemme. Belmond and Kanawha were recently given a rduction in electric rates.

There is a general tendency among utility companies at this time to reduce rates. It would not make anyone feel badly if the telephone company would come down on their rates also. This might be something for the Council to work on.

BAND CONCERTS WILL BEGIN HERE NEXT WEEK

At their meeting Monday evening the Mayor and Councilmen made arrangements for holding band concerts in Klemme during the summer months. The concerts are scheduled to begin next Wednesday night and will be held on Wednesday nights during the summer months. The counsilmen hired Fred Arnold. Jr. to direct and take charge of the band. They stated that the concerts would be given in the Park. The band is financed by taxation and the Mayor and Councilmen have the power to dispose of funds for that purpse and have charge of the band, payig for a director and music, and making any arrangements as they see fit.

Klemme has a fine band this year and the rehearsals they have held thus far have shown marked improvement.

WATCH THE GYPSIES

There was a caravan of fourteen car loads of gypsies in town this noon. The tribe stopped only a few minutes while the "king" got road information as to how to get to Mason City. Meanwhile the women did their stuff and invaded the various stores, but were ousted out about as fast as they entered. Most of the gypies drove Cadilac sedans, and a few new Ford sedans.

Graettinger Times. Wednesday afternoon Oscar Hauge, manager of the Sinclair Oil station, reported the theft of $17 to Marshall Blom. A car of gypsies, several ladies and one man, stopped at the station for gas. While Mr. Hauge was filling the tank the ladies entered the office and later asked Mr. Hauge for a road map. When they left he discovered the money drawer had been tapped. He opend the bill fold he carried in his hip pocket and found the money had been extracted and the bill fold replaced. Marshall Blom trailed the gypsies to Estherville but could not locate them from there. The previous night several car loads of the wanderers camped at Estherville but scattered the following day. We understand that two other oil stations in north west Iowa were robbed in the same manner, one station reporting a $65 loss and the other a $35 loss.

LOCAL AUXILIARY PACKED TWO BIRTHDAY BOXES

The regular meeting of the Klemme unit will be Tuesday night June16, instead of June 11. This is to give everyone an opportunity to attend the joint county meeting on June 11 with the Kanawha Post as the hosts. As many as can should try to attend.

The local Auxiliary packed and sent two birthday boxes for the 10th district birthday party at Knoxville These parties are held each month and the Veterans whose birthdays occur in that month receive the boxes. However all are allowed as guests. The boxes contain candy. cigarettes, handkerchiefs, socks and gum In addition to this the local unit sent 12 doz. cookies for the same event.

We wish to thank Lloyd Lau for the use of his truck Memorial Day; the Glee Club and Miss Freie for their music; Floyd Klotzbach for the address he gave and the children who acted as flower bearers at the cemetery. The wreaths used to decorate the graves had been made by a committee of auxiliary members the Friday night before Memorial Day. They were made of pine boughs interspersed with memorial poppies. There are thirteen graves htat receive this tribute in the local cemetrey.

SPRAY IS EFFECTIVE

Costly on Large Areas; Sodium Chlorate or Ck-10-90 May beUsed

Although spraying with chemicals is one of the easiest ways of eradicating small patches of certain noxious weeds, it is not recommended for large areas because of the expense and the fact that it kills all vegetation growing theron as well as weeds, according to information received by county agent Weiss from R. H. Porter, extension pathologist at Iowa State College.

Cnsiderable interest is being expressed by farmers over the state in chemical sprays as a means of eradicating noxious weeds as a rdult of the weed eradication campaign that has been adopted as a major part of many county farm bureau programs

Sodium chlorate spray is effective on Canada thistle, European bindweed and quack grass. A new chemical spray officially named "Ck-10-90", made up of one part of creosote and nine parts kerosene or distillate, may be used on quack grass.

The cost of the creosote and kerosene spray is $5 00 to $8.00 for 100 gallons when the ingredients are purchased in large quantities but is more expensive when purchased as the average farmer has to buy it. It is applied at the rate of from 3 to 4 quarts per square rod and is not injuriuos to the soil and is non-poisonous. Three application of 150 gallons per acre each in May Julyo and September will destroy quack grass.

The cost of Sodium chlorate for spraying one acre of weed infested land one time ranges from $8 to $12. Both quack grass and Canada Thistle have been killed with two applications of the spray. From one to one and a half pounds of chlorate are dissolved in each gallon of water and 2½ to 5 quarts of spray are used on each square rod of the infested land. A compressed air sprayer or wheel barrow machine or any force spray pump may be used to apply the chemical, but it should be cleaned thoughly before it is used to spray fruit

Sodium chlorate is safe to handle in the metal container in which it comes, but after it is opened extreme care should be exercised not to get organic matter, chaff or dirt mixed with it. Clothes, wagons or any articles saturated with the solution may be set afire easily after the liquid has dried. For this reason the sodium chlorate should not be used in any form near buildings. Spray machinery should be well painted and clothes which have been saturated with the spray must be washed before they are worn.

The first application of the spray is made when the plants are in bud and the second spray when the new shoots are four to six inches high. Fall spraying is also effective provided the food reerve in the perenial plants has been reduced by cutting off the weeds. The best results from spraying are obtained when the soil moisture content is high.

UNIQUE BICYCLE

Wm. McDonald has constructed a unique bicycle in his shop here. The "buck bike", which it may be rightly termed, made its appearance on the street here for the first time Tuesday evening, when several riders took turns at demonstrating its peculiar action to bystanders on the street and incidentally getting the thrill of riding a bucking horse without the danger. The bicycle's axles have been placed off center and as it is being ridden the seat and handle bars ascend and descend in much the same manner as do the front and rear of the unruly animal which it imitates. GOODELL COUPLE MARRIED JUNE 2

MISS ESTHER HARBERTS IS JUNE BRIDE

Goodell Couple Married At Garner, Tuesday, June 2nd

Miss Esther Harberts and Mr. Elmer Anderson, both of near Goodell, were united in marriage at the Methodist parsonage at Garner, on Tuesday morning, June 2nd by the Rev. Marion. Sunderlin.

The bride, who is well known in Klemme, is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hio Harberts of Goodell. She was a graduate of the Goodell schools and later completed her education at Cedar Falls. For several years she taught in rural schools in this vicinity. and the past year taught in the Arnold School southeast of Klemme.

Mr. Anderson is a son of Mrs. Mary Anderson of Garner. For a number of years the Anderson family resided on their home farm south of Klemme. The Harberts and Anderson farms are near each other and this happy couple had become sweethearts a number of years ago. Mr. Anderson is a farmer and the couple expect to move onto a farm in the near future. At present they are living at Goodell as Mrs. Anderson is caring for her mother, who is ill.

The Times joins with the many friends of this fine couple in extending congratulations and best wishes for a long and happy wedded life.

MUNICIPAL TENNIS COURTS BEING BUILT IN KLEMME

From all appearances Klemme seems to be on a real boom. Klemme has free open air movies every Saturday night and band Concerts begin next Wednesday night and will be a regular feature. Klemme has a good kittenball team and several players play baseball out of town with another team. But the latest addition to keep the young people interested is a municipal tennis court which is now under construction. The courts will be located on the Koerner property where the old hotel once stood. The city council, with the help of others, cleaned up the lots and filled in the old basement. The ground is being leveld off with scrapers and a tractor and will soon be in shape. As we understand it, Mr. Koerner is asking no rent for the ground. The town is cleaning it up and what expense that will be need ed for nets, backstop, etc. will be raised among those who are iterest ed and who would like to play tennis. It is a fine improvement. A place will probably be provided for horse shoe pitching and perhaps another space can be arranged for croquet.

All those who are connected with this are to be commended for their fine public spiritness

A NEW MILESTONE FOR CIVILIZATION

Within the near future, 1,000,000 farms will be receiving electri service

The program includes the construction of 330,000 miles of rural electrification lines at a cost of $500,000,000, and a great expenditure for additional equipment and facilities. In addition, it is said that with a million farmers using power purchase of $1,000,000,000 worth of electric machinery and appliances will be necessary to make the investment in rural lines profit the farmer and the industry.

The farm electrification movemnt is comparable, in both scope and importance, to the electrification of industry a few decades ago. It means that the farmer will be definitely placed on the same basis as modern industries—he will be able to do more work at a lower cost, and in less time. Electricity will give him more leisure and comforts, all the main advantages of city life with the peculiarly rural advantages of uncongested space and healthier living conditions. Farm electrification marks a mile stone in the steody march of American civilization.

A RISKY EXPERIMENT

West Virginia is going to carry its own insurance on state building In other words the fire risk will be shifted from insurance companies to the taxpayers.

It is a risky process to pursue in guarding public property against fire loss. Any one of a number of state buildings, if burned, would cost the taxpoyers more than insurance premiums for a considerable period of time.

The sad part of it is that when states carry their own insurance, sufficient funds are not built up to cover emergencies and when a loss occurs there is no provision for repayment or rebuilding. It all must come out of the pockets of the tax payers, exactly as an uninsured private fire must come out of the pockets of the individual. Fire insurance at low rates is made possible by a great "spread" of risk.

West Virginia estimates that its fire loss for the next two year period on $20,000,000 worth of previously insured property, will be $2,192. Let us hope for the sake of the taxpayers that the unexpected does not happen.

WHY DODGE THE ISSUE

There can be no argument over th fact that prosperity of the railroads is essential to prosperity of the nation as a whole.

While there are other large and unnecessary methods of transporting passengers and freight, the rail roads are the backbone of the whole transportation structure.

Another fact that can not be argued is that income must be sufficient to pay wages, interest on stocks and bonds, taxes and upkeep.

Railroad revenues are not at the present time, and have not been for some time in the past, large enough to properly cover these expenses in spite of vigourous economy.

Therefore there seems to be one of several things left to do—increase freight and passenger traffic at present rates, or increase the tansportation rates, or reduce quality of service, or further cut operating expenses by reducing wages from the presidents and higher executive officers right on down the line, or combine a little of four alternatives.

Drastic action will be necessary if the roads remain solvent and continue to render our nation the best and most efficient railroad service the world has ever known.

Tyroleans Go In Fear of Whimsical Goddess

Perhaps the quaintest survival of Norse mythology is the dance performed in honor of the goddess Perchta, said to be the consort of Wodin and mother of the gods. In certain districts of Austria the goddess is still a vivid personality and held in veneration and great fear. She is believed to have a duplex nature which is manifested at certain times with showers of blessings and at other times with curses. At all times she is said to be surrounded by her followers or "spirits of the air" and neither she nor her followers are supposed to be seen except at certain times of the year. These dances are given just before Lent, at Easter and about St. John's day in the Pongau and Pinzgau districts of the Austrian Alps. It originated among the Tyrolese mountaineers with the intention of worshiping and at the same time placating her in her vindictive mood. Those who take part in it dress to represent her double nature, some are gracious and gentle and dress to represent the beautiful, and others are spiteful and vindictive and dress to represent the wild and malicious.

New York's Good Bargain

The land covered by Central park was not donated to the city of New York, but was purchased in 1856, the territory at that time being covered with shanties, bone-boiling establishments, piggeries and pools, and very undesirable and unsightly buildings. Three hundred dwellings were removed. The price averaged $7,500 an acre. The present site covers 843 acres which were purchased at a cost of approximately $6,348,950, only a fraction of the actual value of the land todsy.

Gambler's Reformation

The fate of gamblers or gamesters is an old theme. The redoubtable and productive John Timbs, in his "Century of Anecdote," tells of one great gambler who reformed and ever after detested cards. This reformation took place immediately after he had won in one evening a large fortune at cards, on which he lived virtually till he died; his name was Col. Thomas Panton, and he lived in the days of the Restoration.—London Mail.

Thoughtful

It was a very long play, and nearly midnight when the curtain was rung up on the fourth act, disclosing an actor sitting at a table. Somehow his appearance, instead of occasioning applause, created an undercurrent of sympathy. One of the members of the audience ventured to express the sentiments of the house. "I hope we're not keeping you up, sir," he suggested, kindly.—Tit-Bits.

Rare Woods

A list of rare woods would include amaranth, ebony, rosewood, sandalwood, snakewood, tulipwood, palisander, Australian blackwood, lignum vitae, pear, Indian laurel, Australian walnut, silky oak, Ceylon satinwood, prima vera, Spanish cedar, carreta, olive, orangewood, madrone burl and cocobolo.

Artistic Thoroughness

Sargent, the great American painter, took infinite pains over a portrait. As an illustration of the trouble he took over details is the fact that he once did 14 finished studies of a single hand, so as to find what position would be the best for the portrait.

Common Domestic Furs

The four outstanding domestic commercial furs are muskrat, opossum, skunk and raccoon. There are about 2,500 fur farms in the United States and Alaska, and about 1,500 in Canada. The majority of these are raising silver or blue foxes.

The fruit of liberal education is not learning, but the capacity and and desire to learn; not knowledge, but power.—C. W. Eliot.

Balsam Appreciated

So highly was the balsam shrub esteemed by the ancients that it was borne as a special trophy in ths triumphal procession at Rome which celebrated the conquest of Canaan.

Old Roman Year

The Roman year used to commence with March instead of January, which explains the names October, the "eighth month," and December, the "tenth month."

Odd Combination

In the first London directory, issued in 1677, is listed a strange combination of business. A certain Mr. Sam Mills is down as hatter and stock broker.

Woman's Great Service

No man ever lived a right life who had not been chastened by a woman's love, strengthened by her courage, and guided by her discretion.—Ruskin.

A NEW DISEASE

The U. S. public health service s now busily engaged ni investigat ng a new disease, and since it is id to be apt to develop in one sec ion as another people will do well o post themselves on it and be on heir guard. This new and strange nalady is called tick paralysis and t affects men, sheep, dogs and fox- s. It is caused by an animal tick nown to science as "dermacentor ndesoni." As explained by the ealth service the tick attaches itself to its victims, suck the blood and then dicharges venomous poison into them. The paralysis first affect the feet, then the hands and arms, the throat and tongue, and rapidly spreads until the heart is hit. It may cause death in from three to five days. But the queer malady may be stopped and recovery assured by simply removing the tick which is the source of the poison. The paralysis will then disappear in a few days. For that reason deaths are said to occur only in animals and smaller children.

Macaroni Chinese Dish

Macaroni appears to have been the invention of the Chinese. It was introduced into Europe by the Germans, from whom the Italians learned of it. By the Fourteenth century they were the only people enjoying it. The method of manufacturing it was held a great secret. Later, however, this secret leaked out to a cook in France, and it is recorded that Louis XIII was induced to order it in an inn in Tours. He was so favorably impressed that he had his own cook study the method of preparation.

English Ministries

The life of an English ministry is seven years unless interrupted. Frequently on a major proposal a member of the opposition will move a vote of "No confidence" or of censure. In the event of this motion being cravied, a general election will be held throughout the country, and the result will determine whether the present minister remains in power or whether the king will call some one from the opposition side to form a cabinet.

Oklahoma Oil

Several small oil fields existed in what was known as Indian territory, but it was not until the Bartlesville field was developed in 1903-4 and the building of the Prairie Oil and Gas company pipe line into that district—followed immediately by extension of the line to Chicago—that Oklahoma began to have a marked effect in oil production.

"Roaring Forties"

In modern slang the term "Roaring Forties" is used to designate Broadway and contiguous territory from Fortieth to Fiftieth streets. In the nautical sense it refers to the storm region of the North Atlantic between degrees 40 and 50, and is sometimes used with reference to the same zone in the South Atlantic.

Camels Find Refuge in Swampy Spanish Plain

Spain may pass through troublous times but there is one community in that country which is not likely to be disturbed whatever happens. This is the strange colony of wild camels which have made a home for themselves in the lower reaches of the Guadalquivir river. Many years ago an attempt was made to introduce camels for agricultural work in southern Spain. The plan was not a success, and those camels which did not die strayed off to fend for themselves. A few of them found a retreat in the vast alluvial plain through which the sluggish stream of the river winds its way to the Gulf of Cadiz.

One could hardly imagine a situation more unlike that to which a camel normally is accustomed. The land is largely water-logged and covered with a dense growth of reeds and rushes many feet in height. From the human point of view, the district is extremely unhealthy, although animal life flourishes.

At the least sign of danger the animals retreat to the swamps, where the ground is so soft that it is impossible for a man to follow. Of course, the broad feet of the camel, which help the creature to walk on loose sand, have also stood it in good stead in these marshes, where a horse or a cow certainly would never be able to travel safely.—Manchester (Eng.) Guardian.

Diggers Uncover Grave of Bronze-Age Chieftain

The 4,000-year-old grave of a Bronze age chieftain is among the many interesting relics discovered in the course of digging pits for brick works at Schleinbach, near Vienna. Twenty-one different caches, graves and living caves from the Second century, B. C., have been laid bare. The chieftain's grave has been reconstructed as it was first discovered and placed on exhibition in the Lower Austrian museum in Vienna. It contains two skeletons lying face upwards, stretched out close together, in contrast to the skeletons of ordinary tribesmen found in 11 other graves. These were placed in a crouching position, the legs being drawn up and bound in chains, weighted with stones, owing to the fear of the resurrection of the bodies. The second body in the grave was doubtless that of the chief's wife, believed to have been buried alive.

He Had His Reason

He is cook on a schooner. Very timidly we poked our head inside the door. He was chopping some meat for hash.

"Come in," he said in broad Hungarianese. We went in. His name is Charley.

"How long have you been a cook, Charley?"

"Fift' year."

We whistled with amazement.

"How old are you, Charley?"

"Sixty-eight."

Fifty years a cook. Apparently the height of ambitionlessness.

We left him to interview the captain.

"Charley, back there—why does he stick to cooking?"

Taciturnly the captain replied:

"Darn good reason—cook gets $80 a month, sailor get $60."—Philadelphia Record.

Penguins Prefer Ice

When eight penguins arrived recently in Europe to be transferred to a Continental zoo, they caused great trouble because they found the climate too warm. The penguin, whose home is in the Antarctic, loves cold weather, and officials tried to devise a means of keeping them cool. All plans failed until a big "ice box" was built for them, and a "house" of heavy planks, with a roof of heat-resisting tar paper, was erected in the box. Each day, 500 pounds of ice, cut in layers, was spread on the floor, and then the birds were quite happy. They slept on the ice—standing up, as is their way! Shrubs and greens surround the "house," and there was a lake where the birds could satisfy their natural love for water.

Study of Languages Old

It is a great error to think that schools for foreign languages are a modern innovation. In almost prehistoric times, some 4,000 years ago, such a school existed on the shores of the eastern Mediterranean, the cross-roads between Asia, Europe and Africa. As many as six languages considered modern by the students of the Fifteenth century B. C. were taught in the university of a town called Zapuna, which was unearthed by two French archeologists. Clay tablets, which served as school books to the philologists of ancient times, and one of the world's first dictionaries, were among the outstanding finds made.

American Postal History

Samuel Osgood was the first postmaster general, appointed by Washington in 1789, after the Constitution was adopted. The first postmaster general in America, however, was Andrew Hamilton, appointed in Colonial days, in 1691. He was succeeded by his son, John Hamilton. Following him, there were four postmasters general, then in 1753 the American colonies were divided into two postal districts, with a postmaster general for each. Benjamin Franklin served as one of these from 1753 to 1774. In July, 1775, the Continental congress made Franklin again postmaster general, and he served until the following year.

Sure They Were Eggs

Let there be light, especially in cupboards. A neighbor tells me he was feeling about among the paper bags in the dark bottom of the cupboard for an apple. One after another he grasped the bags and "dented" the contents with his thumb through the paper, knowing he could thus identify the apples. The first he guessed to be potatoes. The second he guessed to be onions. And the third, after denting, he knew to be eggs.—Detroit News.

Wind and Thermometer

The weather bureau says that the thermometer is not affected by the wind velocity after having once attained the temperature of the wind. The physical discomfort usually associated with high winds is due to the rapid removal of heat from the human body on account of the winds. As no heat is generated by a thermometer, its readings are therefore not affected by the wind velocity.

Firemen Clean Capitol

Washington firemen are called on each year to give the National Capitol its annual scrubbing, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. This is done by turning powerful streams of water on the structure from sidewalk to dome, washing off the year's accumulation of dirt and grime and leaving the building spick and span for the opening of congress.

Expensive Ointment

The sweet-smelling highly curative balsamic fluid, known in commerce as Balm of Gilead, is obtained from incisions in the bark of the Zakum tree, a drop at a time, and always has been expensive, because of the tedious and laborious business of procuring, refining and preparing it for application to sores and open wounds.

Highway Travel

Generally speaking, for transcontinental routes the Lincoln highway and the National Old Trails road have the most traffic. The latter probably has the greatest, as it is more or less of an all-the-year-round highway, and can be traveled almost any time of the year successfully.

MAYOR DEFIES SCHOOL HEADS ON CIRCUS DAY

Newburyport, Mass.— There's a circus coming to town today and Mayor Andrew J. (Bossy) Gillis has ordered the police to see that no youngsters go to school while the clowns and elephants are here.

The superintendent of schools, however, has ordered an all-day session and threatens prosecution of anyone who interferes.

While the bewildered children wondered what they were to do, and their parents were equally perplexed, Mayor Gillis and Superintendent Starr M. King were firm, one determined that the children would go to the circus, the other insisting they'd go to school.

Mayor Gillis, after an unsuccessful effort to persuade Superintendent King to order the schools closed for at least the afternoon session inserted a shore notice in a local newspaper announcing there would be no school Friday.

This notice he followed with orders to the chief of police to have men stationed at every school building with instructions to admit no-one but the janitors.

GOOD CULTIVATION WILL ERADICATE QUACK GRASS

May Be Done Between Two Small Grain Crops

Eradication of quack grass may be accomplished by intense cultivation, by spraying with sodium chlorate or by digging up the plant if the patch is small enough. The most practical of these methods for large areas is proper cultivation, according to R. H. Porter, Extension Plant Pathologist at Iowa State College.

The cultivating should be done, he explains preferably with a spring tooth harrow in July, August and September. This method works in well between two small grain crops such as oats and winter wheat Quack grass is shallow rooted and a spring tooth harrow is especially adaptable to this purpose. The cultivation done on a hot, dry day will be the mst effective.

The Extension Service and the College are not recommending very strongly the use of smother crops such as sudan or millet because they are annuals and are not effective because they do not have a chance to compete with perennials.

Working small grains or corn land in a dry spring prior to planting is effective in controlling quack grass Late fall plowing after a summer cultivating just before the land freezes aid greatly in killing out the grass because freezing is injurious to weakened root stocks.

WOMAN HAS A STRANGE ANTOMOBILE ACCIDENT

It is not often that a motorist, after killing his engine on a hill, losing control of his car and having it back down the hill, down an eight-foot grade, and through a five-strand barbed wire fence. escapes uninjjured. But Miss Hazel Mumby, of Waucoma, sister of Mrs E. H. Halweg, had such an experience one day last week and received no injuries and damaged the car but very little.

Miss Mumby was driving on the road between her home and Waucoma when she came to a turn in the road near the top of the hill As she approached the top of the hill she saw another car coming on the road. When she slowed down to avoid the other car the engine in her car stopped. She lost control of the car and it backed down the hill down an eight foot embankment, and through a barb wire fence. DEHULLED OATS MAKES GOOD PIG FEED

Corn Is Cheaper When Pig Weighs 60 or Mire Pounds

Does it pay to dehull oats for the pigs during the summer?

Many farmers do dehull oats for young pigs and it is a good practice because the pigs will eat dehulled oats before they will corn, according to C. C. Culbertson, in charge of the animal feeding experiments at Iowa State College. Dehulled oats are also somewhat higher than corn in protein content.

Pigs will gain just as fast on about the same feed consumption with dehulled oats as on corn. They will get along on a little less supplement when dehulled oats are fed.

Altho many farmers find it practicable to feed dehulled oats to young pigs, the feeding of this ration to pigs over 60 pounds is questionable because of the cost. If the farmer can get dehulled oats at practically the same cost as shelled corn, substituting oats is a good practice.

He advises farmers who want to feed dehulled oats to more mature pigs to limit the amount to about one pound per day and feed corn, if the dehulled oats costs more than shelled corn.

M. E. BIBLE SCHOOL PICNIC HELD AT EAGLE LAKE

Klemme-Liberty Sunday School Celebrated Close of School

The Vacation Bible School which has been held at the Methodist church in Klemme for the children of the Liberty and Klemme congregation came to a close with a picnic Friday, which was held at the Park at Eagle Lake. Although the day was not exactly ideal for a picnic, as a shower would come up every few minutes, never-the-less a large crowd went to Eagle Lake and a fine picnic dinner was enjoyed A shower or two did not dampen the spirits of those who gathered there and all enjoyed a good time. A couple of kittenball games were in full swing right after dinner. The younger children found great fun in rambling around the park and playing games.

Certificates Given At Sunday Evening Services

A special service was held at the Methodist Church Sunday evening at which time certificates were given out to the boys and girls who had satisfactorily completed the work of the Vacation Bible School Over one hundred certificates were given out. Rev. Whyte, the several teachers and the pupils gave a program in which the work was outlined. This proved very interesting to the large audience who attended the service.

Rev. and Mrs. Whyte were assisted in the Bible school work by Reva Elder, Elvira Stille, Mrs. P. W. Johnson, Fern Stille. Mabel Schaefer and Mrs. J. E. Stille.

The Bible school this year was perhaps the most successful ever, and a great deal of interest was shown both by pupils and parents.

NOSE FLIES ARE NOW BOTHERING HORSES

Old Tire or Strap May Be Used Ta Make Effective Pritector

One of the best protectors against the horse nose fly is a simple home made affair, believes Dr. C. J. Drake, state entomomogist at Iowa State College. He recommends making a protector from an old automobile tire or piece of leather. The protector made from these materials fits down over the chin of the horse and completely covers the lips where the fly lays its eggs and thus annoys the animal.

One of the advantages of the protector made from a tire or leather is that it does not interfere with beathing. The wire nose baskets which are so commonly used do interfere with breathing. Canvas or burlap placed over the nose, like wise are apt to interfere with the breathing

The really most effective way to combat nose flies is to eliminate them. This, however is a winter's job. Many communities are now cooperating in treating all horses in the winter for nose flies.

The nose fly is one of the members of the bot fly family and so spends part of its life cycle in the stomach of the horse. By having a veterinarian treat the horses in late December or January, the nose bots may be killed. If all the horses in a community are treated, the trouble from nose flies the following summer is greatly reduced.

4 FROM HANCOCK GRADUATE FROM IOWA STATE COLLEGE

More than 500 degrees including 11 doctor's and 70 master's and several diplomas for non-collegiate courses, were granted at Iowa State College's sixtieth commencement exercises at State Gymnasium at 10:30 today. President R. M. Hughes made a short commencement address.

Degrees are granted at the end of each quarter and each summer term so the June class represents only about two thirds of the yearly graduates from the college.

Those receiving degrees and diplomas this mornnig included the following four from this county:

Truman N. Nelson, Kanawha,, B. S., Farm Management; Edna I. Rust, Goodell, B. S., Home Economics; Lois E. Scace, Corwith, B. S., Home Economics; Kenneth C. Heddens, Garner, B. S., electrical engineering.

HOW'S COW 'FILLING STATION?'

Pasture Ought To Be Good Enogh To Fill Dairy Cow In One Hour

Neglecting dairy cows during the summer in favor of work on the growing crops which will provide feed for the cattle in the winter months needs to be guarded against says C. Y. Cannon, head of the Dairy Husbandry Department, Iowa State College

A cow on pasture should not have to graze more than an hour before she is full enough to lie down and chew her cud If the pasture is so short that the cattle have to eat longer than one hour to fill up, they are working at a disadvantage and should be fed a supplement.

4H CLUBS SHOW INCREASE IN ENROLLMENT

Combined Club Tour Will Be Held Wednesday, June 25th

More interest than ever has been shown by the various township 4-H Livestock Club groups in holding their regular monthly meetings. Eight townships have been organized and are holding regular meetings with a larger enrollment than last year.

Last Tuesday, June 9th, the Concord group under the able leadership of James Love, held their town ship tour visiting each club member's livestock. All present agreed that the quality of the stock was above that of last year.

The Grimes-Avery township club under the leadership of V. A. Cook certainly do things up right in a club way. V. A. Cook's enrollment is nearly double what he had last year, with the Beef club leading in enrollment, with hogs next, then sheep followed by colts.

This year the combined club tour will be held on Wednesday. June 24th, with Rex Beresford, Animal Husbandry man from the Extension Service, with us on that day. Other years the tour consisted of strictly a Baby Beef tour or a Dairy Heifer club tour. This year, the tour will include a few stops at Baby Beeves Dairy Heifers, Ton Litters, Market pigs, Sow and Litter, Ewe and Lamb and Colt club member's homes. All club members and parents and interested parties are urged to go on this tour.

With all the arrangements nearly complete for the 4-H show this coming August 24th, 25th and 26th each club member should be interested in knowing just what and how good some of his competitors in club work are going to be. Go on the tour, Wednesday, June 25th. Complete schedule of time and stops will appear in the next issue of the Times.

SMALL TOWN BELONGS TO THE FARMER

The small town belongs to the farmer. It exists mainly, if not entirely to serve him. It is the place he goes for a loaf of berad or a loan at the bank. It is there usuall. that he attends a lodge meeting or a chicken pie supper. If the farmer never wanted a loaf of bread or a chicken pie supper there would not be any town. There might be a filling station or a hot dog stand for the convenience of travelers, but it would not be a town. Time was, in the days of mud roads and plow horse travel that we were more or less bound to the small village nearby. Now we can take it or leave it. If we choose we can truck our grain and stock to a city, and we can go to the city for our food, clothes and entertainment. We hold the power of life and death over the the little local town. If we neglect it, it must surely starve to death for it has no means f self support A few small town have so died bu that most of them remain show that we still want them We may pretend to think lightly of that town but still we want a location for our churches, lodges and high schools. We still want a place close at hand where we can find a doctor druggist, a veterinarian, a ball of twine or a plowshare. The sort of merchants we find in our town are the sort we support with our patronage. If we make a policy of dealing only with the man who carries a goodly assortment of dependable articles he will stay in business and prosper and as he prospers he will naturally offer better assortments and better service So with the kind of lawyers, of doctors and dentists In a city farmers may not have much influence on the character of business and professional men but in the little town patronage is the confronting influence. The little town is more than a convenience for buying every-day supplies It is more than a first aid station in case of a broken leg or a broken binder. It is the community center where social life of the farm people finds its most natural and most potent expression. The casual contacts of people mingling with one another as they go about their errands are what bind a community with a character all its own. Quite apart from any formal organization the community spirit that centers in the farmer's town is the fundamental unit in agricultural life of our country. Our little town represents us as do our red barns and tall silos. It is our responsibility & our opportunity. We can select its business and professional people almost as we cull our flocks and herds, retaining those we want and eliminating those who do not measure up to our standards. We can influence its citizenship by choosing the doorways we enter and the counters over which we buy our goods. The little town is ours and it will be what we make it. -Times, Monticello. Minn.

FOR ALL THE PEOPLE

Persons of limited means are the greatest beneficiaries of life insurance.

A survey has produced the fact that more than 60 per cent of outstanding life insurance is upon the lives of persons earning less than $5,000 a year. Life insurance is not a rich man's luxury

An important change has taken place within the industry within the last generation. Then, insurance was offered only to those in good physical condition—the less fortunate were refused policies. But now, for a slight extra cost, those ailing in body can obtain protection for their dependents. Except ing those who are suffering from the most serious diseases and maladies, insurance goes to all who want it.

The influence of life insurance, with it more than $100,000,000,000 of coverage in force in this country, on the lives and futures of the people, is incalculable. It is a splendid investment, that never fails. It is a testimonial to an individual spirit of thrift and foresight.

There was also a large crowd present at the joint Sunday school picnic at Eagle Lake Friday. Every body had a good time in spite of a few showers.

FUNERAL SERVICES HELD FOR HAROLD JEROD TEBBEN

Services Held For Young Man At Corwith Last Friday Afternoon

Harold Jerod Tebben was born February 18, 1915, in Sac County, Iowa, and died at the home of his parents Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Tebben of Kanawha, Iowa, June 9, 1931 at the age of 16 years, 3 months and 21 days.

About a week before his death Harold was stricken with pneumonia which resulted in death. Although of a strong and rugged constitution, his strength gave way after much suffering and he succumbed to the affliction and death which is stronger than the strength of man.

Besides his faher and mother, Harold leaves five brothers: Tony and Jake of Ventura; Jurgen. Ezra and Gordon of Kanawha; and three sisters: Mrs. Anna Delger of Meservey; Mrs. Julia Veldhouse and Hannah of Kanawha; and other relatives and many friends for whom it is hard to part with the one who has died so early in life, in the prime of youth.

Previous to their residence on a farm near Kanawha, Mr. and Mrs. Tebben and family lived at Klemme, moving here in the spring of 1931.

Funeral services were held at the Baptist Church, Corwith, Iowa, at 2:00 p. m. Friday, June 12, conducted by Rev. Albert Rust of the Baptist Church, Corwith, assisted by Rev. Calvin Grosshuech of the Reformed Church, Klemme. Six young men from Klemme, friends of Harold, acted as pall bearers.

Declaration That Put Agent Out of Running

"One reason why salesmen are often a pest," declares one of them, "is because people try to turn them away with flimsy or evasive excuses, instead of flat refusals that carry conviction. People who are annoyed by salesmen should be more like Bliggins.

"Mr. Bliggins is carrying a creditable amount of life insurance, but still finds himself the victim of many solicitors. 'But,' says he, as he opens the front door and is very nearly carried away in the flood of language and gesticulation. 'I have all the life insurance I can carry.'

"The salesman draws a long face. 'My dear sir,' says he, 'suppose that you should—through some unfortunate accident—be cut off from this world tomorrow, that you should be hit by a motor or street car. What would your wife do? Could she maintain her present luxurious living standard? What would she do?'

"To which Mr. Bliggins responds nonchalantly, 'Oh, well! I don't know—but I don't care. You see, I never did like her!'"

Cactus Bridal Bouquet Held Good Luck Emblem

A cactus was carried by a bride instead of the more usual bouquet of orange blossoms at a Warsaw wedding recently. It was stated, in reply to inquiries, that the cactus brought good luck.

It will come as a surprise to most people to know that the cactus is "lucky"—so far it hasn't usually been credited with producing either good or bad fortune. Carried by a bride, indeed, it rather suggests a warning to the bridegroom, because the average cactus is fairly well provided with the means of self-defense.

The cactus is hardly likely, therefore, to win general favor as a bridal bouquet. The more usual orange blossom can, after all, produce reason for its claim to be a luck-bringer. According to authorities on folklore, it is appropriate at a wedding because the orange tree bears flowers and fruit at the same time. So the bride's orange blossom means that she will have a family and keep her good looks.—London Answers.

THE TRUTH ABOUT TAXES

THE "transmission lines" owned by this company, which include all lines and equipment used for transmitting current located outside of cities and towns, are assessed for taxation purposes by the State Board of Assessment and Review.

A report is furnished annually by this company to that Board showing the miles of line located in each taxing district. That Board fixes the value per mile for each class of line from the low voltage rural line to the high tension transmission line, and the value fixed by it is certified to the County Auditor of each county. The County Auditor assesses the miles of line in his county at the value fixed by the Board and taxes are assessed thereon at the same rate as is paid on other property in the taxing district.

Our transmission lines are in plain view, mostly on the public highway and cannot be hidden in safety deposit boxes, under the mattress or in the family stocking. If any lines are omitted, the County Auditor has authority to add such lines to the tax roll.

In 1930 this company reported and paid taxes on 790 miles of transmission lines located in 21 counties in Iowa. These lines were from 2,300 to 33,000 volts pressure and the value as fixed by the State Board of Assessment and Review averaged $1433 per mile. Taxes based upon this value were paid in these counties at the same rate as all other property in the respective taxing district of each county. In some counties, the tax on farm lines was as high as $25.20 per mile.

SPRAY AND CULTIVATE TO CONTROL WEED GROWTH

Cultivate Carefully, Apply The Chemicals in September

A combination of the cultivation and chemical treatment has been used with success by a number of farmers according to R. H. Porter Plant Pathologist in the Iowa Extension Service.

The corn is cultivated with a sur face cultivator until the crop is laid by and the weeds are then sprayed in September and again in November. By September the corn is sufficiently matured to prevent any injury from the chlorate solution and the soil is moist enough for more effective action of the chemicals. The advantage of the combination method is that no cultivation is advised during August and September when the farmer is busy with other work.

This method also has the advantage that if properly cultivated the weeds will be about the right size to be susceptible to the spray and will not be in a strong vigorous condition. The combination method is especially adaptable to Canada Thistle, perennial sow thistle, horse nettle, creeping Jennie and leafy spurge

KETP GOOD WATCH FOR THE CUT WORM INFESTATION

Shuld Use Poison Bait As Soon As Worms Are Discovered

Farmers, may I urge you to watch for damage that might be done by cutworms and Armyworms A few farmers in Hancock county have been compelled to replant as high as 30 acres of corn within the last week due to cutworm infestatioon. It is rather unusual that they work this late but this year seems to fall in the unusual class.

In some parts of southern Iowa as high as 640 acres of corn have been destryed by Armyworms for a few farmers. Then, too, the cutworms and Armyworms seem to be attacking alfalfa and clover fields After one farmer in southern Iowa had cut his alfalfa, the worms ate off all the leaves , The farmer could not even put what hay was left in his barn because of the abundant amount of cut and Army worms that were raked up with the hay.

For this reason, may I ask you to keep a close lookout and if an infestation is found you might save the crop by poisoning the cut and Army worms Control methods should be put into operation as soon as Armyworms and cutworms are discovered Infested areas must be treated with poison bait. An effective poison bait for Armyworms and cutworms consists of:

Wheat Bran	20 t 25 lbs
Paris Green (or sodium fluoride)	1 pound
Cheap molasses	2 qts.
Water	2 gals

Thoroly mix the dry poison and bran with a hoe in a tub or large box. Pour the molasses into the water and mix, then, moisten the poisoned bran (keep mixing with hoe) wth the sweetened water, using additional water if necessary until a moist crumbly but not sloppy mixture is obtained. If the mixture holds loosely together when pressed in the hand, it is properly prepared.

The poison should be broadcast by hand as thinly as possible over the gardens or fields where cutworms or armyworms occur. The mixture is not attractive after becoming dry, so it should be applied in the late afternoon or evening in order to be fresh when the caterpillars begin feeding soon after sundown.

The mash made according to the above formulae should cover three to 4 acres at a cst of about 30c or 40c peracre for the materials. Large areas may be treated with the aid of an endgate seeder but this method proves a little higher priced because it cannot be scattered so thinly and evenly as by hand.

IOWA STATE BRAND CREAMERIES BUY KLEMME BUTTER

This connection with them has proven to be a very god outlet for our butter and the Klemme Creamery expect to continue shipments to them.

MILKING THE MOTORIST

The poor motorist is becoming one of the tax collectors best sources of revenue. Last year he paid taxes exceeding $2,000,000 a day—and he will pay more this year. The gasoline tax, the registration tax, the personal property tax, the driver's license fee and similar levies are making a steadily larger hole in the driver's purse. Since 1921 total motor vehicle tax income has increased at the rate of 14 percent a year—and gas tax income at the rate of 79 percent a year. In spite of this, annual increases in motor vehicle have been less than 11 per cent and expenditures for highways have gone up but six per cent.

So far during 1931 ten legislatures have given the gas tax a boost skyward—and in one state a seven cent tax just escaped passing. The gasoline tax will approach $600,000 000 this year and the total motor vehicle tax will be close to $1,500, 000,000.

Eyesight of Birds

The biological survey says that eagles, hawks and vultures are so closely related that it is a very fine point to tell which has the keenest eyesight. The eyesight of the vulture is not quite as powerful as that of the eagle or hawk. The eagle will possibly ascend to a higher altitude than the hawk, and this is possibly the reason for believing that its eyesight is the sharper of the two. These two birds have more powerful eyesight than any animal.

Disappointed Revelers

During the siege of Mafeking, a private of a Highland regiment "souvenired" a cask of what he believed to be Scotland's national beverage. He propelled it laboriously to camp, and summoned his comrades for a "verra guid nicht." When he up-ended the cask for broaching, the camp fire revealed the words, "Grimble's Vinegar!" What was said may be left to imagination.—Montreal Family Herald.

Ice Formation

No definite statement can be made as to the degree of cold required to freeze ice of certain dimensions. Many surrounding factors must be taken into consideration. The formation of ice of considerable thickness requires continuous low temperature for a sufficient time. Sufficient ice for skating is rarely found unless the temperature goes to about 20 degrees Fahrenheit.

PATIENCE IS KEY TO DOG TRAINING

Use Tact and Kindness to Bring Out the Best of Animal's Ability.

A properly trained dog is a delight to himself and his master. He loves to do his master's bidding, and were every dog well-trained, there would be little complaint about dogs and their deeds, states the Chappel Kennel Foundation, Rockford, Illinois.

Probably 95 per cent of dogs have the ability for training and only require effort, patience and repetition to bring it out of them.

The early training of a dog is most important. A dog not trained or disciplined during the first twelve months of his life, will not be nearly as manageable and dependable when grown.

Only one person should be the dog's instructor during the entire course of training. After a dog is trained, he should go through the commands for anyone who gives them properly.

The first and biggest lesson you can teach him is obedience, founded upon full confidence in you as his master. All the rest will take care of themselves as a matter of course.

Causes of failure to secure obedience from a dog after weeks of training may be set down as two. The act has not been repeated often enough or it has been repeated too many times on the same day. Two or three commands a day are sufficient. But stop work only on a successful performance.

A dog does not know the difference in the meaning of words. After many trials and much work he can be taught to do so and so when a certain word is spoken. But the meaning of the word itself is beyond him. A word spoken in a kind way will make him glad and wag his tail; the same word spoken in a rough way will make him run in fear.

Another cause of poor control over a dog is failure to reward him. A dog likes to be praised and feel that he is appreciated. A kind word, a pat on the head will usually go about as far as anything else. A bit of such food as kibbled biscuit, given at the end of each successful act helps him to feel that he is appreciated.

Simple Facts of Dog Feeding Told

If the feeding of your dog presents itself as a weighty problem, take heart!

According to the Chappel Kennel Foundation, Rockford, Illinois, here is all that you need to know about his feeding:

1. Feed one heavy meal a day, preferably in the evening. Feed the light meal in the morning. Puppies require three to five meals a day, depending on their ages. Feed at the same hours each day.

2. Meat is the dog's natural diet. If you feed your dog a prepared, well-balanced meat food, with dog biscuits for variety's sake, he will need nothing else.

3. Don't feed table scraps, potatoes, boiled eggs or pork, and don't serve soupy foods. Beware of chicken and fish bones. Dogs care nothing for sweets until taught to like them.

4. Provide plenty of water.

5. Never allow violent exercise directly after feeding.

If a dog does not take readily to biscuits, which are essential to keeping his gums hard and teeth clean, it is suggested that kibbled or broken biscuits be gradually incorporated into his regular ration until he gets used to eating them.

U. S. BOY-DOG CONTEST

The sum of $250.00 in cash and fame by having their likenesses reproduced in oil on canvas is being offered by the Chappel Kennel Foundation, Rockford, Ill., in its contest to find America's typical boy and dog. The contest closes September 15th.

European Lotteries

The heaviest snowfalls in the United States occur in the central portions of the Sierra Nevada of California. It is impossible to state the exact locality having the heaviest snowfall, but accounts for a single season of above 700 inches have been reported from the station at Summit on the line of the Southern Pacific railroad, running between Sacramento, Calif., and Reno, Nev. The heaviest snowfall recorded there occurred in the winter of 1879-80 and was 783 inches.

Prison Costumes

Stripes were formerly characteristic of prison dress, partly because they were believed to contribute to the deterrent effect of prison and also to make it more difficult for a prisoner to escape. In most prisons, however, stripes have been done away with entirely or reserved for third-grade prisoners. Shaving the prisoner's hair is partly for sanitary reasons and also partly for identifying purposes.

He never re-read what he wrote and, throwing each page to the boy as he finished it, remarked as the last page was reached, "There's a story that will fill the space."

AROUND THE COUNTY WITH AGENT WEISS

105 4-H BOYS ATTENDED ANNUAL CLUB CAMP

Keep Close Watch For Any Migration of Army Worms

One hudred and five boys and leaders attended the Boys' 4-H Club camp which was held at Camp Roosevelt on Clear Lake Friday, Saturday and Sunday of the past week.

With Harry Linn of the Iowa Horse and Mule Breeders' Association; Ernest Wright of the Iowa Dairy cattle Association, Rex Bereford. J. S. Quist and Dr K W. Strouder, all of the Extension service at Ames, Iowa, on the program a real educational as well as recreational camp was had. Every boy, attending, enjoyed himself each minute of the camp and expressed his desire to attend a similar camp next year.

Farmers, may I again urge you to be on a close lookout for any outbreak of Armyworms on your farm I do not wish t scare any of you, but, other adjoining counties are experiencing this pest and unand will cause considerable damage. The Armyworms originate in the sloughs and peatlands and once they start migrating do so in a body climbing up and destroying each plant they come to.

If you notice an outbreak, you should plow a deep furrow around the field, then dig post holes in the furrw every eight or ten feet. By putting creosote in these holes, all worms falling into same are soon killed. I wnld advise you to visit your grain fields, pastures and hay land near your peat sloughs often because a whole field may be destroyed before you know it unless you d inspect your crps frequently.

OBITUARY OF MRS. J. L. ABELE

Margarett Filbert Abele was born in Kleinhyback, Germany, Jan. 25, 1845. She came to America as a young woman of 26 years, making her home in Clayton county. Here she was united in marriage to J. L. Abele on Sept. 27, 1874. Four year later the couple came to Hancock county and settled on a farm north west of Garner, where they lived until their retirement in 1913, at which time they moved to Garner.

In 1924 Mrs. Abele had the msfortune of falling and breaking her hip which caused her to be bed fast since that time. Most of these seven years have been spent in the home of her son, Lew Abele, in Liberty township.

During this time she has had several light strokes, which have added to her discomfort and suffering About Christmas time she suffered a rather severe stroke, which left her practically helpless. Duing the last few months other complications have also developed which caused her to grow constantly weak er The end finally came quietly and peacably at eleven o'clock on Friday night. Her age at the time of her going was 86 years, 5 month and 1 day.

She has been a member of the Methodist church practically all of her married life, and most of that time her membership has been in the Garner church. It may well be said of her that she fought a good fight, she finished her course, and she kept the faith.

To Mr. and Mr. Abele were born eight children, three of whom are deceased Therefore, besides her husband, she leaves to mourn her loss her two daughters, Mrs. Edna Zwald and Mrs John Griffen, three sons, Arthur, Albert and Lew. Also 22 grandchildren and one great grandchild and her many acquaintances and friends.

NORTH IOWA IS HAVING PLENTY OF HOT WEATHER

Notrh Iowa has been sweltering the past week, and each day seems to try to outdo the other in the way of high temperatures. The thermometer soars up to 100 degrees and even as high as 104 degrees in the shade. The nights have also been very warm, the thermometer dropping down to 75 degrees for a low mark. Thi vicinity has been without rain for over a week now and the weather man does not promise any great relief in the way of cool weather for a few days.

Corn seems to be prospering and is already far beyond the "Knee High" stage which it is supposed to reach by July 4th. Corn plowing will be finished this week.

LARGE CROWD ATTENDED REFORMED PICNIC

Several hundred people attended the Reformed Bible school program and picnic at th church lawn last Friday.

An interesting program given by the pupils of the Bible School occupied some time during the morning. The program was interspesed with songs by the large class. The Bible class this year was perhaps the largest and most outstanding of any held. The Bible School is growing each year and is a feature of church education that the young people of the congregation enjoy.

At the noon hour a picnic dinner was served cafeteria style. The dinner included everything in the way f food and ice cold lemonade could hardly be made fast enough.

During the noon hour the Sunday School orchestra furnished music. This was their first public appearance and they certainly did well.

The afternoon was spent in visiting playing games, and the "fish pond" attracted many.

The day was quite warm but never-the-less all enjoyed a fine time. In the evening the Young Peoples Class held their annual party at the church and all enjoyed a fine time.

KLEMME PEOPLE IN BAD AUTO WRECK

GIMER-SEDAN STRIKES REAR OF TRUCK

Crash Near Cedar Falls Sends 5 Klemme People to Hospital

Five Klemme people are in a Cedar Falls hospital as a result of an auto wreck Saturday night at about 10:00 o'clock, a few miles west of Cedar Falls on Highway No. 20 Harl Gimer who was driving his Ford Sedan crashed into the rear and side of a hog truck which was without lights parked on the paving. The driver of the truck was Mike Bowman, Eldora, Iowa, and he was accompanied by Geo. Snovel Hubbard, Iowa, owner of the hogs. The injured are:

Mike Bowman, truck driver; basal skull fracture; in serious condition.

E. J. Kraus, Klemme; fractured skull.

Mrs. E. J. Kraus; cuts, severe scalp lacerations and possible skull fracture.

Miss Lucille Kraus, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Karl Kraus; cut on head, fractured right arm, two fractures of right thigh, in serious condition.

Harl Gimer, driver of the car, many small cuts and bruises and chest injuries.

Arlene Kraus, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Kraus, minor cuts and bruises.

Geo. Snovel, Hubbard, Iowa bruises. nervous shock.

Although the condition of some of the patients was first considered alarming, later news states they are recovering as well as can be expect ed. Miss Lucille Kraus was injured most as she was on the side of the car where the greatest crash occurred.

The truck loaded with hogs was said to belong to Fred Mossman, of Eldora. and driven by Mike Bowman had come from the Snovel farm and was headed for Waterloo. A few miles frm Cedar Falls a fuse burned out stalling the truck and leaving it without lights.

The crash between the Gimer sedan and the truck, according to Harl Gimer, happened shortly after he had passed a car a half mile up the road. A car was approaching him from the east and all of a sudden he saw a large truck loom up ahead of him and he swerved his own car to avoid the crash but the Ford sedan struck the left rear end of the truck with such force that it pushed the truck several feet, demolishing the sedan and sev erely injuring the occupants who were crushed in the wreckage. The truck had stopped to repair a fuse and the driver was leaning under the hood fixing the fuse when the crash happened.

According to A. D. Gimer, who drove to Cedar Falls soon after, the tire marks on the paving indicated that the truck had not pulled off the road but was parked well on the paving. Other tire marks indicated the path the Gimer car had taken in trying to avoid a crash with the truck but could not swerve far enough over to miss the truck without hitting the approaching car. The Gimer car is a complete wreck as the body was practically stripped off and the engine shoved back. The truck was but slightly damaged. According to A. D. Gimer the truck carried 1930 license plates.

Latest reports indicate that the crash victims will recover, although some will have to remain in the hospital for some time.

WHEN HE STOPS HIS HOME PAPER

The editor of the Randolph Enterprise who penned the following was not writing merely of an experience limited to himself, but also to scores of other editors. It is so truthfully spoken that we reproduce it herewith in its entiety:

A gentleman got peeved at something he saw in this paper last week and came in and had his paper discontinued. He was nice about it though. He didn't refuse it at the postoffice which proves he had the courage to come in and tell us he didn't like the article

Every day we see things we don't like in papers and even in show windows. Now for instance yesterday we saw a pair of shoes in the window. We didn't like the looks of them and wouldn't wear a pair of them on a bet but we didn't go in and tell the merchant we wouldn't trade with him any more on account of those shoes. Later in the afternoon we passed the store and saw the merchant taking the shoes out to sell them to a man who thought they were the very stuff. He liked them so well that he shelled out enough filthy lucre so that he might hide his ungainly toes in them and walk out among the people on Sunday.

But getting back to the man who didn't like the article. On the same day he stopped his paper two other men came in and coughed up a couple of dollars each. They had read the same article and liked it so well they decided they wanted the paper for a year. We are a ssatisfied with the trade of one subscriber who didn't like the paper for two that dd a the man who traded the empty bucket for a turkey.

We're running this paper. We try to print all the news we can get and will continue to do so without asking anyone what to print and when to print it. We haven't intimated that we know everything and that our ideas are any better than yours. The only difference is we talk to approximately 3,500 people each week where you possibly talk to 50 and we don't get peeved at a farmer when we pass his place and see where he has peas planted whan he ought to have watermelons and w don't get peeved when we pass a show window and see something we wouldn't eat or wear. We always figure it pleases the farmer or the merchant and possibly every other person who passes.

The gentlman mentioned hasn't quit reading this paper, mind you. He'll drop around to the barber shop or some other place in town and read the paper from now on and probably cuss it, all of which worries us not a whit, as the more people read the paper the better off our advertisers are.

PACIFIST CLERGYMEN ENJOY LIFE ASSURED BY BRAVE AMERICAN BLOOD

General MacArthur says that the pronouncedment of pacifist clergymen "in effect proclaimed their willingness to see the nation perish than participate in its defense It is that attitude that the Supreme Court passed upon recenly in refusing citizenship to Dr. MacIntosh Shame, shame on any man born under the Stars and Stripes and enjoying the privlledges vouchsafed to him under the Constitution who refuses to defend them, his own fireside included, or raise his hand to protect what he ought to hold dearer than life itself!

What we have has been purchased at too great a price to be given freely to those who do not value it sufficiently to defend it. Should we be attacked, some must bear arms. When they do, and peace is restored, these same men, having avoided the dangers which others suffered, will continue in the enjoyment of what they were willing to sacrifice rather than defend. A manhood citizenship is a Christian citizenship and if these men care to hold what they have, let them get a new orientation from a new reading of the constitution.

Kermit Koerner, Milo Patet, Paul Sampson, Kenneth Kluckhohn and Cecil Bridges enjoyed a few days camping at the sand bar at Clear Lake the latter part of the week.

FIND MEAT IS BEST DIGESTED BY DOGS

CANINE ANATOMY MORE LIKE HUMAN'S THAN ANY OF FARM ANIMALS.

If you saw a man and his dog walking down the street, you would not be likely to confuse one with the other, but if you saw skeletons of the two mounted in a museum, with the man down on all fours in the position of the dog, you might have quite a time of it puzzling out which is which, declares the Chappel Kennel Foundation. Rockford, Illinois.

The striking similarity in the anatomy of man and dog is well shown in the accompanying illustration prepared by the Foundation. The dog's anatomical structure is more nearly like a human's than that of any of the farm animals. The statement holds true not only of the skeleton formation but also of the organization and operation of the internal organs. In fact, what we know today of the working of man's internal organs has been learned largely as the result of experimental work on dogs.

Proper feeding is the keynote of successful dog keeping. If man may be said to thrive best on a mixed diet of meat and vegetables, meat must form the base and bulk of any satisfactory food for dogs. Despite the beliefs held by many people, the dog is by nature a flesh-eating animal and his digestive system is ideally adapted to the handling of meat. No one has succeeded in preparing a perfectly balanced ration for humans, but it has been done for dogs with horse meat, cereals, powdered bone, cod liver oil and other natural foods, prepared in balanced proportions. Tests with hundreds of dogs have shown that a dog fed on it—plus possibly some dog biscuits in the morning—required nothing else save water. This is the ration fed the experimental dogs in the Northwestern university medical school and the famed movie dog, Rin-Tin-Tin, recently subjected to stringent physical examinations after eight years on this regime, was found to be in condition that belied his 13 years.

Of particular interest to the dog owner will be the following information from a report on the efficiency of various foods given dogs under various conditions by three members of the Mayo Clinic. Meat and rice were among the best-digested foods, and the investigators marveled at the thoroughness with which they were digested. On the other hand, practically none of the starch of a corn source was digested, as evidenced by the residue which appeared to be unchanged. Furthermore, it passed through the digestive tract slowly, requiring more than 24 hours. Also poorly digested were stewed tomatoes, baked bananas, stewed prunes, stewed corn and beets. A dog bolting his food is following a good rather than harmful instinct, since meat is best digested in the form of lumps. Anxiety and excitement during feeding influenced adversely the efficiency of digestion. Food when taken in one large amount was better utilized than when taken in several fractions at short intervals. Apparently each feeding stimulates persistaltic action and caused the food to pass too rapidly through the system.

Authors and the Bible

A list of authors whose work shows the influence of the Bible would be endless, but we cite a few examples: Coleridge said, "Intense study of the Bible will keep any man from being vulgar in point of style." Daniel Webster said, "If there be anything in my style or thought to be commended, the credit is due to my kind parents in instilling into my mind an early love of the Scriptures." A Scotch nurse taught Byron to love the Bible and his "Hebrew Melodies" are drawn wholly from the Scriptures. In Robert Burns' "The Cotter's Saturday Night" there are some 20 Biblical references.—Washington Star.

Favor Getting a Puppy to Buying a Mature Dog

Hints on Care and Training Given by Kennel Foundation.

Dog or puppy?

The choice of one or the other must be made by everyone who contemplates adding a canine pet to his household, states the Chappel Kennel Foundation, Rockford, Illinois. While some prefer a perfectly-trained grown dog, most people are inclined to agree with Albert Payson Terhune that a puppy is more desirable. For one thing, a puppy does not cost as much as a grown dog, and its future is entirely in your own hands.

Eating is the biggest thing in a puppy's life, and what and how he eats will either make or break him, according to the Foundation. "Little and often" is probably the best rule of successful puppy rearing. Feed four or five times a day from weaning time till four months of age and no more than four times a day at six months. Increase the ration as you decrease the number of feedings, but never serve more than just a trifle over what the puppy will eat up quickly. When the average puppy is at the end of twelve months ready to enter full doghood, he should be getting no more than two meals a day, and preferably one. If the puppy does not finish the meal provided for him, what remains must be removed in a few minutes and nothing else should be given until the next feeding hour.

By nature the dog is a meat-eating animal, but under today's domesticated conditions, fresh raw meat from the butcher's is much too concentrated a diet. Research workers who have given thought to this problem in recent years have been able to develop scientifically-balanced canned meat foods which have taken all the guess out of dog and puppy feeding. They contain all the elements necessary for proper growth and development. Both puppies and dogs especially relish those made from horse meat. A part of every puppy's ration should be some dry food which has been softened with milk or water. This may be only a teaspoonful at six weeks, but should be increased with the size and condition of the animal. As the puppy grows older and its teeth stronger, dog biscuits in kibbled or whole form may be substituted. The biscuits afford the exercise demanded by the puppy's jaw and serve to keep his teeth clean.

Teach your puppy to eat at a regular place and time. Having regular feeding times will be a big aid in housebreaking him. Make it a practice to take him out for a walk shortly after feeding.

Two Dates for New Year in Seventeenth Century

We ought to be thankful that the affair of the calendar was settled for us by our ancestors, for it must have been a very muddling business to live in the Seventeenth century, for instance, when the new year did not begin officially until the last week in March, while at the same time people counted December 31 as the last day of the old year. Long before the time of Pepys, for example, many people regarded January 1 as New Year's day, though the old year went on until March 24. Thus on December 31, 1660, Pepys notes in his diary: "At the end of the last and the beginning of this year. . . . I take myself now to be worth £300 (about $1,500) clear in money." But this did not alter the fact that January 1 was not 1661, but 1660. March 25 he reckons merely as "Lady day," though on that date he had to change the year.

It is really remarkable that nothing was done until 1752 to bring the end of the year by ordinary reckoning and the legal end of the year together—though, after all, it may not be so wonderful when we remember that we ourselves still begin the fiscal year as from Old Lady day, which is April 6 of our modern calendar. Yet there are compensations even in anomalies. The sufferings of the ordinary citizen about the turn of the year are serious enough without having a budget to add to them.—Manchester (England) Guardian.

Playing Cards

What European country first had playing cards is much debated, for all have made claims. Probably starting from Hindustan, they went east and west around the world. One authority gives precedence to the claim of Italy, with Spain a close contender. However, reference works offer a bewildering variety of assertion on these points. Eliezer Edwards' "Dictionary of Words, Facts and Phrases" ascribes their origin to Arabia, and asserts that they were brought to Europe during the Crusades.

THE TRUTH ABOUT TAXES

REAL ESTATE and personal property owned by this Company, which includes generating plants, gas plants, electric and gas distribution systems in cities and towns—in fact all of its property except the transmission lines covered in the last advertisement, is listed with the assessor in each of the local taxing districts where property is located, and is valued by the assessor at the same proportion of the actual value as all other property in the district. In 1931 the State Board of Assessment and Review recommended that the value of all property for assessment purposes should be fixed at 60% of the actual value. It is the duty of the local Board of Review (the council in cities and towns, or the Township Trustees in rural districts) to review the assessment of the property of this Company the same as all other assessments and this duty is not neglected, for every year adjustments in the value of its property in various districts are made by the local reviewing bodies. Property of this Company omitted from the tax roll may be added by the local taxing officials in the same manner as other omitted property. The amount of tax on this property is determined in the same manner and at the same rate, as the tax on all other property within the respective districts.

In 1930 this Company furnished to the State Board of Assessment and Review a detailed statement which showed that all of the property in Iowa was assessed and taxed.

In 1930 this Company paid taxes in twenty-three counties in Iowa, in most of which it was the second largest tax payer, the amount of taxes paid by it being exceeded only by the amount paid by the railroads.

In 1930 the taxes paid by this Company in Iowa were 5.64% of its total gross income for that year—in other words, out of every dollar of gross income it received, it paid out over 5½c for taxes. This was equal to 5.28 mills or over one half cent for each KWH of electricity it furnished its customers during that year.

The public utilities of Iowa pay a larger percent of their annual gross revenue for taxes than any other class of tax payers in the State, except the farm owners.

CULTIVATING CORN WITH A SINGLE SHOVEL

YOU wouldn't think of cultivating corn with a single shovel in this day and age. Then why clean your dairy equipment with a product which is just as far behind the times — one that makes dairy equipment only look clean? It's far more economical to use Dairymen's Wyandotte!

Why? Because Wyandotte Cleanser goes right down to shiny metal. It protects milk and cream from invisible dirt that would lower its quality. It does the job easier and saves a man and his wife from a lot of work. And it costs less per pound than any similar cleanser!

Try Wyandotte — on the pails and cans, the separator and the milking machine. See how easily it cleans and how sweet-smelling it leaves everything. Have your wife use it on the strainer cloths. Right away she'll get the idea that Wyandotte will relieve her of a lot of hard work in the house. And she'll be right! For Wyandotte quickly cleans greasy skillets and all the other things that need attention around a kitchen. And it saves a lot of soap on wash-day.

Wyandotte is all cleanser. It contains no soap — therefore makes no suds. It is entirely harmless and washes completely away.

Milk inspectors and boards of health recommend it. Received highest prize last four world fairs. Used by more creameries and dairies than any other cleanser. The J. B. Ford Company, Wyandotte, Michigan.

FOR HIS BENEFIT

In a little Vermont town they were giving an entertainment for the benefit of the fund to supply chewing gum to the Brazil Indians. A dramatic reader and acrobatic dancer, who was passing the summer thee was prevailed upon to take part. She recited that old favorite. "The village Blacksmith."

The selection was followed by tremendous cheering and the reader was about to respond to an encore, when a stalwart man came up the aisle and motioning for her to come to the edge of the platform, whispered in her ear: "I want you to do me a favor. Will you, lady."

'That depends on what it is," answered the young lady, sourly.

"Well," said the man, "I happen to be the 'village blacksmith' you've been talking about, and I jest want ed to ask you to put in a verse sayin' that I also fix automobiles."

ANOTHER OLD IDEA IS ABANDONED

Mason City Globe-Gazette: In early and experimental stages of advertising certain months of the year were poor in business. Mid-summer was one of those periods and "the summer slump" became a byword among merchants. It was accepted as a necessary and incurable evil. Instead of increasing their advertising to improve business, merchants virtually suspended advertising on the theory that business was not to be had.

Suddenly someone discovered that "the summer slump" was an hallucination. It was a distinct shock to the old-timers to learn that the reason they were not doing business in the summertime because they did no advertising. It did not speak wel for the vision of these pioneer bussnessmen that they were so long in learning this secret of advertising; that advertising. should. be. used most extensively at those periods of the year when business. needs artificial stimulant. The business of advertising is to make business.

With the aid of newspaper advertising many businesses have transformed the "summer slump" into the "summer boom." They have produced goods the public needs and wants during the warm months and have carried the news to the consumers through advertising.

Those who have something to sell — locally or nationally — will neither see nor feel this mythical summer slump if they do more and better advertising. There is more employment, therefore more money in circulation during June, July and August than during any other three months of the year. Why then should there be less business.

TETANUS

The approach of the Nation's Birthday, July 4th calls to mind the serious results of accidents which may be suffered from celebration of that day, says the Iowa State Department of Health. In some states the use of fireworks by the individual is forbidden. These states have noted a marked reduction in the number of deaths from tetanus (lockjaw) in the months of July and August. In 1929 there were 22 deaths from this cause in Iowa, of which 45% occurred in July and August. In 1930, 24 deaths from tetanus occrred of which 32% occurred in the same months. Some of these July and August deaths followed wounds received from firecrackers on July 4.

Deep and penetrating wounds such as those made by toy pistols, blank catridges, splinters and nails are those which are frequently followed by tetanus. Without proper care the surface of the wound heals thus shutting off the air from the deep portions. This causes favorable conditions for the growth of the tetanus germ which may have been introduced into the wound for this bacillus cannot grow in the presence of air. The growth of these germs produces a powerful toxin or poison which is responsible for the effects of the disease.

Prevention of tetanus can be achieved by (1(avoiding such wounds and (2) proper treatment of wounds if received. Toy pistols and blank catridges should be kept out of the hands of the very young. Never pick up a firecracker which fails to explode in a given time. Do not point firearms at any one, whether loaded or unloaded. It is the "didn't know it was loaded" one which often does the damage. When ever a deep woun dis sustained from any cause, be sure that it has the proper treatment. In most instances, tetanus anti-toxin will be indicated. In automobile accidents wounds received about stables pen etrating wounds from nails or splinters and all other wounds that allow or cause dirt to be carried beneath the surface of the skin should always be considered with special reference to the hazard of tetanus infection.

Cause of Man's Downfall

For many centuries it was supposed that the apple was the fruit which Eve, under the direction of the serpent, ate and gave to Adam to eat in the garden of Eden. This view is no longer held, many more tropical fruits being suggested as the probable fruit of the garden, among them the pomegranate.

Dog Holding Most Appeal for You Is One to Choose

What is the best breed of dogs? This is the question most frequently asked of the Chappel Kennel Foundation, Rockford, Illinois. Invariably the answer is this: That breed of dog is best which appeals to you the most. By all means, try and get a purebred animal, because the chances are that you will get added pleasure out of owning it.

In selecting a home dog, people usually look for a companion, a playmate for the little folks or a guard. Below are listed some of the general characteristics and temperaments of some of the more popular breeds of dogs as worked out by the Foundation for the guidance of those seeking impartial advice.

BOSTON TERRIER—Good practical dog. All-round favorite. Lively, stylish, smart and obedient. Short-coated.

Height of Human Agony in Waiting Return of Lost

In Brittany they are always awaiting the return of lost fishermen. Day after day the bereaved ones of their families wait, gazing out over the treacherous waters. Mothers, wives, sweethearts haunt the quays. For them, in the strange absence of their loved ones, all life is suspended. Bodies without hope or conscious life, almost without souls, they wait upon the piers. Of all the agonies that rack the human heart, such waiting is the cruelest. The uncertainty of hope deferred plunges the heart into a constancy of the bitterest grief. Better far to know the worst than to hope on and on, without even the poignant consolation of a knowledge of the dear one's fate. That persistent anxiety and dread paralyzes every healthful activity, destroys the savor of one's food, makes every night a sleepless one and exiles all joy and peace from human souls. The only refuge left such Breton fisherfolk in life is passionate and daily prayer to God for the return of the missing men who went out upon the sea, and who have not returned.—Le Matin (Paris).

Tracing the Word "Pie"

"The word pie was unknown to English speech until the year 1308, and we are told by the late eminent philologist, Sir James A. H. Murray, that it occurred in our literature first in Compotus of the Bolton priory in Lancashire in 1308, in which there is an entry concerning the use of fruit in pyis and pastellis for the bodyguard of the priory, Celerario prioris," writes Frank H. Vizetelly, dictionary editor. "The earliest work on cookery of which we have any record is dated 1390, and is in manuscript; the first book on English cookery was printed in 1496; but, ten years before Christopher Columbus discovered America, the Worshipful Company of Cooks was formed and chartered in the city of London in 1482."—Detroit News.

AROUND THE COUNTY WITH AGENT WEISS

AGENT TELLS HOW MIX A GOOD FLY SPRAY

Says Eggs Should Be Gathered Often In Hot Weather

Farmers may I again call your attention to the one day Grain Grad ing school for Buyers and Sellers of grain, which will be held n the Chicago, Milwaukee, St Paul & Pacific Ry. at Garner on Thursday, July 9 from 2 p. m. until 4:15 p. m.

This is not merely a series of of lectures. Each peron will be give samples of grain to grade and will receive personal help.

This is the seagon of the year when your cows are being troubled greatly by flies. For that reason, I am giving you the formula for a good fly spray for cattle. You can make it yourself by dissolving ½ lb of fishoil soap in soft water and bringing to the boiling point Stir this soap solution into 2 gallons of crude oil and mix thoroughly. For spraying mix one quart of the abov solution and one teaspoonful of "Blackleaf 40" with one gallon of water.

During the remainder of the summer, you should take particular care of your egg crop by gathering eggs at least twice or three times a day.

When gathering but once a day some eggs go an entire day and a night without being taken up. This way, they are subjected to the heat of the day and possibly to excessive heat caused by a setting hen that chooses to hatch out that egg. One day's time will go a long way toward spoiling the egg.

You are not doing justice to yourself or to your egg dealer when you do not furnish a clean wholesomeproduct and you can't do this unless you do gather your eggs often and store in a cool place until they can be delivered to town.

It so happens that while in a grocery store awhile ago. I heard the "chick, chick" of a small chicken and upon investigation, I found that a chicken was hatched out in the candling room of the grocery store.

There is absolutely no substitute for quality, and good, quality eggs cannot be delivered unless they are gathered often and stored in the coolest place you can find.

I believe that Ervin Rosendahl Liberty township has walked away with the grain cutting prize for Hancock county this year. On Thurs day July 2nd Ervin pulled into a 14 acre field of Kherson oats with his binder and by night only a few acres were remaining to be cut.

TWO MAIL THIEVES AT BANCROFT SENTENCED

Six months in the Webster county jail was imposed by Federal Judge G. C. Scott on Russel Buchanan and Fred Frances Jr., of Bancroft for stealing two small pouches at the great Western depot at Belmond, Iowa. April 25. They pleaded guilty in Fort Dodge.

Officers had no clue to the robbers who might have escaped had it not been for a pheasant which flew up from a clump of weeds in a gravel pit near Wesley. Mrs. John Hutchinson of that town saw the bird, went to look for the nest and discovered a mail pouch.

Officers concealed themselves near the pouch. At night the two men arrived at the pit in a car and were arrested when they went to pick up the sack.

IS IT HARD TO KEEP YOUR HENS LAYING?

Making Them Comfortable Is First Essential

Summer egg production may be maintained at a reaonably high level by keeping the hens comfortable during hot weather and providing a ration adequate for the birds, according to poultry specialists at Iowa State College, Ames.

As the weather becomes warmer appetites become less keen. Most o the windows should be removed of the house for greater circulation of air and to provide cmfrtable, shady quarters. The floors should be kept clean and well covered with litter.

If the quarters are reasonably cool and comfortable, the birds can be kept in until the egg production for a day is practically completed about 3 or 4 o'clock. Hens require only about a half hour each day, on an average, to secure sunlight and necessary green food after May. During a rainy period. the birds may be kept in confinement during the entire day because they are likely to work in the soil and pick up infectious diseases and parasites when the soil is damp.

Precautions should be taken to keep mites from the house with carbolineum or a strong creosote spray. Broody birds should be sold to improve the flock average production and save feed. Male birds should be sold or separated from the laying flock as soon as the breeding season is over.

WORMS ARE EATIN GTHISTLES

Are Devouring Leaves of Canada Thistles and Other Weeds

Some insects are real friends of the farmer. One such is the thistle butterfly a hairy caterpillar which is widespread thruout Iowa now and is devouring the leaves of Can ada thistles and other thistle plant according to reports coming to the entmologists at Iowa State college.

Many farmers have expressed concern over the abundance of the worms for fear they would later migrate to field crops and start feed ing. There is no record so far. however, of the caterpillars eating any other plants than thistles.

Still another friendly species of caterpillar has been reported feeding on weeds. This one is said to move from one weed patch to another and so far has not bothered field crops.

These friendly insects are more abundant this year because of the mild winter just as the harmful ones have become more numerous, entomolgists say.

HISTORY OF THE ELL FAMILY GIVEN IN STORY

Interesting Sketch Tells Of Bit Of Early History Here

A little over one hundred and ten years ago, on Jan. 23, 1821, there was born in the village of Elbach, Province Bavaria, Germany, a boy whose name we memorialize today.

Possessed of a desire for liberty, religious and otherwise. he, at the age of 16 landed on the shores of this country, settling with his parents in Union County, Ohio. Here is where Sebastian Ell grew to manhood and on October 12. 1841 took unto himself a wife in the person of Katherina Weidmann. who was born in Hesse Darmstad, Germany and settled near Marysville, Ohio. Here is where the following children were born:- John, Margaret, Barbara, Kate, Phillip, Mary.

In 1855 the family came west ward and made White Rock in Ogle Co. their home in Illinois. Here the following children were born:- Christina, Lucy and George.

During their stay in Illinois the civil war broke out. These were days dark and tryng—horses were stolen—cattle were poisoned.

Filled with a spirit of patriotism and love for the country of his choice, Sebastian Ell, like Abraham of old gave his first born son for the cause of righteousness and liberty. However the life of John Ell, like that of Issaac was spared. John like "Ben Battle was a soldier bold and used to wars alarms", served his country at three different time in the Civil War, the Indian Uprising of the West, and the Spanish American war.

Sebastian Ell was progressive as well as agressive. Upon entering a new country he would take with him all his sons and daughters and their families.

He was a pioneer spirit and 1870 the family again gathered up their belongings and came to the wide rolling praries of Iowa, landing on this place Sept. 23. This journey consumed a period of 21 days traveling on an average of about ten miles a day. They traveled in a company of about 5 wagons, 21 persons, 11 horses and 14 head of cattle over rolling praries following faint wagon trails, fording small streams and crossing by ferry the Mississippi during which time one of the horses went crazy, and almost took one wagon with its load into the river.

Much rain attended them on their journey, causing them to get stuck in the mud. necessitating them to unload their belongings and carry them to solid ground, again to reload and continue their journey.

Their cooking was done in the open in a kettle suspended from sticks driven in the ground.

Upon arriving at this place Sept. 23rd it snowed and the company felt very much like returning.

The first humans to welcome them to Iowa were the Indians, with whom Sebastian Ell, like Wm. Pen made peace at first acquaintance.

But the Ells were a hardy people and could not be discouraged by hardships and dangers. Winter stared them in the face and they set about to build the house and for six weeks continued to live in their wagons. They hauled their water 3 miles.

Wolves were numerous in those days and could be driven off only at the point of a shotgun.

Some of the menaces they had to contend with were the prarie fires in summer and the snow storms in the winter.

Their home was one of the first marks of civilization in this part of the country, and Sebastian Ell became the nestor of this township which bears his name.

It was in Iowa the majority of his family were married that Sebastian Ell was privileged to see his grandchildren and great grand children grow up and revere his name.

Their home was a place of refuge for the pioneer preachers and in their home the first Methodist services in the county were held; Rev. Wm. Koerner being the preacher.

For many years he donated a little property for the use of a M. E. parsonage on the site where Mr. Dave Ross's house now stand in old Concod.

No treat was quite so rare as to get under grandmother Ell's currant and gooseberry bushes and fill up on the good fruit.

No one could cook pork and sauer kraut quite so good as that cooked by grandmother Ell.

Sebastian Ell was of a pleasing disposition, buoyant of spirit and of strong constitution. His earthly career was brought to an end at almost four score years and five, July 16, 1905.

The family tree has developed and the members of this family tree are counted by the hundreds. And the influence of this tree is felt over a great scope of this country, in 9 states, either for better or for worse and I dare say it is for the better.

Among the branches of this tree there are found men and women of many vocations and pofessions in life, the tillers of the soil, those who like Jacob of old are successful stock men, merchants. men of business of various kinds, rail road men, instructors. editors journalists, mechanics, bankers, professors and ministers of the gospel.

May their number increase.

CORWITH MAN INJURED IN PLUNGE INTO TANK

Sherl May, 35, of Corwith is in a critical condition at Mercy hospital Fort Dodge, as the result of an accident suffered while seeking relief from the heat last Monday night.

Deciding to cool off a little, Mr. May plunged into a watering tank on a farm near Corwith. He struck the wooden plug which extends up from the bottom of the tank about a foot, the plug perforating his abdomen the length of the plug.

Several persons witnessed the accident and he was rushed to Mercy hospital immediately, where he underwent an emergency operation. The plug was found to have perforated his intestines. His condition was said to be critical with small chance of recovery. — Renwick Times

MILK POWDER GOOD HOG FEED

But Usually Too Expensive In Proportion To Tankage

Skimmilk and buttermilk are valuable nutrients in the swine feeding raton on any farm, but buttermilk in the dried form is a high priced supplement, according to E. L. Quaife, extension animal husbandry specialist at Iowa State College.

Skimmilk and buttermilk of similar quality are of about equal value for swine feeding, altho buttermilk is likely to vary in quality on account of dilution with water. Tests have shown that with pigs averaging 75 pounds at the start fed for 97 days, 100 pounds of milk save 10.86 pounds of corn and 7.29 pounds of mixed feed, Pigs fed the skimmilk gained slightly faster than those fed buttermilk.

Skimmed whey is worth about half as much as skimmilk or good buttermilk. When an abundance of skimmilk or buttermilk is available pigs may be given all they will drink Under these circumstances, the pig should also be given free access to grain because too much skim milk and too little grain will result in a "pot bellied" pig.

Tests by John M. Evvard, recently of the Iowa Agricultural Experiment station, show that 100 pound of buttermilk powder has a relative feedng value of 75 to 80 pounds of tankage on the basis of gain produced. Twelve pounds of buttermilk powder are equal in nutrients to 100 pounds of skim milk or good buttermilk. With dried buttermilk or skimmilk powder, however, containing loss than 40% protein and their price usually about twice that of 60% tankage. they are high priced supplements for hog production.

Why Mention of Thrift Grates on Auto Driver

Charlie when he had his other car developed a system that saved him a lot of pennies—perhaps as many as 100 in the months he labored with it. Charlie lives in a street off Main street, in Montello, where it is possible to coast the length of it because of the grade, and ride right into his garage. Faithfully he always turned off his ignition at the head of his street and saved gasoline the rest of the way.

Recently when fortune smiled on him, he traded for a new car. On his first trip home with it from the club at night he turned off the ignition and coasted down the hill. However, he forgot that the new motor was equipped with a gimmick which automatically locks the steering wheel when the ignition is shut off.

Just as Charlie was about to turn into his street the front wheels failed to answer his tug and he rammed a telephone pole with the right fender before he could bring the machine to a stop.

"It'll cost at least a sawbuck to straighten that out," he moaned, "and all to save a little gasoline."—Brockton Enterprise.

Significance in Name Clemens Made Immortal

Probably the best known nom de plume ever adopted by an American writer is that of Samuel Clemens, "Mark Twain." Usually it is regarded as just a proper name, chosen by the humorist from a book or some family record, as most such names are chosen. But the fact is that it wasn't a proper name at all until Clemens made it such, says the Golden Book Magazine, which tells the story:

"From the carefree days of his life on the Mississippi, Clemens passed to setting type on his brother's newspaper, to piloting a steamboat, and to wandering in the West. Shortly after, he began writing articles for a Nevada paper—clever, fun-poking skits. It was in 1863 that he first adopted the name of Mark Twain. 'I want to sign them Mark Twain,' he wrote. 'It is an old river term, a leadman's call, signifying two fathoms or 12 feet. It has a richness about it; it was always pleasant for a pilot to hear on a dark night; it meant safe water.'"

Women Geographers

The Society of Woman Geographers is a society, organized in 1925, by a group who felt that there should be some medium of contact between women distinguished in geographical work and its allied sciences—ethnology, archeology, botany, natural history, sociology, folklore, arts and crafts, etc. For active membership in this society only those women are eligible who have done distinctive work whereby they have added to the world's store of knowledge concerning the countries in which they have traveled. Corresponding members are those who fulfill the requirements for active membership, but who reside outside the United States of America and Canada. The associate membership admits widely traveled women who are interested in furthering all forms of geographical exploration and research.

Ancient Norwegian Town

Voss is situated about sixty miles from Bergen by rail and resembles very much the "Ostlandet," as the eastern part of Norway is called, being broader and having many pine woods. Voss is a very old village; how old is not quite certain. The inhabitants were christened in 1023, according to Snorre's Heimskringla, by Olav the Saint. The name occurs before that in the old sagas, and is once mentioned as a kingdom. There is a famous old stone church in the town proper and a Finne, a short distance from the railroad station, there stands the oldest wooden building in Norway, a so-called Finne-loft. The town itself is usually spoken of as Vangen, and the surrounding uplands as Voss, although the latter name is generally used for either.

Choosing His Own Name

At one time it was the custom in the Shetland islands for a man to select his own surname, and the last man to do this was Gideon Manson. The custom followed was for a son to twist his father's Christian name and make that his surname, a fact which explains why Gideon Manson's grandfather was called Magnus Robertson and his father James Manson (Magnus' son).

According to custom, Gideon should have called himself Gideon Jamieson (i. e., the son of James), but he chose to be known by his father's surname. This ancient custom led to considerable confusion and was finally prohibited by parliamentary enactment.

Farthest From Land

The farthest distance a ship can sail from land is 1200 miles. This may seem strange, for the Atlantic ocean is more than 4000 miles wide, and the Pacific even wider than that. But there are islands in these oceans, and never can a ship be more than 1200 miles from some point of land. The spot of greatest distance from land, is in the Pacific ocean, half-way between New Zealand and South America.

THE TYPICAL AMERICAN

"Eight men," said the captain, were once wrecked on a desert island. A year later a ship picked them up. The skipper of the ship noted in his log that:

"The two Irishmen had fought each other twice a day durnig the whole year.

"The two Scotchmen had founded a Caledonian society.

"The two Englishmen had not spoken because they had never been introduced.

"The two Americans had opened a real estate agency in a palm leaf hut with a Kiwanis club, a boosters league and a hooch making plant in the cellar.

OATS CUT EARLY

Some oats was cut unusually early this year. Over in Cerro Gordo county we saw a field all shocked up Friday. Evidently it had been cut and shocked a day or two earlier.

In our own community we learn that Paul Goll and Ervin Rosedahl were probably the first ones to cut grain around here. They cut and shocked their oats last week.

"Dog Days" a Strain on Dogs

Suggestions for Care of Canines in Hot Weather Are Made by Foundation.

"Dog days" need be no more dangerous for Buster, Prince or Sport than any other days, states the Chappel Kennel Foundation, Rockford, Illinois, in discussing the care of the dog in hot weather.

The dog faces summer weather under two handicaps unknown to man. He has his natural coat, and perspires from limited areas of his body, the tongue, nose and the pads of the feet. Aged dogs feel the effects of heat much more than young dogs, and sick dogs more than dogs in good condition. But much of the distress of dogs may be eliminated if their owners would give a little extra thought and attention to quarters, exercise and diet. Some of the best practices designed to reduce the strain on dogs in warm days and prevent overheating, prostration and other summer ailments have been summed up by Dr. Edwin Reginald Blamey.

The outdoor kennel should be sheltered from the midday sun as much as possible. A better way is to keep the dog quiet and in a cool place during the heat of the day. A tiled floor or cellar floor is excellent. The room should be darkened, and care taken to see that an abundance of air is provided. Quarters for sleeping should have large windows, and the bedding reduced to a minimum. The ideal dog bed for summer is a raised frame covered with canvas. This enables the air to circulate freely beneath the body, and the animal is much cooler than if he were sleeping on a solid bed.

Both dog and kennel should be washed occasionally. Use of a small amount of disinfectant will tend to keep away flies and other insect pests which cause so much trouble during the summer.

Exercise should be cut down to a minimum or entirely stopped. If the dog is to be walked or run, it should be done in the cool of the early morning or evening. If the dog is broken to go on the street, it should be taken out only long enough to attend to its needs.

Food during the summer should be of the same well-balanced nature as fed during the cooler months, but in somewhat smaller quantities. A dog's natural food is meat, whether it be the tiniest toy dog or the largest hound. Meat and protein are not "heating" to the blood, and a substantial portion of a prepared meat food in the evening and some biscuits in the morning will keep the dog well satisfied. Occasionally weevil will get into biscuits made of the finest ingredients. They are not harmful to the dog, but may be killed by putting the biscuits into the oven for a few minutes or immersing them in boiling water. The addition of fresh vegetables occasionally helps to maintain physical condition but starch in any form is to be avoided. Encourage the dog to drink plenty of water by adding a little salt to each meal. Attention to diet will help to do away with periodic eczema and other summer skin complaints.

In many so-called cases of overheating, worms may really be the cause of the trouble. These should be removed by an appropriate medicine under the guidance of a veterinarian. Contrary to popular belief, rabies actually is more prevalent in winter than in summer.

Ernie Was Fast Worker, but Speed Didn't Count

Ernie was one of a group of friends on their way back from the Cape after a day in the water when a tire on one of the cars, went flat. After desperate tooting, the leading car was halted and the party in that machine, returning to volunteer aid, found that Ernie had made good progress in pulling off the damaged shoe.

With a deftness that surprised the party in view of the heat, Ernie soon had the ground covered with shoes, rim tools, nuts and what not. In a surprising time everything was fixed.

"Just let her down off that jack," he ordered one of the more immaculate in the party who was itching with an apparent urge to help. The jack was removed and the tire flattened in the road.

"What a swell job you did!" the gang echoed as Ernie looked around in disgust.

It was quickly found that Ernie had pulled off the punctured shoe and then put it back on again, at the same time the spare, all pumped up and rearing to go was still lying within his reach. —Brockton Enterprise.

Good Old Feather Bed Not Entirely Obsolete

Although feather beds are seldom seen in the cities, numbers of them are still in use in rural New England, particularly among elderly persons, says a writer in the New York Times Magazine. In earlier days the feathers of wild geese were considered best for stuffing the ticking, with duck feathers next. Both geese and ducks were numerous, and farmers and their sons found gunning profitable. There was a ready market not only for the feathers but for the bodies.

John Winter, in his account of expenditures at Richmond's Island, (Maine), in 1639, mentions paying a shilling each for geese, four pence for ducks and two pence for teal. In 1610 a Maine gunner paid for a farm from the proceeds of the fowl he shot, the greater part being derived from the sale of brant feathers. The aristocracy demanded brant feathers for their feather beds; probably not because they were better than goose feathers, but because they were more rare.

Saved by Salt

One of the secret activities developed toward the end of the war was the creation of mine fields. One of the most important fields, 230 miles long by 35 wide, was laid down by Capt. D. Pratt Mannix and his associates, and is described by him in a special article for St. Nicholas Magazine. The mine laying ships consisted only of storage space for the mines and a deck railway to drop them overboard. One mine (weighing 300 pounds), was dropped and anchored every eight seconds. The only thing that prevented (usually!) an explosion from rough handling was a small cap of compressed salt which dissolved after half an hour's soaking in the ocean, and left the mine ready for work. Salt meant more to these heroes than to King Lear of bygone days.

Early American Libraries

In 1731 a subscription library was opened by Benjamin Franklin in Philadelphia. Many early subscription libraries have become the foundations of public libraries. The public library as we know it today was scarcely known before 1850 and has developed for the most part since the formation of the American Library association in 1876. The earliest tax-supported library is supposed to have been the town library of Salisbury, Conn., established in 1803. The oldest existing library is said to be the one at Petersborough, N. H., established in 1833.—Kansas City Star.

Dandy French Musketeers

A musketeer is a soldier armed with a musket, an infantryman of earlier times, but the word is specifically applied to a company of gentlemen who were a mounted guard in the service of the kings of France from 1661 down to the time of the revolution. They were clad in scarlet, hence their quarters were called the "Maison Rouge." In peace they followed the king on his hunting expeditions to protect him. In war they fought either on foot or on horseback. They were dandy soldiers, who went to war with curled hair, white gloves, "and perfumed like milliners."—Montreal Family Herald.

The Easiest Way

A young girl was talking the other day of what she desired to do with her life. While nobody appeared to know of any special aptitude she had for anything, she discussed the possibility of becoming an artist or writer.

It was evident that these things suggested effort, for after a while she said languidly:

"I don't know. Perhaps I shall just marry."

Nautical Difficulties

Sharon's mother bought her a toy sailboat and told her to put some water in the bathtub and sail. Fifteen minutes later Sharon came out on the front porch with the toy boat in her hand.

"Why aren't you sailing your boat?" asked her mother.

"Oh, the tub ran over and the boat kept falling out," replied Sharon calmly, "and I got tired of putting it back in!"

WOULD YOU USE A SCRUB BULL IN A PUREBRED HERD?

NO ONE would think of doing such a thing. And yet some are mighty careless with the milk from the herd they have gone to such pains to breed and weed.

Take a tip from ice cream plants and creameries. They have to keep everything milk touches clean — not so it just looks that way, but is clean and sweet-smelling and spotless. The majority of them use Dairymen's Wyandotte Cleanser!

Wyandotte Cleanser gets right to the bottom of things. It quickly and easily removes all that unseen dirt that so often sours milk and cream or gives it a peculiar flavor and cuts its quality. Yet it will not harm either milk or cream or the surface washed. And it's economical, too — for it is cheaper, pound-for-pound, than any similar cleanser.

Here's a good test for Wyandotte: Have your wife wash the strainer-cloths with it. She'll find it a great help on wash-day, too — because it leaves clothes so white, clean and sweet-smelling. And a little Wyandotte added to dish-water means less work and cleaner dishes, and softer hands.

Milk inspectors and Boards of Health recommend Wyandotte Cleanser and it has received highest award at the last four World's Fairs. Used for thirty years by more creameries and dairies than any other cleanser. The J. B. Ford Company, Wyandotte, Mich.

INSECT OUTBREAKS ARE NUMEROUS

MILD WINTER PERMITTED BIG SURVIVAL

Many Kinds Bothering In Field And Garden This Year

Fields and gardens in Iowa are being injured more by many differ- ent Kinds of insects than for yeare. Telephone calls from 100 miles and more and numerou letters are reach ing the entomologists at Iowa State College daily to identify insects and to tell how to control them.

This unusual outbreak of insects is largely the result of the mild weather last winter, Dr Carl J. Drake, state entomologist, belives. The mild weather permitted many more than the usual number of in- sects to eurvive. Ordinarily the winter weather kills off many in- sect.

There are no general control measures that are practical for all insects. If the insects chew the leavee, a spray made of about 1½ pounds of lead arsenate to 50 gal- lons of water, or a dust of 1 part lead areenate to 10 parts of flour or lime will prove helpful. Dust should be applied while dew is on the leaves.

Lead areenate should not be used on food crops, or if it is it must be carefully washed off, for it is poison ous to humans.

One of the recent insect out- breake is the report of a 15 acre field of corn being destroyed by the garden webworm, accompanied by two species of the climbing cutworm The garden webworm in formei years has been most damaging to alfalfa and Dr. Drake warns against allowing the pest to get started this year. A description of this worm, wth suggestion for means of control, are given in Circular 103, which may be obtained from the Bulletin Section, Iowa State College

More reports of injury by the army worms have been received by the entomologists . So far as army worms are concerned it is highly important to keep them out of corn field if possible because the pest hides in the folds of the leaves and is difficult to control if it gets into the corn. A printed circular on arm worms is also available for the ask ing.

Other insect pests which ordinar ily do not cause severe damage but which have been reported this year are the celery looper and the dark cotton cutworm, another of the climbing species of cut worms. The latter two are reported woking in gardens.

COURTESY DIMINISHING

Courtesy never was an outstand- ing characteristic of Ameicans, but there is certainly less among us now than there used to be, even in an earlier and cruder age. And we are least courteous when driving automobiles. Hence it may well be inferred that the automobile is a big factor in our loss of courtesy. That is another count to be laid at the door of our Juggernaut. When one driver runs across another who displays the "after you" attitude the surprise almost takes his breath away. The regular thing is the "me first" position. And then there is the fellow—and there are many of him—who parks his car by feeling instead of sight. He just runs back ward until he hits an inoffensive and unwatched car. He would act differently if the owner of the car were there. Next to a good five-cent oigar this country needs automobile courtesy.—Pathfinder.

ELECTRIC RATE REDUCED SLIGHTLY IN KLEMME

A representative of the Central States Electric Company who met with the Town Council last week adjusted electric rates for the Town of Klemme.

Although the reduction is far from a big cut, however. the rates were reduced slightly and ae larg- ly beneficial to the average consum er.

The new rate on lighting is 11c per KWH for the first 60 KWH, and 9c per KWH for all over 60 The minimun bill is $1.00. The old lighting rate was 12c per KWH for the first 30KWH and 11c per KWH for the next 30.

Other rates were left the same or adjusted slightly. The rate on electric cooking is 4c per KWH, and refrigeration 7c.

The new rates effect the largest number of users in Klemme and the reduction will be welcome.

MARIE BLANK GIVES BIRTHDAY SURPRISE BREAKFAST PARTY

Sunday morningMiss Marie Blank gave a breakfast to a number of young ladies in honor of Miss Gracka Quandt's birthday. The table was appropriately decorated and a large decorated cake as a center peice carried the message "Greeting to Gracka."

Following th early breakfast the young ladies drove to the Clear Lake Country Club and enjoyed a round of golf after which they drove around and on the way home visited the Wiles camp at Ventura

Those present were Jean Thada Margaret Gates, Blanche Gimer, Thelma Kluckhohn and Gracka Quandt.

Miss Margaret Gates was also celebrating her birthday the same day and both Miss Quandt and Miss Gates received many fine gifts.

All report a very good time and all enjoyed this novel way of ob- serving a birthday—or rather two birthdays.

FOR INSTANCE THE HEN

Did you ever stop to think that hard times mean nothing to a hen? She just keeps on digging and pro- ducing regardless of what the news papers say about conditions If the ground is hard, she scratches hard- er If dry, she digs deeper. If she strikes a rock, she digs around it. But she alwaye digs for results and turns them into hard shelled profit as well as tender broilers.

Did you ever see a pessimistic hen? Did you ever know of one starving to death waiting for food to come without digging for it Did you ever hear one cackle because times are hard? Not on your life! She saves her breath for digging and advertising her product. —Com mon Sense.

COURAGE

Sometimes it takes far more courage to admit defeat than it does to hang on It is said that only a few stock market speculators have the courage to take deliberate loss. The majority have to be sold out.

Few f us care to hear the bitter news; our ears are open only to pleasant news.

The world would not go far with- out faith, but intelligence and a sense of proportion are needed, too The man blessed with faith and intelligence is unbeatable whereas faith without intelligence is merely a form of stupidity.- Common Sense

AROUND THE COUNTY WITH AGENT WEISS

SHEEP TRAIN WILL BE AT GARNER JULY 25TH

Now Is Time To Get Rid of Mites; Spray Poultry House

A sheep conference train conduct ed by the Milwaukee railroad, the Extension Service at Iowa State College, the Hancock County Farm Bureau and the Iowa Sheep and Wool Grower's Association, will stop in Garner, July 25th according to an announcement by Walt Weiss County Agent.

All farmers interested in either sheep breeding or feeding are invit ed to attend. The two cars comprising the train will be spotted near the depot. Various phases of handling both natives and western lambs will be discussed.

One of the cars will be devoted to exhibits of equipment and lambs demonstrating market demands and proper finish and weight. Model shelters, hay racks, feed racks, sort ing devices and other equipment will be on display.

The train has recently completed a three weeks tour in South Dakota where an average of 50 sheep breed ers and feeders attended each meet ing.

Hot Weather—that's the time when mites begin to thrive and mul tiply rapidly in the poultry house. Fortunately, however, these pests can be controlled.

Mtes do not stay on poultry, but live during the day in the cracks and crevices of the houses. At nite when the birds come in to roost the mites crawl out and suck blood.

To control mites use a mixture of equal parts of crankcase oil, stock dip and kerosene. This may be sprayed on the inside of the house with a power sprayer, or it may be applied with a paint brush. The principal pont to keep in mnd is that it should reach all of the cracks about the house.

If a poultry house is badly infes- ted with mites, two applications of the mixture should be made within 10 days for the the life cycle of this pest requires 10 days for- complet- tion.

Before applying the material, the house should be given a good cleaning to make sure the mixture will get in contact with the mites.

MOST OF SMALL GRAIN NOW IN SHOCK

Threshing May Begin Latter Part or Next Week

By the end of this week one will see all of the small grain in this community cut and shocked. The largest percentage of small grain has already been cut and the past week end most of the fields were in shock.

It is quite possible that a small amount of threshing will be under way next week as some of the grain will be in good condition for thresh ing by then.

Rev. and Mrs. H. E. Whyte, Har- vey Nelson, Ruth Bailey, Novella Breidbenner, Irma Sampson, La- Vonne Larsen and Francis Sandrey all left Monday morning for Lake Okoboji to attend the annual Ep- worth League Camp.

Rev. and Mrs. Whyte expect o return to Klemme sometime Sunday so that regular church services will be in order Sunday at the Methodist chuch.

The Epworth League Camp at Okoboji is becoming more popular every year and the young people who attend get a lot of good out of the meetings as well as have a fine time.

ANOTHER STUNT TO KEEP COOL WHILE DRIVING

How to keep cool this hot wea- ther, and especially to keep cool and comfortable while riding in a car on a trip, is quite a problem.

But a paper salesman who called at The Tmes Office today had a simple contrivance. Re simply set a bucket of ice in his car in front of hs hot water heater, on which the valve had been closed to shut off the water circulation, and the fan was turned on and used to cir- culate the cold air.

He keeps the windows nearly or partly closed and rides in real com- fort on the hottest day, as the fan blows the cold air off the ice and around in the car.

DR. D. P. ANDERSON HEADS UPPER IOWA VETERINAR- IANS ASSOCIATION

The Upper Iowa Veterinarians Association. composed of the six surrounding counties of Winnebago. Hancock, Wright, Franklin, Cerro Gordo and parts of Kossuth and al- so Humboldt, met at the state park at Clear Lake, Friday, to hold their annual picnic. About twenty five veterinarians and their wives and families enjoyed a big picnic din- ner and supper.

Most of the day was spent in swimming, boating, and having a general good time around the lake and park.

A short business meeting and an election of officers was held in the afternoon. Dr. D. P. Anderson of Klemme was elected President for the coming year, and Dr. C. B. Wil- son of Britt, Secretary and Treas- urer.

FIVE GENERATIONS REP- RESENTED AT GATHERING

A family gathering was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Haefner Sunday which was attend- ed by a large number of relatives in this community, as well as by Rev. and Mrs. Wessels of Dows, and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Maitland, of Belmond.

At this gathering Rev. Wessels. who is a cousin of Mr. Haefner, baptized two children, Doris daugh- ter of Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Haefner, and Helen Louise, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Suckow.

An interesting feature of this family gathering was the fact that five generaions were represented and a kodak picture was taken of the group, who were: Grandma G. Haefner, and her daughter, Mrs. Ernest Schuldt; and Mrs. Schuldt's daughter, Mrs. Wes Haefner, and her son, Rufus, and his son, Donald. A family gathering with five gen- erations present is quite unusual and the picture is very interesting because of this fact.

Danish History Centers in Old City of Viborg

Viborg is one of the oldest (some maintain the oldest) cities in Denmark. As far as history goes back, there has always been a city there. It is beautifully situated on two hills and along the shores of two lakes. For centuries the Danish kings had to be crowned there before they were actually regarded as kings.

The city has always been a religious center. In the Twelfth and Thirteenth centuries there were 22 churches and many cloisters, although the town at that time had only about 2,000 inhabitants. The city has burned several times, which accounts for the fact that most of the buildings dating from the Middle ages are gone.

Even now, Viborg is one of the most beautiful cities in Denmark, and thousands of tourists visit it each year. The cathedral is one of the main attractions. It is decorated with frescoes from ceiling to floor, depicting the old and new testaments. The cathedral is said to be the only one of its kind north of the Alps. Viborg is situated almost in the center of the peninsula Jylland, which forms the largest part of the kingdom of Denmark.

Viborg is the capital of the amt or county bearing its name and has been the seat of a bishop since the Eleventh century.

Bright Idea That May Have Averted Tragedy

Allusions to the effective use of ridicule against his opponents made by the late Lord Balfour during the term of his chief secretaryship for Ireland recalls an incident of long ago, when a body of convicted prisoners who had been concerned in one of the rebellions—the 1848—had to be marched through the streets of Dublin. The authorities had been warned that a desperate attempt at rescue might be made by the mob and even though a military escort had been provided, there was some uneasiness. In these circumstances a really brilliant notion occurred to the officer in command of the troops. He gave instructions at the last moment that the suspender buttons on the trousers of the prisoners were to be cut off and thus they had to walk through the streets holding up their trousers. The spectacle was greeted with roars of laughter by the crowd, and no more was heard of the attempted rescue.—Montreal Family Herald.

Males Alone Vocal

The fabled henpecked husband may well look with envy upon life in the insect world, for there, according to Raymond L. Ditmars of the New York zoological gardens writing in Boys' Life, it is the male who makes all the noise, the female being condemned to eternal silence.

The chief singing insects, says Mr. Ditmars, are crickets, locusts and katydids. The males of "all these insects sing by rubbing the forward edges of the wings, which, when closely examined, look like mica. These are the resonating or stridulating organs. In the female they are lacking. However, the males more than make up for their mates' silence. The volume of sound produced by these small creatures is astonishing."

Relatives

Benny, age eight, had attended a family reunion and was one of the most interested of all the guests. He heard his mother later telling a friend about the gathering. "And all our 'in-laws' were there, too," she said.

Next day Benny was assigned to entertain a caller, president of the culture club his mother belonged to while his mother slipped into another dress.

Benny drew on all his powers of description in telling her about the family reunion. "And all our outlaws were there, too," he said proudly.

"Please Stand By"

This phrase, so commonly used by radio broadcasters, signifies "Be ready, in wait for further messages or program, keeping the receiver in operation and tuned to the same frequency." This use has probably been adopted from the nautical term "to stand by," because the radio at first was employed largely in connection with shipping. The sailor is ordered to stand by the anchor or the main sheet, in readiness for the next order with regard to it.

The Guiding Instinct

As the traveler who has lost his way throws his reins on his horse's neck and trusts to the instinct of the animal to find his road, so must we do with the divine animal who carries us through this world. For if in any manner we can stimulate this instinct, new passages are opened for us into nature; the mind flows into and through things hardest and highest, and the metamorphosis is possible.—Ralph Waldo Emerson.

"Higher Place" Explained

Jack was the cause of much trouble to his parents. At school he was always at the foot of the class. One day, however, he came flying home.

"Dad—mum, I have got a higher place in the class," he cried.

His father gave him a dollar.

"Now, Jack," he asked, "how did you gain promotion to a higher place?"

"Well, it's like this, dad," said the young hopeful. "My desk is being mended."

Activity of Small Use if Not Wisely Directed

Aeschylus, one of the greatest of the Greek poets, tells us that "A child pursues the flying bird," and the old Greeks who heard him understood just what he meant. We have often seen a dog go after a flying bird with all possible eagerness; and we smiled at his folly. The dog might be a good runner, but the bird had no need to fear his speed. We have seen a dog chase a railway train and if the dog could think, no doubt when the train had passed beyond its ken it would say to itself, "I chased away that great monster."

Activity is little use unless it is wisely directed. A man may spend a lifetime chasing flying birds, or attempting to catch something which he has never the remotest chance of securing. Men have spent many years trying to discover the secret of perpetual motion, but the secret still eludes humanity. Youth is usually busy at something or other which is perfectly practicable, but occasionally we find a wild chase after the impossible. And, even if the child caught the bird, what would he do with it? Suppose we get what we are after, what good will it be to us? We have seen men catch something which they had been seeking for months, or even years, and when they had secured it they were no farther ahead. The thing was not worth the effort.—London Times.

Roger Bacon First to Use "Magnifying Glass"

"Spectacles" is the name given to lenses of any required form which are supported in front of the eyes to assist vision. In the early days when it was not easy to obtain glass of good quality, they were also made of quartz or rock crystal, as it was called. Some years ago quartz lenses were revived by opticians and sold at fancy prices on the erroneous plea that they were cooler to the eyes.

Prof. M. von Rhoh says that Roger Bacon explained how to magnify writing by placing a segment of a sphere of glass on the book with its plane side down. Demand for spectacles increased during the Sixteenth century with the advent of the printed book, especially in North Italy and South Germany, where there were glass workers. The early mounts were made of horn and leather, and about this time metal began to be used.—Kansas City Star.

How He Benefited

Blinkers looked at his doctor.

"Yes, doctor," he said, "the strain of life to one in my business is very great." He paused, then: "But I have a great remedy, you know, and that is cycling."

"Ah, I can quite believe you," said his doctor. "First-rate exercise, cycling. Takes you out of yourself. Fills your lungs with fresh air; brushes away the cobwebs of care, eh?"

"Well, no, it's not that."

"No?"

"The fact is, when I do go out I'm so thankful to get home alive that I feel in high spirits the rest of the day."—St. John Telegraph-Journal.

Somewhat Out of Place

The place was crowded. It wasn't exactly a fashionable wedding, but there was no gainsaying the interest it caused, because both bride and bridegroom had been much in the public eye, she as an actress, he as a conjurer.

Everything went well until they reached the critical stage of the proceedings, and the clergyman asked for the ring.

The bridegroom plunged his hand into his pocket and brought out a rabbit. Then the horrified look in the clergyman's eyes and a startled exclamation from the bride made him realise that something was wrong. He looked down and saw the rabbit.

These Happy Victorians

One entry in the diary of Mary Gladstone (afterward Mrs. Drew), daughter of W. E. Gladstone, "Grand Old Man" of Victorian politics, reads:

"Quiet evening at home. I was in my room at 9:30 and heard him and mamma coming up the stairs singing, 'A ragamuffin husband and a rantipolling wife' at the top of their voices."

"Him" was her father, the prime minister of England, then seventy-four years of age. "Home" was No. 10 Downing street, official residence of the P. M.—Kansas City Star.

"In the Doldrums"

To say, "I am in the doldrums" signifies that one is "in the dumps," or is depressed. It was originally a term of the seas. The word, "doldrums" refers to the shifting zone of equatorial calms of variable airs between the trade winds. The weather is hot, moist and extremely dispiriting with heavy and frequent rainfall usually accompanied by thunderstorms. In the old days, sailing vessels sometimes laid by helplessly becalmed for weeks with the crews "in the doldrums."—Kansas City Times.

Comma-loal

It's funny what a difference just a comma will make. The following shows that:

"After washing golf hose, babies, sweaters and stockings, place them on wooden frames bought especially for this purpose. The articles will dry evenly without shrinking and will not require pressing."

THE TRUTH ABOUT TAXES

POLITICAL orators have laid great stress on the fact that the capital stock of corporations engaged in operating transmission lines in Iowa is exempt from taxation. They have failed, however, to explain that it is owners of this class of stock and not the corporations that are benefited by this exemption. It is the property of these stockholders—the money invested in the stock—not the property of the corporation that is relieved of taxation, so that the taxes paid by the corporation would not be affected if this exemption was not granted.

This exemption is granted not only to stockholders in corporations operating electric transmission lines, but also by the same law is granted to persons owning stock in manufacturing companies incorporated in Iowa, and merchandising corporations, telephone and telegraph corporations, and freight and equipment companies operating in Iowa. These exemptions are granted not for the purpose of relieving these corporations from taxation, but as an inducement for Iowa people to invest their money in Iowa corporations that are an important factor in the industrial development of the state.

This exemption is not of recent origin as the law granting it to stockholders in manufacturing corporations was passed in 1880. Since that time it has been amended several times to include other industries, the amendment relating to stock in electric corporations having been passed in 1915.

The impression seems to prevail that this law, so far as it relates to electric corporations, benefits only a few people who have large holdings in these companies. This is not correct, as a recent survey showed that there are 38,233 people in Iowa who own stock in the eight groups of companies that furnish at least 90% of the total electric service in Iowa, and that the average holdings of these people is about $800.00.

DO YOU SCOUR SKILLETS WITH ASHES?

OF COURSE you don't! It has been a long time since any one thought of doing such a thing. But do you know there is something as far ahead of ordinary cleansers, as ashes are behind the times? . . . Dairymen's Wyandotte Cleanser!

Wyandotte first made a name for itself around the dairy, ice cream plant and creamery . . . these places where everything has to be spick and span. But housewives got the idea that this cleanser would do a superior job around the house. And they were right! So we are passing the word along to you.

First, we want you to try it on the dairy utensils. You'll see right away that it knows how to go after unseen dirt and grease. And then take it right into the kitchen. Turn it loose on greasy pots and pans—where onions have been, or fish — and see how quickly it makes everything clean and sweet-smelling and how much work it saves you. And on wash-day it will make clothes cleaner and whiter and save half the soap and half the work.

Here are some things you ought to know about Wyandotte Cleanser. It contains no soap but, instead, is all cleanser. It makes no suds. It will not harm cloth, rubber fittings, metal, or any other surface it cleans. It softens water. It is economical—for it costs less, pound-for-pound, than any similar cleanser.

Milk inspectors and Boards of Health recommend Wyandotte Cleanser. For 30 years it has been used by more creameries and dairies than any other cleanser. It received the highest award at the last four World's Fairs. The J. B. Ford Company, Wyandotte, Michigan.

PAYS TO PLOW YOUR CORN FIVE TIMES

Fertilizer Pays For Itself In Spite of Dry Weather

Regardless of the dry weather, fertilizers used on corn and small grains appear to have paid well for themselves. However. it is a little early to determine the actual value of the fertilizers on corn but on all of the test plots on peat and alkali one can see right to the row where fertilizer was applied and where not applied.

On the one test plot on oats, the straw on the fertilized area was 8 to 10 inches taller than on he non-fertilized and too the quality of the oats excelled where fertilized.

Many times, farmers are doubtful as to whether their corn should be plowed three, four or five times The results may vary from year to ..r but in the case of oa ing corn on the John Engstler farm plowing his corn five times meant twice as good a stand and yield as did plowing four times.

It so happened that John was only able to get over part of the corn in the same field five times du to its getting too tall. One can see to the row where the corn was plwed four times and where it was plowed five times. As I sad before the stand on the ground plowed five times was abut double the other and the oats was cleaner, of better qualty and had more straw by four o siz inches.

Whether this will hold true year after year, I do not know, but, it is worth some consideration and Mr. Engstler said. "I am going to plow just as many times as I can and I know now that my Dad was right when he always made us plow corn way after we tht it wao too large saying that we only had to wait un til the nex year when he field was in oats to see the results."

HOW 4-H MEMBERS USE THE MONEY THEY EARN

The opporunities offered farm boys and girls for incomes through 4-H club work are significant, it is pointed out in an analysis of some 200 reports from selected club members in 30 states. In this summary, recently received by the oU. S. Department of Agriculture, 84 per cent of the members report that club work has provided income by products sold, prizes and other ben efits won, and the acquisition of farm property constituting their "capital" for future operations .

One club boy said: "Except for $200 from my father and about $700 earned outside, the cattle and poultry and their offspring have paid my way through college." Another boy reports: "Club work has enabled me to build up a pure bred Holstein herd, valued at more than $4,000, besdes calves sold this year at $1,085. Frequent mention is made of scholarships won to colleges, trips to camps and fairs and money prizes.

Earnings from club activities are utilized n about five different ways, according to the analysis made of the reports. About one-third of those reporting said their earning were applied to school and college expenses. Personal needs absorbed 17 per cent of the earnings. Another 17 percent invested. In most cases the investment was in livestock or farm property. Twelve per cent went into permanent savings. Home improvements were paid for by 6.3 percent of the money obtained. Fifteen per cent of the members in the survey did not report on their incomes.

FARMERS SHOULD GET READY TO KILL HOPPERS

Severe Infestation Expected in Iowa Outbreaks in Other States

With severe outbreaks of grasshoppers in South Dakota, Colorado and Nebraska and bad infestations in Minnesota and Missouri, Iowa farmers are preparing for possible sdvere local infestation, according to Dr. C. J. Drake, State entomologist.

Reports of injury have already been received, especially from the western counties of the state, and control demonstrations have been given in Monona county.

Drs. Drake and George C. Decker, of the Entomology department at Iowa State College, have prepared a mimeographed sheet on control methods which they are sending to county agents.

They recommend the following control formula: 100 pounds coarse flaked wheat bran. free from sh rts; 1 quart f sodium arsenite solution (8 pound material); 2 gal lons molasses (black strap); 10-12 gallons of water and 3 ounces of amyl acetate (technical grade. If white arsenic, paris green or sodium fluoride is used, substitute 5 pounds fo the 1 quart of sodium arsenite solution. Sodium arsenite is cheaper, however.

There are several destructive species of grasshoppers, says Dr. Drake, but only three or four do damage in this state A majority of the pests are about one-half to three-fourths grown at the present time, and are most numerous in alfalfa fields, weedy areas and small grain fields.

Dr. Drake says that the heaviest losses in Iowa will be on new seedings of alfalfa, clover and some on corn. When cutting alfalfa leave strips of the crop uncut; the grass hoppers will congregate there and then be destroyed. If the poison is thinly scattered it will not be harmful to animals or birds.

In eastern Colorado the grass hopper outbreak is the worst it has been ni 25 years, and in southeastern South Dakota it is the worst in the history of the state.

DISEASES CUT YIELD OF GRAIN THIS YEAR

Smut and Stripe Prevalent Scab Not as Serious as in 1928

Scab of barley and other small grains, oats smut and barley stripe are unusually prevalent in many Iowa fields and are causing serious reduction in yields in many localities, according to R. H. Porter, exten son planta pathologist at Iwa State College, who has inspected several fields and has received reports from many county agents.

Scab is especially prevalent on barley in north-central Iowa where infection ranges fom 10 to 30 percent. The scab disease is not as serious, however. as in 1928.

The same organism that causse barley scab causes the dry rot or seedling blight on corn. Because of this fact barley or wheat suffers less from scag when planted on land not in corn the year before. If the land has been in corn, the stalk should be plowed under carefully.

Treating barley with Ceresan or copper carbonate and wheat with Ceresan is the surest control measure for scab. Thoroly fanning and cleaning the seed to remove light, scabby kernels an dearly plantnig help control the disease.

Some oat fields have been found with a smut infection as high as 50 per cent. A dry soil and a fairly cool soil temperature are favorable to the development of smut. Seed treatment with either formaldehyde or Ceresan will prevent this disease regardless of soil conditions.

Oat scab which causes blighting of kernels is also plentiful. This disease was encouraged by warm during June. No practical contro has been developed.

The barley stripe infection is pre valent in many parts of Iowa and ranges ffrom traces to 20 per cnet This disease causes a blighting of the plant indicated by yellew brown stripes on the leaves and stems and shriveled heads or failure of heads to form. Stripe may be controlled by seed treatment with Ceresan.

Because f the prevalence of small grain diseases in Iowa this year farmers should plan to treat seed when they plant the 1932 crop.

SHEEP COFERENCE TRAIN IN GARNER THIS WEEK

Four important factors for success in sheep feeding will be discussed when the sheep conference train on the Milwaukee stops in Garner, July 25th at 2:00 P. M. according to C. W. McDonald, extension specialist in sheep and wool production from Iowa State CIlege who will be with the train.

These four factors are: Judgement in buying lambs to feed, economical methods of feeding, management to avoid losses frm parasites and ther causes and finishing lambs to market condition.

Sheep raising will be discussed from both the standpoint of buying and feeding the western lamb and rasing native lambs. The best rations to use, how o make use of home-grown feeds and roughages t secure the cheapest gains, preven tion of parasite infestation, proper equipment and other problems of interest to breeders and feedrs will be discussed. Those attending the train will b given an opportunity to ask questions and exchange experiences with others.

Among those on the train will be Mr. McDonald, W. R. Hauser, agriculturalist with the Milwaukee railroad and others.

The two cars of lambs, equipment and exhibits will be placed near the depot. The meeting will begin at 2:00 P. M.

PANAMA CANAL ZONE COOLER THAN IOWA

PANAMA CANAL ZONE FAMILY WAS AT MAPLE LODGE CAMP SUNDAY

Klemme people are more or less interested in Maple Lodge Camp at Ventura, of which a former Klemme man and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Wiles, are the proprietors.

Sunday evening Mr and Mrs. White and family from the Panama Canal Zone stopped at the C for the night and enjoyed the fine cabins and the good service provided.

Mr. White, who is employed by the government, is an interesting visitor and it was the privlege of the Times editor to spend a few minutes with nim. Mr. White stated that it was much warmer here than in Panama and that the themometer very seldom reaches past the 90 degree mark and that every nite is cool so that blankets are needed. They have the same season all year around, or in Other words, summer all of the time.

The canal does a monthly business of over two million dollars. The charges are $1.20 per ton for ships going in the canal and th eaverage ship can go through in from 5 to 6 hours. The canal has been enlarged and can take thru the largest ship built. However the charge of $1 20 per ton is cheap, Mr. White stated, in comparison with what it would cost a ship to go aroung South America. He says many ships use from 10,000 to 12,000 tons of coal a day which costs them $15 a ton down there so they can well afford to take the shortest route which is thru the canal.

Mr. White and family left home May 18th. They took a boat part of the way and shipped their car. They have toured the west and also the east and are now on their way home. They are due to sail at New York on August 15th. Mr. White and family stated that Maple Ldge Camp was one of the best conducted camps they had stopped at on all f their trip

Mr. White, who was driving a Buick six said, he would buy a new car before sailing for home. He said that the Government gives him a vacation every two years on full pay for 90 to 150 days. He is eligible to retire in three more years and said he would continue to live inPanama where the climate is so ideal all the year around. The White family have toured many of the South American countries but Mr. White said the Uuhited States provided perhaps the finest scenery

HARRY LINN HERE TWO DAYS THE PAST WEEK

Two days of the past week found Harry Linn of the Iowa Horse and mule breeders Association in the county working with all club members.

The boys and girls in the colt club are always more than ready to welcome Harry and when he has finished working with them, they know just a whole lot more about the good and bad points to be found on a horse. They know how to braid manes and tails better and they also know more about feeding, managing and showing their colt or colts.

The first day in the county Harry visited the various farms of colt club members while on Friday, July 17th. a meeting of all members was held at the H. A. Greiman farm where the members had an opportunity to braid the manes and tails of two two year old club colts one yearling club colt and one foal club colt.

A recess was called about 4:00, when Mrs. H. A. Greiman served all the orangeade and chocolate cake the boys, girls, women and men present could eat.

GAS FRANCHISE GRANTED AT GOODELL

A natural gas franchise for Goodell was approved by the voters at a special election. The Central States Elecric company received the franchise for furnishing natural gas for a period of 25 years. The vote was 84 to 16 in favor of the project. The Central States officials said the Missouri Valley Pipe Line company line would be tapped a mile west o Goodell for the local supply of gas.

IT MAKES A DIFFERENCE WHO DRINKS THE MILK

The opponents of testing cattle for T. B. have a good one to crow about right now and are overlooking no opportunity to make the very most of it. Miss Marion Syndergaard, the healthiest girl in Iowa, went to Chicago and won out there being the healthiest girl in the whole United States. Like all famous people of course they wanted a few testimonials from her and she gave as the cause of her robust health the fact that she drank about a gallon of milk per day. Now the cow testers have just finished her dad's cattle, in Grundy county, and every one of them reacted—all tubercular and must be killed! Gewhillikins! That's no argument against cow testing. It just simply proves that Miss Marion has got a contitution nothing can faze—same as a lot of our corn fed Iowa girls. We'll bet Hancock county has got a hundred just like her. Feed this milk to some of these emaciated city loung lizards and they will die after the first quart. Regardless of this seeming evidence that cow-test ing is silly we are still strong for it and Miss Marion.

TWO BELMOND BANKS FAIL TO OPEN DOORS

The State Bank of Belmond and the Belmond Savings Bank failed to open their doors by order of the boards of directrs of both institutions, Tuesday morning.

The State Bank of Belmond has capital stock of $80,000, and the Belmond Savings Bank, $25.000. Thees two banks were the only banks in Belmond.

C. P. Luick is president and C. O. Fitts, cashier of the Savings bank. W. C. Tyrell is president, and R. E. Courson, cashier of the State bank.

Depositors became excited when it was rumored about that the two banks were planning a merger, it was stated. This lead to a run on one of the banks Saturday and Monday, and the bank did not open Tuesday morning. It is stated that the other bank did not open Tuesday morning and thus averted a run which might have started.

THRESHING IN IS FULL SWING HERE THIS WEEK

Theshing is in full swing in this community ths week and several fields are now bare of grain shocks.

The first to thresh in this community that we have record of, is A. G. Koerner. His field of oats was threshed last week Friday. Since then there have been sevral other field threshed.

Oats seems to be of good quality and the yield is good.

Stages of Civilization Recorded by Currency

Money, according to Fararn Zerbe, former president of the American Numismatic association, is a historian of the first rank.

Money is a documentary record of the progress of man and the stages of civilization. Coins are imperishable manuscripts in metal, unfolding a concise story of the refinements and energy of the people producing them. The history of money for the past 5,000 years is also a history of mankind.

Coins indicate to what estate has risen the art, architecture and metallurgy of a people; mythology and religion here are graven in imperishable record. Greece in all her glory and Rome before the fall of the empire are portrayed for all to see in the bushels of coins uncovered by modern excavation.

The deterioration which followed the universal tragedy of a dead empire is reflected in the barbarously crude coins of the Middle ages. Money tells a story of conquest and siege, of victory and defeat, of culture and ignorance. Money records lost causes, tells of the rise and fall of the affairs of men; it suggests civilizations destroyed and forgotten.

"Biting" Remarks Natural in Contest Over Teeth

"Your money or your teeth!" was the demand and it happened, not in Chicago, but in a little Hungarian village. And the dentist was the hold-up man.

It seems that the patient, who had sent his false teeth to the dentist for polishing had not paid a bill which his mother had contracted several years previously. The dentist had bided his time, and now refused to return the man's teeth until he had paid his mother's dental bill.

The toothless man sued on the ground of "infamous abuse of professional ethics." The dentist naively countered with the statement that since he couldn't eat without money, it was only justice that the other man couldn't eat because he had no teeth.

The court made several biting remarks which neither party to the suit relished.—Washington Post.

Resourceful Youth

As an instance of the resourcefulness of the average Boy Scout, Lord Baden-Powell told the story of a certain patrol who had been engaged the whole of one morning in learning the art of bridge building.

For an hour or so they had worked on their own, their scoutmaster being engaged elsewhere. But before they were dismissed he came back to inspect their work.

"Why, this affair would collapse in half an hour!" he exclaimed in surprise, indicating where the knots on one side were tied wrongly.

"That's all right, sir," replied the boy, who had made the knots. "This bridge is designed for the use of the enemy."

Architectural Point

Houses in many parts of the South are built with a porchgat the side with an outside door to the porch. This is done for both comfort and privacy. In practically all cases the porches are built on the side of the house and face either south or west in order to take advantage of the prevailing southwest winds in summer. The houses of this type are usually only one room wide and are large, with high ceilings, allowing ample ventilation. The porches usually overlook a side garden and there are two front doors, one placed in the porch inclosure on the street and the other in the center of the house, entering into a hallway.

Fish for Venison

The origin of venison being sold by British fishmongers is given in Prior's "Life of Malone": "Many noblemen having more bucks than they had occasion for, wished to dispose of them, but were asbamed to take money. They, therefore, sent them to their fishmonger, and received fish in return. This odd practice commenced many years ago, and the fishmongers still continue to sell venison, though they do not obtain it in the same way, for the owners of parks now find no reluctance in receiving cash for a certain number of bucks every season at a stipulated price."—London Times.

Faraday's Diary

No other experiment in physical science has been more fruitful in the profit of mankind than that of Michael Faraday, whose work was responsible for the production of the dynamo. The centennial of his birthday will be celebrated by a large gathering, representing the great electrical societies of the world. Faraday kept a careful diary in his own hand of all his experimental work. For sixty years this diary has been the most treasured possession of the Royal institution, which has resolved to publish it in full. Some of the six or eight volumes will be ready for the centenary.

Land Once Considered Only Source of Wealth

Trade, the great adventure of today, once was considered a degrading occupation, unfit for "gentlefolk." The ambition of the mercantile class of the Seventeenth and Eighteenth centuries was to become landed proprietors. Thus investment of their surplus funds almost invariably ran to landed estates to which they or their heirs eventually might retire and, as one historian puts it, "shake the slime of trade from their feet."

Gradually there came a change, however, as trade became more and more necessary in the scheme of things, as explorers opened up ever greater and richer territory. As early as the Sixteenth century the efficiency of united effort and capital had become demonstrated and the organization of such great companies as the Levant, the East India and the Hudson's Bay proved that fortunes could be made in something besides land. These companies, developed principally by the mercantile classes, soon became empires in themselves—in which even royalty might participate without courting the usual stigma attached to trade.

Similarity of Surnames in Old English Village

Northamptonshire can boast of a village in which one-third of the inhabitants possess the same surname. This is Bozeat, which has a population of just over 1,000. Nearly 300 of them have the surname of Drage.

Many villages and small towns can show surprising numbers of a few surnames amongst their inhabitants, but nowhere else is such a large percentage of people with the same name to be found.

It is difficult to discover how it all happened. Surnames are a comparatively modern institution, for in the old days there were none. To distinguish between two Williams, one might be referred to as William, Robert's son, and the other William from Handley. In course of time this was shortened to William Roberston and William Handley. Or, again, a man might be known by his trade, John the smith becoming John Smith.

Where the Drages came from is a mystery, for there is no mention of them in the old records.—London Tit-Bits.

Still Going Strong

One by one the great fairs of Europe have passed away, but Leipzig is greater than ever it has been. It is the world's one annual international fair. It has been held since before the Twelfth century, and when there, Leipzig always provides more than a fair, for it is a city of unusual interest, and every tourist seeks out Auerbach's keller on Grimmaischesstrasse, to do honor to the episode so famous in Goethe's "Faust."

The city has one exhibition hall twice the size of the old Madison Square garden, and there are 80 other halls. During the fair week the whole city is given over to suitable festivities, chiefly of the nature of pageants.

The Napoleonic wars and the World war failed to interfere with the Leipzig fair.

Maritime Rule

The captain of a vessel, upon entering a harbor must first obtain a harbor pilot, then pass quarantine inspection, and then enter at the customs house and present his certificate of registry. If a foreign vessel, the captain presents his certificate to the consul of his country and receives a receipt which he gives to the customs officers. Then it is necessary to pay tonnage tax. In leaving a port, the captain must have clearance papers to show that he has paid all taxes, and must indicate the country to which he is going.

Made Her Name Famous

Sophie Potocka was born in Constantinople about 1766 and died in Berlin in 1822. She was the wife of a Polish count, Stanislaw Felix Potocki. Her parents were Greek, and as a child sold her for 1,500 piasters, or $375, to the French ambassador at Constantinople, who adopted her. She married the count de Witt, who three years later divorced her at the request of Potocki and on the receipt of 2,000,000 gulden. In 1790 she married Potocki and became famous for her beauty and cleverness throughout Russia and Germany.

Inside Information

Mr. Hayes met Mrs. Ayres at a local charity bazaar.

"So you know my wife?" said Hayes, in surprised tones, after a few remarks.

"Oh, yes," returned Mrs. Ayres. "I know her very well."

"How very strange!" he went on. "I wasn't aware that you had met."

"Well, as a matter of fact, we haven't really," confessed the other. "But I have a maid who was employed in your house for three months."—London Answers.

Aspirations

In a small Indiana village a lad had been invited to join the boys' secret club. After attending the first meeting the lad did not seem at all interested and the curious sister inquired what the trouble was.

"I want to be treasurer and that club has no money so that let's me out," explained the aspiring office seeker.

Why Hurry to Dentist? Here's Toothache "Cure"

Here is a sure cure for toothache, according to those who have tried it:

Catch an ordinary green snake, hold it horizontally extended by the neck and tail, and run it seven times back and forth between the teeth. Then turn it loose. Eat no food containing salt for four days afterward.

Dr. Frans M. Olbrechts of the University of Brussels, who reports it to the Smithsonian institution, of which he is a collaborator, is not so sure of the efficacy of the treatment, which he found among the Cherokee Indians of the Carolinas. But it is the sovereign remedy of the medicine men, not only relieving pain, but protecting the teeth in the future.

Magic dentistry, Doctor Olbrechts reports, is about the most colorful phase of Cherokee medicine and surgery. The snake is supposed to carry the toothache away with it. Toothache, the medicine men hold, is intimately bound up with various natural phenomena and can be kept away entirely if a person observes proper precautions. Whenever one sees a shooting star, for example, it is necessary to spit at once. Otherwise a tooth will be lost in the near future. Also one must be careful not to spit anything that has been in the mouth, such as tobacco or the peelings of apples, into the fire. They have been in contact with the teeth and a sort of magical connection is made between the teeth and the fire. The latter will "eat out" the former.

Canute Had Nothing on Michigan Court Crier

In 1833, before Michigan had become a state, the sessions of the Supreme court were held in the territorial capitol building. The crier of the court was Isaac Day, familiarly known as "General Day" or "Field Marshal Day." He was a large, portly man. One afternoon during the session of court a severe thunderstorm occurred. While the general sat in somniculous quietude, leaning on his ivory-headed staff of office, gently snoring, an interlude to the raging tempest without, a tremendous peal of thunder jarred the building and startled all its inmates. The general, awakening, sprang upon his feet and, giving a heavy rap on the floor with his staff, cried out in a tone little lower than the thunder, "Silence!"

The effect was irresistible, and for a time the court and bar were convulsed with laughter.—Detroit Free Press.

Ancient Wood

A seven-foot piece of timber, recently taken from the bed of the Yakima river in Washington is thought to be twelve million years old. It was taken from a log encountered when a United States reclamation service tunnel was being driven under the river, and was in solid basalt believed to have been poured out of one of the Columbia plateau volcanoes twelve milion years ago. It is a species of the Sequoia redwood, the giant growths of the Pacific coast. The redwoods have not always been confined to a narrow strip in California, but throve at one time throughout what is now the United States, Canada, Alaska, Greenland, Europe and northern Asia. Fossil Sequoia cones were found in rocks and swamp deposits in Europe in the Nineteenth century before the only living representatives of the species were known to the white man.

Rome's Decay and Fall

The downfall of the Roman empire came about gradually. The empire had become so far-flung that the maintenance of the legions to guard the outlying territories became an increased burden and expenditure to the people. Taxation was extraordinarily heavy in order to maintain the numerous officials and to keep up the luxurious splendor of the court. Other symptoms of economic ruin were the decrease of population, thereby diminishing the number of taxpayers and the number of soldiers for legions, the spread of infanticide, the increase of waste lands and the constantly recurring riots and insurrections caused by these conditions.

Wealth in One Shell

The young Frenchwoman who recently found in an oyster 41 pearls—two of them black and probably worth as much as the other 39—had an exceptional stroke of luck. Many a pearler would rejoice in as many pearls for a season's haul. The average Scottish pearler at the end of his season can rarely show more than a phial of lead-colored and brown rubbish with some tiny lustrous white specimens worth about $5 each. Scottish pearling has had its great days, and even so recently as 1860 gems to the value of £12,000 passed through the hands of a syndicate controlling the industry.

Not That David

An American, traveler in the north of Scotland, arrived at Tain, and entered into conversation with a resident who assured him that Tain was a very historical place, inasmuch as it was one of the old royal burghs of Scotland.

"How interesting," said the tourist.

"Yes," replied the resident. "Its charter was granted by King David."

"You don't say," responded the visitor. "Was that the—er—gentleman who wrote the Psalms?"—London Tit-Bits.

CHAS. RANKIN WARNS FARMERS OF DANGER

Kanawha Reporter: — Charles Rankin can vouch for the fact that sodium chlorate is easily ignited. Yesterday, as he was walking on a gravel road, he discovered with a start that both his shoes were on fire. While he realizes he is a fast walker he is postive that he was not going at a pace that would caus his shoes to ignite and is therefore postive the sodium chlorate was the cause of his experience. He had been uing the chemical and some of it had dried on his shoes. Friction did the rest. Quick action in cover- his shoes with gravel put out the fire but not before large holes were burned in each shoe. Mr. Rankin states that he has used large quanties of sodium chlorate during the past three years and has always been very careful in handling it. It is certain that this experience will make him even more so—and he advises all users to do the same.

MUST PULL TOGETHER

Fred H. Sexauer, President of the Dairymen's League Cooperative Association of New York, recently stated that the problems confronting dairy farmers of his territory are the gravest of any in the last 30 years.

"Most of the causes behind the problems facing dairymen today ar outside their control as individuals Mr. Sexauer said. "In facing the present crisis not only must farmers work together more closely but so must their organizations."

This is good advice, not only for New York farmers, but those thru out the nation. We live in a cooperative age and the necessity of cooperation and mass effort has been stressed by the business depression Unorganized farmers will continue to receive low prices for what they sell until they bring the force of organization to bear on their problem

PPERS MENACE TO MANY IOWA CROPS

ON SHOULD BE USED TO RID OF GRASSHOPPERS

es Have Multiplied Rapidly In Past Three Years

sshoppers or locusts as they metimes called, have been in- rapidly in numbers during st three years in Iowa. With ble conditions the grasshop- opulation will continue to in- aud build up to a point where ppers are capable of doing erious damage. During the hree weeks local outbreaks occurred in Iowa. From all t indications larger and more s outbreaks will occur here ere throughout a considerable western, southern and Cen- ections of the state. This ar- s written to emphasize the ance of poisoning campaigns er to reduce the injury to the rps, and to wipe out areas of grasshopper population, ther eventing even greater losses a in 1932.

Life Cycle

eral species of grasshoppers mmon and at times sufficient ndant to injure or even de- grasses grains and other crop . The life histories of the dif species are somewhat similar ving but one genration each In late summer and fall the s deposit their eggs in pod- asses, each of which contains 20-65 eggs, in firm compact he adults of none of the in- s species live over the winter ly spring the over wintering hatch into tiny grasshoppers. oung hoppers somewhat re- the adults, except for size he absence of wings. After for a period of about 70 or y, during which time they their skin several times the grasshoppers appear with ful- eloped wings. The adults con- to feed and deposit eggs until by cold weather in the fall.

Control Method

most satisfactory method of lling grasshoppers is by the a poison bran mash bait. To satisfactory results the bait e properly prepared and then d at the right time. It should pared as follows:

flaked what bran
e from shorts) ..... 100 lbs.
n arsenite solution pound material) ..... 1 qt.
ses (Black Strap) ..... 2 gal.
..... 10-12 gal.
acetate hnical grade) ..... 3 ounces

Method of Preparing Bait

er placing the required a- of water in a barrel, tub or suitable container, the molas- odioum arsenite and amyl ace- (also salt, if used) should be and stirred until the ingred- are thoroughly mixed. This on is then slowly poured over ran which has been previous- d on a tight floor or wagon r other suitable surface or con . The hoe or scoop shovel may ed to advantage. Continue un- the solution is added and un- ery flake of bran is wet and all lumps have been worked When large amounts of poison are desired, a "drum" cncrete may be used if the machine un at low speed. If one of the oisons (Paris green, white ar- or sodium fluoride) is used uld be thoroughly mixed with ry wheat bran before moisten ith the water conaining the ses and amyl acetate.

Application

OUNT: 100 pounds of bran is lent to treat from ten to fife- acres, depending upon the hopper population and the od used in distributing the

ME: The bait should be appli- st before the first feeding per- the morning so it will not out befre the grasshoppers start feedng. The mixture is not at tractive after it becomes dry. It must however, be on the ground be- fore the first feeding takes place in the morning. The bait should not be scattered in the afternoon or evening.

METHOD. For gardens and small fields the bait may be scattered by hand from a bucket carried on the arm. (In the same manner that seed from the hand is widely scattered or broadcast.) In large fields the bait may be applied better and easier from a box or tub in the rear end of a buggy, wagon or truck which is driven acrss the infested field. Care should be taken to distribute the bait thoroughly and evenly. In alfal fa fields the best results can usual- ly be secured just after the hay crop has been removed A few nar- row strips in the field are left un- cut. The grasshoppers will concen- trate in these strips to feed and may then be poisoned with a mini- mum amount of labor and mater- ial.

RESULTS: Do not look for re- sults the first day. In the case of grasshoppers the arsenicals are slow acting poisons requiring from three to five days to kill Soon after eating the poisoned bran the hop- pers become sick and stop feeding The dead grasshoppers are usually found around the bases of plants, under weeds and other debris. Two or three applications are sometimes necessary in heavily infested areas.

Precautions

Sodium arsenite, parjs green sod ium fluoride, and white arsenic are poisonous to poultry and all kinds of livestock. Great care shuld be exercised in handling the bait so that farm animals cannot get it Be sure that all utensils used in prepar ing the bait arethoroughly clean- ed. Do not have the bait lying a- round promiscuously.

The sodium arsenite, or other poison should not come in contact with any part of the bdy while mix- ing the bait. The hands should be protected by greasing and grease or soap should be worked under the fingernails; or, better, rubber gloves should be worn while the bait is being broadcast by hand. Dip- ping the fingers in hot paraffin will also protect them for a short period of time. After handling or scatter- ing the bait the hands should be im mediately washed and cleaned.

Grasshoppers are capable of de- stroying many different kinds of crops. Crop destruction means the loss of many dollars This loss can be precented by controlling the grasshoppers as recommended as above.

HUNGRY ANTS INVADE HOUSES

Housewives Combat Pests With Argentine Bait

Ants invading houses because hot dry weather has spoiled their out- door sources of food supply are be- ing fught by many husewives this summer.

Argentine ant bait is recommend- ed as the best poison. This poison has proved successful during the past two seasons when the antshave invaded the residence house in large numbers.

Th Argentihe ant bait is mixed as follows. Mix 1¼ pounds of gran ulated sugar, 1 gram of crystallized tartaric acid and 1 gram sodium be zoate with 1¼ piuts of water and boil for 30 minutes Dissolve 1-8 oz of chemically pure sodium arsenite in 1 fluid ounce of hot water. Add the two solutions together an dstir well. Then add 2-3 pound strianed honey and mix well. Some of the poison is then put on bits of sponge or cloth in perforated tins and is placed where the pests are most numerous.

Ants in the lawn may be control- led with carbon bisulphide. Three to five holes are drilled 8 to 10 in- ches deep around the nest and a tablespoon of the poison placed in each hole. The openings are then closed with moist earth. As the fumes of the carbon bisulphide are heavier than air they rapidly sprea thruout the nest. If one application is not sufficient, drill more holes and add the same amount of poison Two applications will usually rid the lawn f most of the ants.

67 FARMERS ATTEND SHEEP CONFERENCE TRAIN

Sixty-seven farmrs are better in- formed on the buying, care, manage ment and feeding of sheep since the conferences put on by the Chicago Milwaukee. St. Paul and Pacific Ry in conjunction with the Extension service of Iowa State College and the local Farm Bureau

Two meetings were held one on Saturday afternoon and the other Saturday evening. Both were very well attended. Those present not only became better informed on feeding, care and managing, but also were given valuable informa- tion on the marketing of sheep and the market grades. Four pens of sheep were seen by those in attend- ance showing the different grades.

The marketing of sheep as well as telling when your lambs are fat was very well covered by Mr. Kel- ley of the Chicago Producers Ass'n.

Mr. Wr. R. Hauser, Agricultural Development agent for the railroad and C W. McDonald of the Exten- sion service very ably conducted the round table discussions and both saw to it that no one went home unless he was fully informed and had all his questions answered.

GEORGE AHRENKEIL DIED EARLY THURSDAY MORNING

George Ahrenkeil was born May 29th, 1858 on a farm near Stubbum Denmark. He was the second of nine children born to his parents, who were well to do farmes and land owners in Denmark.

Mr. Ahrenkeil received the in- struction of his childhood years from a private teacher hired by his father. He also attended the instruc tion classes of the Lutheran church and became a member of hat church Later he attended high school at Flemsburg in Schleswig.

In 1879, at the age of 21, Mr. Ahrenkeil came to America. He was the first of the Ahrenkeils to cross the ocean. A few years later three of his brothers, John, Julius and August also landed in America and made their homes here.

George Ahrenkeil was a farmer, When he landed in America he worked as a hired hand on a farm near Cedar Falls, but as soon as he had learned the American way of doing things he rented a farm and established a home. He farmed sev eral years at Cedar Falls, sold out and moved to Marshalltown where he worked in a vinegar factory for five years. Since then he has lived in Hancock County part of the time near Klemme and part of the time and the last few years were spent in retirement at his home in ood- ell, Iowa.

On Oct. 18. 1884 he was united in marriage to Miss Nette C. Nelson Cedar Falls. To this union were born three sons and one daughter.

Mr. Ahrenkeil was a success as a farmer in that he could make a good living on a small farm. He pro- vided well for his family, always had plenty of money in his pocket and paid as he went. His motto seemed to be "the little farm well tilled and the little barn well filled' He always had time to visit with his friends and he had a wonderful memory and knew everybody by name even the children of the community. He enjoyed his home and his family and had about every good thing which this life has to offer and still he avoided the heavy financial worries which haress so many who work so hard they have no time to enjoy anything. His life reminds us of the old Greek adage which reads. "He is rich who is contented;"

Mr. Ahrenkeil was bothered with asthma for several years but was quite active until a few weeks ago when his condition became more serous and his earthly career was ended early Thursday morning, July 23, 1931 at the age of 73 years 1 month and 24 days.

He leaves of his immediate rela- tives, his widow and three children August Ahrenkeil of Glenwood, An- ton Ahrenkeil of Goodell and Mrs. Harry Bonwell of Renwick and his three grandchildren. Duane and Al len Bonwell and Taalkeus Ahren- keil. One brother August of Denver, Colorado ad 2 sisters in Denmark

Service were held by Rev. Wm. Bainbridge in the U. B. Church at Goodell at 2:00 P. M. Sunday.

Interment was made in the Am- sterdam cemetery.

Pall Bearers were Ole Sandberg. Jack Zelie, Harm Rust, John Savo- gue, Anton Boller and Jake Bach- man.

A quartet consisting of Harry Newgord, Mrs. Gus O'Krueg, Mrs. Alfred Carpente and Alfred Carpen ter sang "Rest, Sweetly Rest", "It is well with my soul" and "Shall We Gather at the River".

CIVIL WAR VETERAN DIED TUESDAY P. M.

SAMUEL ECKMAN FOUGHT IN 42 BATTLES; NOT WOUNDED

Funeral Services Will Be Held At Klemme Park Thursday

Samuel M. Eckman, Civil War Veteran, passed away Tuesday af- ternoon. July 28, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Mary Church.

Samuel M. Eckman, who was the son of Jacob Eckman and Eliza Pu- ley, was born in Lancaster County, Pennsylvania, on Dec. 13, 1841. There were four boys and three girls in this family. When Mr Eck- man was still very young his moth- er and two sisters died of typhoid fever. His mother was a Quaker, and as a boy Mr. Eckman attended the Presbyterian Sunday School and was commended for his ability memorizing Bible verses. During his last years many of his favorite verses came back to him which he could repeat from memory. He at- tended and received his early edu- cation in the schools near his home.

Mr. Eckman worked on the farm until war broke out and he enlisted from Lancaster County Oct. 3. 1861 in the Second Pennsylvania Cavalry, a part of the Army of the Potomac. At the time of his enlistment he was working for a Copperhead farm er at $10 a month.

His regiment participated in 45 engagements and he was present at 42 of them. He was never wound- ed, never taken prisoner and never in the guardhouse. At the Battle of Gettysburg he was orderly to Doctor Jones. On the second and third days of this great battle he served as a rear guard.

Mr. Eckman had told of some of his experiences. During the Battle of Gettysburg a soldier asked per- mission to pass behind the lines, but Mr. Eckman informed him the orders were to let none pass except wounded, so the soldier walked in- to the woods, fired a shot through his palm, came back and displayed the wound and was allowed to pass.

At the time of his enlistment Mr. Eckman was five feet one inch tall and weighed 100 pounds. By bor- rowing a large pair of boots and filling the heels with socks he was able to make the required height for enlistment in the army.

Following the war Mr. Eckman was discharged July 13, 1865 with the rank of Sergeant of Company D of the First Regiment of Pennsyl- vania Provisional Cavalry Volun- teers. He was discharged at Clouds Mills, Virginia.

Shortly after the war Mr. Eck- man, who was then farming, met with an accident when an ox team ran away and the oxcart ran over his arm, breaking the bone near the elbow, causing a stiff arm for the rest of his life. However, though handicapped he never complained, and was always a hard, willing worker.

On June 6. 1866, he was married to Miss Mary A. Thompson. Seven children were born to them, six of whom are living. They are: Mrs. Henry Strause, Alberta, Canada; Harry Eckman, Minneapolis, Min- nesota; Mrs. W. F. Sponner, Tama, Iowa; Mrs. Henry Church. Klemme, Iowa; Fred Eckman, Yuba City, California, Mrs. J. W. Walker, also of Yuba City, California. A child died in infancy. Twenty grand- children and seventeen great grand children also mourn his departure.

Mr. Eckman and his family came to Iowa in 1872 and located at Des Moines. Here he farmed and rais- ed his family until 27 years ago when he came to Hancock County to live with his daughter, Mrs. Henry Church; Mrs. Eckman hav- ing died at the age of fifty-seven years.

Up until about two months ago Mr. Eckman was quite hearty and hale, despite his advanced years. However. the years had weakened his body and he passed away Tues- day, July 27, 1931, at 3:00 o'clock. Death being attributed to leakage of the heart.

The funeral services, which will be in charge of the Adam-Schafer Post of the American Legion, will be held in the Klemme Park at 2:00 o'clock Thursday afternoon. Rev. Calvin Grosshuesch will preach the funeral sermon. Interment will be in the Klemme Cemetery.

MADISON TOWNSHIP HELD CLUB TOUR TUESDAY

Harry Garner Was In County To Check Up On Potash Tests

Madison township 4-H livestock club members under the leadership of Rudolph Beinert held a club tour on Tuesday of last week with a goo ly number in attendance. All in the tour had a chance to compare their stock with that of other members.

Last year Madison Township fur- nished the champion market pigs and this year they are out to repeat and also to win other awards with their dairy heifers, market pigs and also sow and litters

Mr. Harry Gardner of the N. V. Potash Company and F. D. Thorn- ton, State Chemist, Purdue Univer- sity Experimental farms spent one- half day in the county checking up on the fertilizer experiments being run on corn on the farm of V. A. Cook in Avery township and L. F. Griffen in Liberty township. Mr. Thornton of Purdue University is the man who devised the test where by the excessive amount of phos- phates in plants might be determin- ed, also the nitrogen test on plants.

The tests run on the two plots showed that the application of po- tash to the soil had a direct rela- tionship to the amount of phos- phorus in the corn stalks. In other words where no potash was applied the potash was applied. However the tests are new, but, within the near future, it is hoped that the county agent can go to your farm and tell you just exactly what fertil izer you should use after testing the ground and also the crop taken from the field. Heretofore, he could tell pretty well what was needed espec- ially whether potash was needed o not but this is another step in the right direction.

If enough interest is shown it might be possible to secure the services of Mr Gardener for the first day of the Achievement Show, when he will run tests on cornstalk alfalfa, clover or any plants that you bring in . He should be able to tell you through testing your corn stalk whether your ground has suf- ficient amount of phosphorus or ni trogen r potash. If interested in ha ing tests run on your corn stalks, alfalfa, clover, etc., please let me know so that I can book Mr. Gard- ner for one day of the show.

FATHER OF HEALTH CHAMPION GIVES OPINION OF COW TESTS

Syndergaard Writes Views of The Publicity Given Daughter

The following letter written by N. C. Syndergaard expresses his opinion regarding the tuberculin te.. for cattle and also sets forth his views on publicly given the fact hat his daughter, healthiest farm girl in the United States, had bee.. drinking milk from cows that reacted to the test The letter is printed as a matter of information to readers of this paper.

Cedar Falls, Ia., R. No. 3.
July 19, 1931.
Des Moins Register and Tribune
Des Moines, Ia.
Dear Sirs:

Recently my cattle were tested for tuberculosis Eight out of the herd of 27 reacted to the test. After slaughter the bull was found to be so badly infected that he was sent to the tank. Of the others two head were condemned.

I want the above facts known; I want also to correct the false statemens of the agitators who have sent vicious propaganda into various sections of the state, saying that all of my herd reacted.

They have held my daughter up to the farmer in some sections, even going so far as to print her picture on the front page of their publicity organ, saying "Iowa's Health Champion Drinks T.B. Milk." We certainly regret that she did drink the milk from our herd. We did not know the cattle we infected. We are told that in her exceedingly healthy condition she will likely be able to cast off these germs if they were in the milk.

Our herd was in the test until about four or five years ago when this same bunch of agitators secured an injunction to prevent the testing of cattle in Grundy county. During this time I had bought the bull While the test was being held up the infection to the seven cows no doubt came from this bull. These agitators, by preventing the test, are probably responsible for the spread of tuberculosis in my herd.

I object most strenuously to the manner in which our daughter and our family have been held up to ridicule if not libel, by this group.

We hear a great deal about the various needs of agriculture at this time. Yet the effort of this group group which has dwel upon the test of my cattle seems to be against the tuberculin test. In fact, it seem to be their main effort to induce citizens to ignore the laws of the state and prevent their enforcement

On the other hand what are they doing about our high taxes? Their effort last winter in our legislature seemed to center on fighting the tuberculin test.

What are they doing about co-operative marketing?.

Instead of co-operating in securing the benefits of the fedral marketing act that was passed for the benefit of the farmer in their mareting efforts they are fighting the marketing act and the federal farm board, at a time when conditions are the worst in the history of the farmers in the United States. They are even helping the bards of trade and the livestock exchanges to fight and discredit this help offered by our government. They seem to oppose everything—th e laws of the state of Iowa, President, Hoover, the state college, the Red Crss, the farm bureau and other worthwhile organizations.

I am mighty glad my cattle have been tested and I believe I voice the opinion of the intelligent farmers of Iowa when I write that we farmers who have growing boys and girls on our farms want clean milk from clean herds.

daughter will have clean milk to drink, for I am going to make every effort to keep my herd clean and free from tuberculosis, even though this "anti" group continues its ceas less yapping against us in using this method under the laws of our state, of preventing disease in our families and in our herds.

Earth's Weight Unchanging

The weight of the earth does not change in any material degree. It has been thought that the vast quantities of coal and other minerals taken from the earth would affect its weight, but it does not, because such materials are merely changed in form and are eventually returned to the earth's surface. In order to affect the weight of the earth it will be necessary for such materials to pass out into space beyond the atmosphere, and this is not possible. The only possible manner in which the weight of the earth could be affected, even in the slightest degree, would be in the acquisition of meteorites, which occasionally fall upon it.

Studying Bird Life

The United States Department of Agriculture is continually making investigations of the habits of birds in order to make accurate records, especially of diet. Nearly all birds have economic value, particularly the insect eaters. It is well known that some species will devour bugs that other kinds will not touch, so constant watch is kept out of doors and in the laboratories. Some 80,000 card records are now on file, each representing the analysis of one bird stomach. This seems like a mighty number to kill, but incalculable good is accomplished by the distribution among agriculturists of the information gleaned.

Roosevelt's Democracy

President Roosevelt disliked formality of any kind. St. Loe Strachey relates that on the occasion of his visit to the President, after their talk together, they arrived at a waiting elevator.

Here they stood chatting for several minutes, when Mr. Roosevelt presently remarked, "What are we waiting for?" "For you to go in first." "Oh," said the President apologetically, "I never can remember that I am not free to behave like a gentleman."—Boston Transcript.

BANKERS SUGGEST BANKING REFORMS

Economic Policy Commission of American Bankers Association Recommends Aids to Progress in Banking Business.

FOLLOWING a nation-wide survey of banking conditions and opinion among bankers, the Economic Policy Commission of the American Bankers Association has made the following recommendations for banking betterment:

"Under the category of improved bank management specific improvements we might summarize are:

"(1) Liquidation or consolidation of banks where changed local economic conditions render this desirable;

"(2) Wider affiliation among state banks with the Federal Reserve System;

"(3) Development of limited branch banking where economic conditions and legal authority make this expedient;

"(4) A more general practice, especially lacking among country banks, to analyse the cost of carrying accounts and other operating details and the establishment of proper service charges to make all classes of function profitable;

"(5) A more general application of the theory and practice of secondary reserves;

"(6) Avoidance by banks of undue borrowing merely to increase their own profits by relending at higher rates, or to over-expand credit to local business in order to increase their own business;

"(7) Cooperation among bankers in local communities through city, county or regional clearinghouses so as to promote mutually beneficial conditions and practices;

"(8) The insistence upon higher educational effort and qualifications among employees, especially those to be trusted with executive duties.

Legislative Measures Proposed

"There are some external measures, along moderate legislative and supervisory lines, that we also believe would help strengthen banking. Among these are:

"(i) The broadening in the states of branch banking laws where conditions warrant an extension of this type of banking service to the public;

"(2) The establishment of sound minimum capital funds under which banks will be allowed to operate, which should be materially higher than now prevails in most states; specifically, we believe that the minimum capital with which any new bank shall be chartered, whether state or national, should be at least $50,000;

"(3) The provision of funds and regulations to keep the official staffs of all supervisory departments up to a level of ability and integrity that will universally inspire confidence among bankers whose activities they are empowered to review, and will supply real added defenses to the public interests they are appointed to protect.

"(4) In connection with the policies of bank chartering departments, we would recommend that, even to a greater extent than is now the practice, the greatest care and moderation should be exercised in granting new charters, so as to guard against overbanking or the launching of new banks by unqualified persons, which have doubtless been serious factors in the bank failure situation in the past.

"(5) Also, referring to Federal Reserve practice not requiring legislation, we believe that the Federal Reserve Banks should exercise more freely their rights to examine banks and use their discretionary power to refuse rediscount facilities to banks indulging in objectionable banking methods."

Banker-Farmer Plan

An editorial in Southern Cultivator says: "Favorable comment is being made upon the wisdom and promised results of the farmer-banker agricultural program in Georgia. Industrial leaders and publicists, noting that 115 of the 161 counties in the state have pledged prosecution of the 'live-at-home' farm reform, are regarding the working out of the plan this year as of more interest to American farmers than any developments of the Soviet five-year plan in Russia. Agricultural actuaries are of the opinion that if Georgia farmers, backed by our cooperating bankers and supply men, demonstrate the expected economies and profits of this home-support plan, it will quickly become a contagious custom all over the agricultural areas of the nation. It will be the writing of a new 'declaration of independence' for the individualist farmers of the country, putting them upon solid terms of credit and prosperity without need of recourse to federal or state financial relief measures. The man of the soil who lives year in and year out 'on his own' will stand up in his community as an economic freeman, making his own terms with the world of finance and trade."

A meeting of farmers, bankers, and newspaper men of St. Croix County, Wisconsin, recently organized a drive to promote the growing of alfalfa in such quantity as to save the dairyman the expense of commercial feed, and insure greater dairy profits. It is planned in this campaign to have, within the next three years, at least one acre of alfalfa produced for each dairy cow in the county, or a total of about 40,000 acres.

IOWA STATE FAIR BEGINS ON AUGUST 28TH

This year's Iowa State Fair has just adopted a new slogan in keeping with the times—"Iowa's greatest vacation value".

Exposition officials in announcing the slogan this week have figured that the total cot of a state outing of several days for an average family, will not exceed a few dollars—and that for this amount over 5 million dolars of entertainment, exhibit and exposition feats are provded. Amusement features alone for the eight days are valued in excess of $100,000, the national livestock show embracing over 6.000 prize animals will have a conservative value of over $2,000,000 there will be upwards of half a million dollars worth of agricultural features, not to menton forty acres of machinery exhibits, two buiding filled with women's features, the state educational exposition forty carloads of midway shows and scores of other amusement and educational events covering more than 200 acres.

The small cost of a state fair outing is expected to figure materially this year. in providing record crowds for the fair with every county seat in Iowa and nearly every part of northern Missouri. With such highways, the exposition this year will be only a few hours drive from any part of the tate. Railroads have also announced drastic rate reduction for the entire period of the exposition as low as 1¼ cents per mile for the round trip on Aug. 29 to September 2 inclusive Those who wish to economize even more on vacation can camp out free of charge and all it will cost them will be the 50 cents admission charge to the fair and the cost of their gas to and from the fair. Nearly 25,000 vacation seekers are expected to take advantage of this free camp ground this summer.

The State Fair opens this year on August 28, continuing for eight day and nights thrugh September 4. Officials predict that it will be the largest agricultural and livestock fair in America this year and one of the best expositions Iowa has ever held.

FATHER OF HEALTH CHAMPION GIVES OPINION OF COW TESTS

Syndergaard Writes Views of The Publicity Given Daughter

The following letter written by N. C. Syndergaard expresses his opinion regarding the tuberculin te.. for cattle and also sets forth his views on publicly given the fact hat his daughter, healthiest farm girl in the United States, had bea.. drinking milk from cows that reacted to the test The letter is printe.. as a matter of information to readers of this paper.

Cedar Falls, Ia., R. No. 3.
July 19, 1931.
Des Moins Register and Tribune Des Moines, Ia.
Dear Sirs:

Recently my cattle were tested for tuberculosis Eight out of the herd of 27 reacted to the test. After slaughter the bull was found to be so badly infected that he was sen.. to the tank. Of the others two head were condemned.

I want the above facts known, I want also to correct the false statemens of the agitators who have sent vicious propaganda into var ious sections of the state, saying that all of my herd reacted.

They have held my daughter up t the farmer in some sections, even going so far as to print her picture on the front page of their publicity organ, saying "Iowa's Health Champion Drinks T.B. Milk." We certainly regret that she did drink the milk from our herd. We did not know the cattle we infected. We are told that in her exceedingly healthy con dition she will likely be able to cast off these germs if they were in the milk.

Our herd was in the test until about four or five years ago when this same bunch of agitators secured an injunction to prevent the test ing of cattle in Grundy county. Dur ing this time I had bought the bull While the test was being held up the infection to the seven cows no doubt came from this bull. These agitators, by preventing the test, are probably responsible for the spread of tuberculosis in my herd.

I object most strenuously to the manner in which our daughter and our family have been held up to ridicule if not libel, by this group.

We hear a great deal about the various needs of agriculture at this time. Yet the effort of this group group which has dwel upon the test of my cattle seems to be against the tuberculin test. In fact, it seem to be their main effort to induce citizens to ignore the laws of the state and prevent their enforcement

On the other hand what are they doing about our high taxes? Their effort last winter in our legislature seemed to center on fighting the tuberculin test.

What are they doing about co-operative marketing?.

Instead of co-operating in securing the benefits of the fedral marketing act that was passed for the benefit of the farmer in their marketing efforts they are fighting the marketing act and the federal farm board, at a time when conditions are the worst in the history of the farmers in the United States. They are even helping the bards of trade and the livestock exchanges to fight and discredit this help offered by our government. They seem to oppose everything—th e laws of the state of Iowa, President, Hoover, the state college, the Red Crss, the farm bureau and other worthwhile organizations.

I am mighty glad my cattle have been tested and I believe I voice the opinion of the intelligent farmers of Iowa when I write that we farmers who have growing boys and girls on our farms want clean milk from clean herds.

daughter will have clean milk to drink, for I am going to make every effort to keep my herd clean and free from tuberculosis, even though this "anti" group continues its ceas less yapping against us in using this method under the laws of our state, of preventing disease in our families and in our herds.

Earth's Weight Unchanging

The weight of the earth does not change in any material degree. It has been thought that the vast quantities of coal and other minerals taken from the earth would affect its weight, but it does not, because such materials are merely changed in form and are eventually returned to the earth's surface. In order to affect the weight of the earth it will be necessary for such materials to pass out into space beyond the atmosphere, and this is not possible. The only possible manner in which the weight of the earth could be affected, even in the slightest degree, would be in the acquisition of meteorites, which occasionally fall upon it.

Studying Bird Life

The United States Department of Agriculture is continually making investigations of the habits of birds in order to make accurate records, especially of diet. Nearly all birds have economic value, particularly the insect eaters. It is well known that some species will devour bugs that other kinds will not touch, so constant watch is kept out of doors and in the laboratories. Some 80,000 card records are now on file, each representing the analysis of one bird stomach. This seems like a mighty number to kill, but incalculable good is accomplished by the distribution among agriculturists of the information gleaned.

Roosevelt's Democracy

President Roosevelt disliked formality of any kind. St. Loe Strachey relates that on the occasion of his visit to the President, after their talk together, they arrived at a waiting elevator.

Here they stood chatting for several minutes, when Mr. Roosevelt presently remarked, "What are we waiting for?" "For you to go in first." "Oh," said the President apologetically, "I never can remember that I am not free to behave like a gentleman."—Boston Transcript.

BANKERS SUGGEST BANKING REFORMS

Economic Policy Commission of American Bankers Association Recommends Aids to Progress in Banking Business.

FOLLOWING a nation-wide survey of banking conditions and opinion among bankers, the Economic Policy Commission of the American Bankers Association has made the following recommendations for banking betterment:

"Under the category of improved bank management specific improvements we might summarize are:

"(1) Liquidation or consolidation of banks where changed local economic conditions render this desirable;

"(2) Wider affiliation among state banks with the Federal Reserve System;

"(3) Development of limited branch banking where economic conditions and legal authority make this expedient;

"(4) A more general practice, especially lacking among country banks, to analyze the cost of carrying accounts and other operating details and the establishment of proper service charges to make all classes of function profitable;

"(5) A more general application of the theory and practice of secondary reserves;

"(6) Avoidance by banks of undue borrowing merely to increase their own profits by relending at higher rates, or to over-expand credit to local business in order to increase their own business;

"(7) Cooperation among bankers in local communities through city, county or regional clearinghouses so as to promote mutually beneficial conditions and practices;

"(8) The insistence upon higher educational effort and qualifications among employees, especially those to be trusted with executive duties.

Legislative Measures Proposed

"There are some external measures, along moderate legislative and supervisory lines, that we also believe would help strengthen banking. Among these are:

"(1) The broadening in the states of branch banking laws where conditions warrant an extension of this type of banking service to the public;

"(2) The establishment of sound minimum capital funds under which banks will be allowed to operate, which should be materially higher than now prevails in most states; specifically, we believe that the minimum capital with which any new bank shall be chartered, whether state or national, should be at least $50,000;

"(3) The provision of funds and regulations to keep the official staffs of all supervisory departments up to a level of ability and integrity that will universally inspire confidence among bankers whose activities they are empowered to review, and will supply real added defenses to the public interests they are appointed to protect.

"(4) In connection with the policies of bank chartering departments, we would recommend that, even to a greater extent than is now the practice, the greatest care and moderation should be exercised in granting new charters, so as to guard against overbanking or the launching of new banks by unqualified persons, which have doubtless been serious factors in the bank failure situation in the past.

"(5) Also, referring to Federal Reserve practice not requiring legislation, we believe that the Federal Reserve Banks should exercise more freely their rights to examine banks and use their discretionary power to refuse rediscount facilities to banks indulging in objectionable banking methods."

Banker-Farmer Plan

An editorial in Southern Cultivator says: "Favorable comment is being made upon the wisdom and promised results of the farmer-banker agricultural program in Georgia. Industrial leaders and publicists, noting that 115 of the 161 counties in the state have pledged prosecution of the 'live-at-home' farm reform, are regarding the working out of the plan this year as of more interest to American farmers than any developments of the Soviet five-year plan in Russia. Agricultural actuaries are of the opinion that if Georgia farmers, backed by our cooperating bankers and supply men, demonstrate the expected economies and profits of this home-support plan, it will quickly become a contagious custom all over the agricultural areas of the nation. It will be the writing of a new 'declaration of independence' for the individualist farmers of the country, putting them upon solid terms of credit and prosperity without need of recourse to federal or state financial relief measures. The man of the soil who lives year in and year out 'on his own' will stand up in his community as an economic freeman, making his own terms with the world of finance and trade."

A meeting of farmers, bankers, and newspaper men of St. Croix County, Wisconsin, recently organized a drive to promote the growing of alfalfa in such quantity as to save the dairyman the expense of commercial feed, and insure greater dairy profits. It is planned in this campaign to have, within the next three years, at least one acre of alfalfa produced for each dairy cow in the county, or a total of about 40,000 acres.

IOWA STATE FAIR BEGINS ON AUGUST 28TH

This year's Iowa State Fair has just adopted a new slogan in keeping with the times—"Iowa's greatest vacation value".

Exposition officials in announcing the slogan this week have figured that the total cot of a state outing of several days for an average family, will not exceed a few dollars—and that for this amount over 5 million dolars of entertainment, exhibit and exposition feas are provded. Amusement features alone for the eight days are valued in excess of $100,000, the national livestock show embracing over 6.000 prize animals will have a conservative value of over $2,000,000 there will be upwards of half a million dollars worth of agricultural features, not to mention forty acres of machinery exhibits, two buiding filled with women's features, the state educational exposition forty carloads of midway shows and scores of other amusement and educational events covering more than 200 acres.

The small cost of a state fair outing is expected to figure materially this year in providing record crowds for the fair with every county seat in Iowa and nearly every part of northern Missouri. With such highways, the exposition this year will be only a few hours drive from any part of the tate. Railroads have also announced drastic rate reduction for the entire period of the exposition as low as 1¼ cents per mile for the round trip on Aug. 29 to September 2 inclusive Those who wish to economize even more on vacation can camp out free f charge and all it will cost them will be the 50 cents admission charge to the fair and the cost of their gas to and from the fair. Nearly 25,000 vacation seekers are expected to take advantage of this free camp ground this summer.

The State Fair opens this year on August 28, continuing for eight day and nights through September 4. Officials predict that it will be the largest agricultural and livestock fair in America this year and one of the best expositions Iowa has ever held.

The effort necessary to get your separator thoroughly clean and sweet-smelling is reduced by half when you use Dairymen's Wyandotte Cleanser.

Milking machines

LYNN DRAKE AND MEN SEE RARE BIRD SPECIMENS

Albino Pheasants Found On Wm. Greimann Farm North of Klemme

Lynn Drake, section foreman on the Rock Island here, and his crew of men working north of Klemme Saturday discovered something rather rare in bird life. While working near the Wm. Greimann farm along the track Mr. Drake saw what he first believed to be two white pigeons but as he approached closer he noted that the two white birds were in company with a flock of small pheasants about one-fourth grown. Upon closer observation the men determined they were white pheasants. Mr. Greimann was called and he came to look them over and also classified the birds as young pheasants. The birds were pure white.

The incident wah reported to the Times The birds that the men discovered were albino pheasants. Albino birds, plants, animals or humans are very rare. The whitness is caused by lack of natural pigment in the skin and tissues that otherwise distribute color.

No doubt the State game department would like very much to capture these albino pheasants, as only one or two have ever been seen in Iowa.

Meanwhile the men are going to keep watch over the strange freak of nature and watch further developments.

1,373,892 POUNDS OF CHEESE MADE IN IOWA FACTORIES

Iowa factories produced 1,373,892 pounds of cheese in 1930, it is shown in the annual report of Chief R. G. Clark of the state dairy and food division.

The total cost of production was $253,200.46. This was an average price of Wisconsin daisies on New York markets last year, Clark said

Clark estimated the Iowa consumption of chees at from 10,000, 000 to 12,000,000 pounds a year of which about 90 per cent is imported Asserting that "no state is better prepared to produce the necessary raw materials," Clark expressed belief the state should make its own cheese.

Thirteen cheese factories were in operation in the state in 1930, an increase of two over the previous year.

NATURAL GAS HAS MANY ADVANTAGES

DANGER OF ASPHYXIATION IS NOW ELIMINATED

New Fuel Does Not Contain Deadly Carbon Monoxide Present in Manufactured Gas, and Is Non-Poisonous

No deaths from gas is the promise held out to Klemme when natural gas is introduced here. For while natural gas can suffocate a person under very unusual circumstances. it is in no sense poisonous, and in the rare cases when a person is over come by suffocation from the gas, resucitation is quick and comparatively easy.

In more technical terms. natural gas is non-toxic. It consists of about 96 per cent methane or marsh gas, .8 per cent carbon dioxide and and 3.2 per cent nitrogen and has none of the carbon monoxide in its content that makes manufactured gas so dangerous. Manufactured gas contains from 8 per cent to 9 per cent of the deadly gas

The county coroner at Denver, Col., where natural gas has been in use for some time, after careful study of the effects of the gas and the ecords of death by gas before and after the introduction of the natural product, makes the statement that it is practically impossible to commit suicide by natural gas. He says a person exposed to air in which their is carbon monoxide will die in a half hour's time But natural gas, in which there is none of the deadly gas, can have no effect on a person working in air in which it is present, for hours at a time.

Economy has been stressed as a benefit of the natural gas to the exclusion of some other characteristic The non-poisonous quality is a very important advantage of the gas and its lack of odor is another point in its favor. Local companies odorize the gas to prevent the escape without notice for any length of time, purely in the interests of economy but the odor which they give the gas is not in the least distasteful, and merely an economy precaution.

Pound for pound natural gas has more heat value than any other fuel and is the perfect fuel according to those who have used it.

A short history of the discovery of the natural product is interesting George Washington made the first record of natural gas in 1775 when he found what was then termed a burning spring in western Pennsylvania near the present city of Charlestown In 1820 a salt company in Pittsburgh drilling for salt water, found gas, but didn't know what to do with it and filled in the well seal ing it in with earth again. The first practical use of gas was made in Fredonia N. Y. in 1821, when the residences of the town were lighted with it. Through the next hundred years the use of the gas gradually increased for all purposes.

Find New Supply

About 1921 it was predicted that the use of natural gas was about at an end. The supply was about exhausted, it was believed. But shortly after that time the fields of Texas Kansas, Oklahoma and other oil states were found when drilling for oil and the business took a forward stride that almost outdistances any other in history.

The first reaction of people in the states where the gas is found was that industries would move where the source of fuel supply but time has proven that the fuel must be brought to them and in tre past ten years more than $2,500,000,000 has been invested in the gas lines. This amount increases every day as the 9,586 proposed miles of gas lin for 1931 are laid. In 1929 three times as much natural gas was used in the country as manufactured gas and thih proportion is constantly chang ing as more of the natural gas is used.

The lines are first planned by surveys from the air, then carefully plotted from more detailed and careful surveys of the land chosen for their path. The pipe is built to stand about 600 pounds of pressure and reinforced to make leakage practically impossible. When the line must cross a river the pipes are anchored down and many amazing mechanical feats of engineering are accomplished in the laying of the line.

The lines are run much as the modern railroad with divisions, patrolmen, load dispatchers and a dozen other groupings of officials to see that all goes well and the delivery is in the promised quantity and quality. As it is delivered at station along the way it is repressured to about 400 pounds and pumped out again into the lateral lines which carry it to the various points off the main line of travel.

AROUND THE COUNTY WITH AGENT WEISS

HOPPERS ARE DOING SOME DAMAGE IN HANCOCK CO.

Poisoning Demonstration Held At Peter Frandson Farm Saturday

The grasshoppers, while not serious in Hancock County as yet, do require a little watching so that if they should begin to destroy on a large scale, steps might be taken to control them

Since the rain, which really was a rain, less damage from the hoppers should be the result because the stubble fields will undoubtedly now green up giving the hoppers something to feed on besides corn.

Some damage to the corn has and is being done by the hoppers. Last Saturday morning, a poisoning demonstration was put on at the Peter Frandson farm, north of Britt, as the hoppers were damaging corn. It so happens that after cutting the second crop of alfalfa the hoppers moved out ot the alfalfa, across a barley stubble into the corn. They first attack the silk, eating it off and also eating down into the cob. Wren the silk has been destroyed kernel development ceases. Then too, they destroy the leaves to a great extent.

The poison bran mash used on the Frandson farm consisted of 40 pounds of bran, 2 pounds of sodium fluoride (the sodium fluoride was used because sodium arsenite was not available), 1 gallon of cheap molasses and ½ ounce of amyl ace tate along with 4 or 5 gallons of water.

The sodium fluoride which is the poison was mixed thoroughly into the bran. The molasses, amyl acetate and water were mixed together then poured over the bran and pois on. The mixing is best done with a garden rake and care should be taken that no lumps are present after mixing. This mixing was done in a galvanized tank. Small amounts can best be scattered by the hands as was that at the Frandson farm. Be sure that your hands are thoroughly greased and that the grease is worked under the fingernails or rubber gloves are used when spreading by hand.

At the time of writing this article I cannot give the results of the poisoning as it takes 2 or 3 days before results can be detected.

J. J. Cook of Goodell reports damage from the hoppers and will undoubtedly use poison bran unless it would have to be used where his poultry might come in contact with it. Remember, that the poison bran will not only kill the hoppers, but. also poultry and livestock if sufficient quantities are eaten.

If you are having trouble living in your house because of bees and do not care to save the honey nor the bees, do as others have done, poison them with Cyanagas. J. T. Imlay of Garfield township, after being bothered for 2 or 3 years resorted to the calcium cyanide gas and two minutes after gasng the bees were found dead. Remember to leave doors and windows open if you use the gas in the house or between the joists.

Notice

The township project leaders are asked to remember the meeting of the Women's Committee on August 28th in Garner. Notices will be mailed later.

GAS COLLECTIONS FOR JULY TOTAL $1,150,076

Gas tax collections totaled $1,150,076.97 during July state treasurer Ray Johnson announced today

The July total was an increase of more than $101,353 over the same month last year when receipts amounted to $1,048,723.39. It was an increase also over the June, 1931 collection of $1,144,863.89.

The primary road account received the greatest share of receipts $583,358.99. The secondary road fund received $400,000 and a total of $166,717.98 was apportioned to the refund account.

FARMERS URGED TO REPORT GRASSHOPPER DAMAGE

It is unlikely that grasshoppers will cause severe damage over any extensive area in Iowa and especially in Hancock County this year, but there is a possibility of severe damage next year from these pests if they are not kept in check this year.

The grasshoppers started in 1930 in the Dakotas and Nebraska much the same as they are in Iowa this year. They gradually increased in numbers until this year in some sections they have eaten every green thing in sight—all crops. the leaves off the trees and all kinds of vegetation.

Those who have studied the grasshopper situation in Iowa this year, therefore, believe that the main fear of trouble lies in the possibility of heavy damage in 1932.

All farmers or others who note large numbers of grasshoppers in fields or in any region are asked to report it at once to the County Agent so that he may assembel this information and send it to the state entomologist, Dr. C. J. Drake. In that way, steps may be taken to prevent a heavy outbreak next year.

What's unusual about Dairymen's WYANDOTTE CLEANSER

IT CONTAINS no soap, therefore makes no suds. It is all cleanser, and a better cleanser—that's why it cleans dairy utensils better — why it loosens the unseen dirt that is often responsible for milk souring or having a bad flavor.

Wyandotte Cleanser is as helpful around the kitchen as in the dairy. Try it first on greasy skillets, pots and pans. Then you'll want to use it on dishes and glassware. And when wash-day comes around, let it save you work and soap.

Wyandotte Cleanser will not harm clothes, metal, rubber fittings, or any other surface it cleans. And it won't hurt your hands. It costs less to do your cleaning with Wyandotte. Ask for Dairymen's Wyandotte and accept no substitute. The J. B. Ford Company, Wyandotte, Michigan.

BEN GREIMAN HAS EXTENSIVE AND VARIED ORCHARD

Has About 250 Fruit Trees, Apple And Plum; Other Fruits Too

A trip to the Ben Greiman farm north and west of Klemme at this particular time of year. is indeed a real treat.

Mr.- Greiman has the beginning of one of the best orchards in Hancock county, or perhaps North Iowa. Most of the trees in his orchard are yet quite young, but many of them are bearing most excellent fruit. There are approximately 250 fruit trees in the orchard, the greater number of which are plums.

Mr. Greiman specializes in fruit of the highest quality. A sample from the various trees soon acquaints the visitor with this fact. At the present time Underwood, and Capa plums are ripe, and both are very delicious. Later other varieties will be ripe.

One of the finest trees on the Greiman farm is an "O. K." Cherry. The fruit from this tree is even more delicious and larger than the famous Bing Cherry. There are no more samples of this fruit since the Editor's visit.

Besides the fine plum and apple trees, Mr. Greiman has grapes of several varieties, raspberries, etc.

Mr. Greiman understands nursery thoroughly and does most of his own grafting and other orchard work.

In this orchard are twenty varieties of plums and ten varieties of the best apples.

Mrs. Greiman is not to be outdone by her husband, for she has done some experimental work also and has gone in for raising her own garden seeds. She has a fine vegetable garden and a large flower garden. One of the curiosities that she shows visitors is a row of cotton plants, now in blossom.

We heard "Hank Shield" broadcasting over his justly famous radio station "Kayeffeneff" Tuesday Hank's hired hand was exploiting the qualities of his peaches which they were willing to part with for $1.75 per bushel. Besides the above amount the prospective customer should send 60 cents more for postage, or accept them and pay the express charges. In all the peaches would cost $2.35. At the same time Hank was selling his peaches for $1.75 a throw—plus transportation charge, the Klemme merchants were selling their Alberta free-stone peaches for $1.60 per bushel. Just a saving of 75 cents a bushel on Hank's price delivered. We back this statement by an adv in the Times this week in which the Klemme merchants advertise peaches at $1.60 per bushel!

THE TRUTH ABOUT TAXES

"TAX REVISION" has been a popular political slogan in Iowa for several years and the politicians have talked loud and long about "shifting the burden of taxation". What they mean is that the burden of certain classes of tax payers should be increased so that the burden of other classes may be lighter.

Many plans have been suggested which it is claimed will accomplish this result. The panacea most highly recommended as a cure-all for the present tax situation is a "corporation tax", a "privilege tax", a "gross sales tax" or some other form of tax upon the business of corporations, and especially the public utility corporations. It is claimed by the proponents of this form of taxation that it will "soak the utilities" and relieve a large body of tax payers of a part of their tax burden.

Such a tax might be worthy of serious consideration if a considerable part of the tax payers who would be benefited by it were not also the people who use the service furnished by the utility companies.

A utility company has only one source of revenue—its customers. It must be apparent to anyone that if the operating expenses of a company are increased by a greater burden of taxation, that its customers would be the ones that would foot the bill.

In other words, a tax on the business of a utility company would simply make the company an agency for the collection of taxes from its customers, as the customers would pay the tax as a part of the cost of the service—just as they now pay the taxes of their grocers, their butchers and all the other people they trade with—as a part of the price they pay for the goods they buy.

Such a system of taxation would simply shift a part of the burden to those who use electricity, gas, heat or water furnished by the utility companies. What it would save in property tax would be paid in the cost of service. The result of such a tax would be that the marked reductions in the cost of service which the patrons of the utility companies have enjoyed during the last few years, would be retarded, if not absolutely prevented.

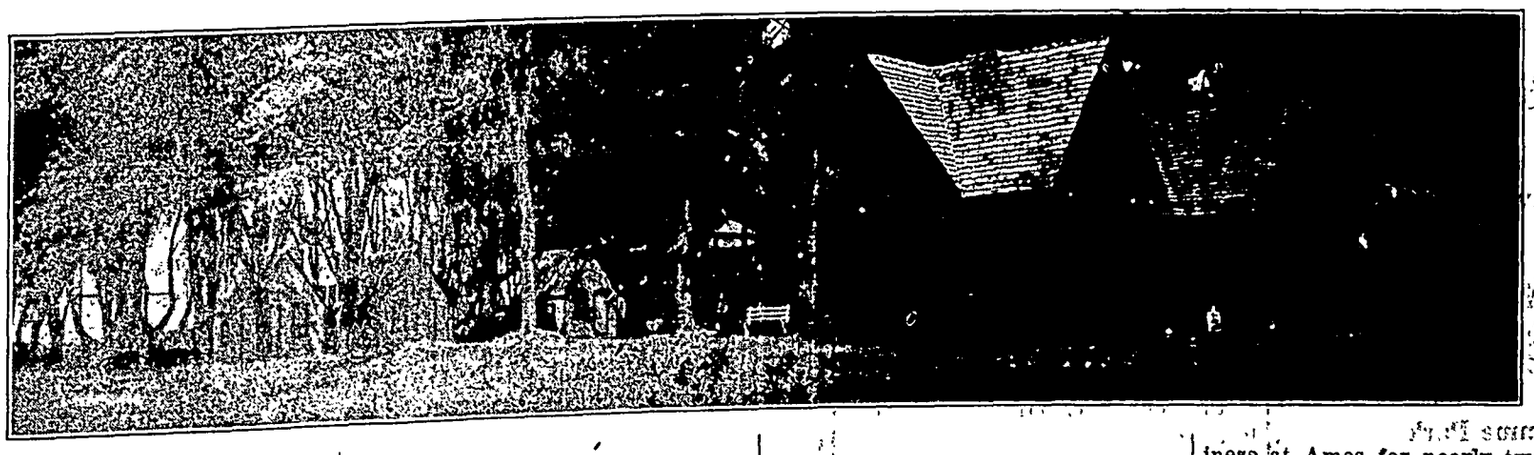
Infant Child Dies

Mr. and Mrs. John Spitler, Jr. lost their new born baby girl last Thursday. The little one was taken to Klemme Friday, where a private funeral service was held in charge of Rev. J. C. Buthman. Interment took place in the Klemme cemetery —Belmond Independent.



The above is a picture of Maple Lodge Camp, Ventura, Iowa, conducted by Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Wiles former residents of Klemme. Maple Lodge is perhaps one of the finest and best conducted tourist camps in all of North Iowa The camp is modern in every way and has many conveniences not found at many camps

In the right foreground of the picture can be seen the extensive and beautiful office and cafe. This building also houses hot and cold shower baths and comfort stations The cafe and dining room is well appointed and is gaining favor as a good place to eat. The cooking and service is of the very best.

Gasoline pumps, oil service, air and water are located in front of the building and to the right and rear a hydraulic greasing service has been installed.

In the left and to the background of the picture you can get a glimpse of the five cabins, which are all equipped with Simmons beds and mattresses. The cabins are cool and are shady. They are equipped for winter use as well as summer.

At the extreme right of the cabins (not shown in this picture) is the service house, where travelers may cook their meals, write letters read or rest.

Mr. and Mrs. Wiles resided in Klemme for several years. Mr. Wile ran a garage business for seven years here and then moved to Ames where he built and ran an oil station for over five years. He sold this and then went into the garage business at Ames for nearly two years. and then came back to Klemme where they lived for a year until they moved to Ventura in March.

Ground for the new camp was broken at Ventura, March 25th, and the service station opened for business Decoration Day. The cafe and cabins were ready for tourist trade July 1st and since that time the camp has been a busy place and guests from coast to coast and nearly every state in the Uunion, as well as foreign countries have enjoyed its comforts.

ARE THE PEOPLE INTERESTED IN RAILROADS?

It should be fairly common knowledge that eight million people in the United States are directly dependent for their livlihood upon the railroads

That the savings of every savings bank depositor or holder of a life insurance policy are invested to a substantial extent in rail road bonds

That four billion dollars of such bonds are owned by savngs banks and insurance companies.

That railroads purchase annually six billion dollars worth of goods produced by our industries and farmers.

That in addition to the foregoing the rail roads perform an indispensable service to the nation day and night.

These few little facts would indicate that the people are interested in railroads and that in a large measure their very prosperity depends upon hem.

WILL WE HAVE A TEN CENT GAS TAX?

The mere fact that the Florida State Senate voted in favor of an 8 cent gasoline tax shows the length to which politicians will go in their endeavor to extract money by special taxation from one class of people or industry.

The gasoline tax has always been tolerated by automobile users because it was the most practical measure to get funds with which to build road. Florida again illustrates the old story of working a willing horse to death.

An eight cent gas tax would make it an absolute hardship for most people to drive an automobile. There is no more sense in taxing gasoline eight cents a gallon than there is in placing a tax of several dollars apiece on every tire purchased. In fact many persons have wondered how tires have escaped taxation as the tax gatherers look around to find new sources of revenue.

When Oregon led the way with a one cent tax no-one dreamed of an eight cent tax but unless the motorists rebel it is entirely probable that they will face a 10 cent tax in many states within the next ten years.

Why It Is Profitable To Grind Your Grain

The object of grinding grain is to INCREASE the digestibility of feeds, and the lack of grinding will often show a LOSS of from 12 to 20 per cent, according to experts of the Minnesota Agricultural Station.

This loss could be mostly eliminated if every animal would thoroughly masticate their food, but unfortunately this is not done.

The fact that loss runs from 12 to as high as 20 per cent fully justifies the common practice of food grinding exclusively.

No long, tiresome waits at this feed mill— we do a good job in a hurry!

RAIN BARREL FAST VANISHING FROM IOWA HOMES

The rain barrel, once an important part of the yard decoration in practically every town and country home, is fast disappearing| Modern chemical science has devised a never failing method that quickly and easily provides rain soft water in the home.

For years back, the cleaning in industry has been done only in rain soft water. The dairymen, meat packing operator, the canner, the makers of ice cream and wherever food is prepared have done cleaning with sudsless cleansing materials which give them rain soft water effective cleaning action and without harm to the washed surface or, to the hands of the worker.

This same Dairymens' Wyandotte Cleanser has been satisfactorily used for many years wherever food is prepared and can now be secured for home use in handy 3 lb. cartons at all Klemme Grocers.

IOWA HAS THIRTY-SIX STATE PARKS

The Iowa Park and Forestry Association was organized in 1901 to encourage the establishment of parks, the protection of wild life, and the creation of one or more State parks. Little interest was manifested in the association, however, and it was not until the creation of the State Board of Conservation in 1917 that success was assured. Now there are thirty-six State parks containing approximately seventy-six hundred acres. The cost has been about half a million dollars. During 1930 there were 1, 800,000 visitors at these parks,half as many as went to all the national parks during the same year.

These parks, with their forts, their streams and bridges, their caves and ledges and dens, almost defy classification. Each one is different from the others. Some are primarily historic while others are memorial, recreational, or scientific All of them are scenic. The story of Iowa's State parks is told by Jacob A Swisher in "The Palimpsest" for June. 1931.

Fort Atkinson and Fort Defiance are clearly historic sites. The former was erected in 1840 to protect the Winnebago from the Sioux and Fox Indians. Fort Defiance was erected near Estherville during the Sioux outbreak of 1862. Parks such as Lewis and Clark, Dolliver, Lacey Keosaqua, Palisades-Kepler, Lepley Theo. F. Clark. Ambrose A. Call, Pammel, and Bixby each have some human association which may justify their being called memorial parks.

There are at least 70 lakes in Iowa and several enchanting State parks have been established upon their shores. Silver Lake, Clear Lake and Wall Lake, each has its special appeal. The parks contain plants and animals once common but now fast disappearing In some of these parks are reminders of that far distant past when the glaciers covered Iowa. Pilot Knob, for example, spent a million years in the North before it was carried south by the ice to Iowa.

Uses Natural Gas

Natural gas for cooking is being used in the country home of Frank Dominy near Goodell. He is the first Iowa farmer to have this priviledge. The main gas pipe goes right thru his yard, consequently it was not far to pipe into his kitchen He has expressed his opinion that it is a splendid improvement and not so expensive. Mr. McMerritt walks the pipe line from Clarion to Mason City twice each week to inspect it. On Tuesday and Friday he arrives at the Dominy home late in the afternoon, has supper lodging and breakfast in their home and then continues on his inspection trip to Mason City and takes the train back to Clarion. Mr. McMerritt states that he crosses 348 fences on his trip.

TERRIBLE THIRST OF FISHERMEN PERSISTS

Ringstead Dispatch: At the rate at which pre-prohibition beer is being recovered from the lakes around Fairmont, since the drouth has lowered the water level, there seems to be more fishing for beer than for fish. The beer was lost by fishermen before the days of prohibition when it was the usual custom for a fishing party to visit a saloon and get a sack of beer for bait. It is likely prohibition agents will have to drain the lakes around Fairmont and confiscate this liquor or the "hunters" will splash all of the water out on the shore and kill the fish.

A NEW STUNT IN ADVERTISING

Speaking of the shrewd 'blind ad' the Des Moines Register gave the owners of sign boards pictured in the Sunday paper recently the Livermore Gazette says:

"And do you imagine the firms represented on these billboards are going to sue the daily for libel for holding them up to public criticism for obscuring these scenes? Would you? On the contrary how much would you pay them for exposing you and your wares to the public in this manner? That stunt is about the finest we have seen pulled in the advertising game in many a day Condemning a man and having him pay you for it and at the same time receiving the plaudits of the public for holding him up as a bad exampl is a piece of diplomacy that the average newspaper man is not gifted with. We take off our hat to them."

RED MITES

Many times during the summer we have poultry troubles that seem to be unanswerable. No worms, no coccidiosis—the birds just don't do well. The hen flock is not laying well; the pullets don't eat well. We think of all the mysterious diseases we ever heard about and start treating the birds for everytring. Many times it is not the birds we should work on.

A flock of poultry, living in a hen house infested with mites will not do well. The poultry mite is a blood sucker. They work at night when the birds are on the roost. They are the bed bug of the chicken Fight them continually during the summer.

Painting the roost every two weeks or so with used crank-case oil will eliminate this source of trouble. Don't dilute this oil with with kerosene. Put it on thick. There are many commercial preparations on the market that will do a good job and will not have to be used as often.

Can You Imagine the Granting of Business Credit Without A Bank Reference ?

Many assume that by paying cash for everything they are deserving of credit courtesies if and when required.

This is not always true. When you habitually buy for cash, strange as it may seem, there is little basis for credit. When you pay by check, whether you realize it or not, you are establishing the basis of all business credits— because one of the first things asked for in opening a monthly account is bank references.

In inviting you to open a Checking Account at this Bank for your convenience in paying bills, we have these advantages very much in mind for you. It is just another way of helping you get ahead by keeping an accurate record of outgoing funds.

The next time you are in the neighborhood, come in and let us explain still other ways in which this sound, conservative bank can serve you.

ALKALIES PLAY IMPORTANT PART IN DAY'S ACTIVITY

Alkalies, and the result of their action, play an important part in your daily activitiy even though you may not be aware of the fact.

The leather in your shoes was tanned by an alkali. The wool in your clothes was washed with a milk alkali, and when made into cloth was again washed so that it would take the dye color evenly. The baking soda used in your home kitchen is an alkali.

The active part of the soap with which you wash clothes is an alkali You need a certain amount of soap for washing clothes and all soft surfaces because the suds acts as a carrier for the dirt particles. But for washing firm surfaces, such as dishes, pots, pans. dairy utensils, separator parts, and milking machines, better cleanliness is secured with less work if a suitable alkali is used without any suds. Hard surfaces can be more quickly cleaned and rinsed when suds are not present, and when a cleanser is used that is all cleanser—a cleanser that contains no filler, and that makes no suds.

For dairy and home cleaning you can now secure handy 3-lb cartons of Dairymen's Wyandotte Cleanser an effective alkali cleanser which is standard the world over in the dairy industry. Dairymen's Wyandotte cleanser is sold by all Klemme Grocers.

STATE BOARD WILL CUT ASSESSMENT

Livestock Values to be Changed According to Plan Now Under Consideration

More work for the county auditors. The valuations of Iowa livestock for taxation will be reduced approximately 15 million dollars to make valuations conform more near il to current prices, the state board of assessment and review said Saturday.

Reduction will be made from figures sent the board by county officials. The schedule by which assessors judged livetock values was made before the drop in livestock prices.

"The board feels that the sharp drop in livestock prices which occurred almost immediately after the schedule was adopted justified a decrease in order that the assessments shall be in accordance with actual value as of January 1, 1931, Dr Reynolds said.

The reduction will be approximately 10 per cent

Assessors undoubtedly made a more thorough listing of livestock than in previous years, board members said, because total valuations were not materially decreased although the livestock schedule used was lower than that one in 1930.

Valuation made by the assessors conform closely to the schedule which the board adopted last December.

Reduction by counties will be announced later in connection with the board's general equalization of real estate assessment.

The reduction will be made by the counties which have been assessed on a lower basis than that suggested by the board, or counties which are arbitrarily reduced the valuation of their livestock through action of county supervisors.

The valuation of Iowa livestock for taxation during the previus year was reported as $132,518,139. The present figure before the reduction is approximately $131,750,000.

Th reduction will be made by the board in accordance with efforts to prevent agriculture from bearing unjust tax burdens

POTATOES SHOW DROUGHT INJURY

Des Moines, Iowa, August 19.—The total production of all potatoes in Iowa is estimated at 3,825,000 bushels or a 40 per cent drop from the estimate of July 1st. according to figures collected by the Iowa Horticultural Society and the Iowa Weather and Crop Bureau. This will mean that the potato crop in Iowa will be approximately one-half as large as the average for the past 10 years.

The apple crop will be approximately 50% of a normal crop. This will mean slightly more than 50% of the average of the past ten years Most vegetable crops show a better condition than potatoes but will be considerably under normal.

CHICAGO "GANGSTERS" VISIT IN ALGONA.

One of Algona's well known barbers was scared out of about ten years' growth Monday night while sitting out on his lawn on West State street. It seems that a large car bearing Illinois license plates drove up and stopped a little ways away. The dome light was turned on and the Algonian could see three men in the car. One of the men set up something on a tripod and kept aiming it at various objects. To the local man it looked very much like a machine gun and he had visions of a gangwar occuring right in his own yard. Needless to say he didn't go up and ask the strangers what their business was. They drove away after a few minutes and the barber drew a sigh of relief. —Republican

IOWA HUNTERS TO HAVE OPEN BIRD SEASON

Commision Can Regulate Number Of Open Days Under New Law

Des Moines, Iowa, Special: — That there will be an open season on pheasants in the northern cuonties of Iowa this year was recently decided by the state game and fish commission, dates to be announced soon.

Law Changes

Under the new law which went into effect April 16, 1931, the commission has the power to temporarily shorten or close seasons on any species of furbearing animals, fish game, or protected birds.

Last season, 1930, the open season for ringnecks was for five days November, 1, 5, 6, 14 and 15, with thirty-three counties in Northern Iowa participating. The bag limit per day was three birds. A change in the law this year is to the effect that the total bag limit on pheasants during the open season cannot on any one day exceed the legal bag limit per day for the number of open dates.

Another important change made in the law is to the effect that the open season on waterfowl in Iowa must conform to the federal law, making the the open season this year from 13:00 o'clock noon October 1 to sunset December 31. Last the open season started thirty minutes before sunrise September 16 and closed December 31.

Get License Early

Attention is directed to the importance of hunters immediately securing their 1931 hunting licenses at their county recorders in order that the work in these offices may be lightened. Many hunters wait until the opening day to secure their hunting licenses with a resulting "rush" at the lats minute. The resident runting license in Iowa is $1; non-resident is $15

BUTTER MARKET SHOWS MODERATE IMPROVEMENT

Des Moines, Iowa, August 19.—Comparatively light receipts of butter at central markets during tre month of July have resulted in cold storage holdings on August 1st that are 30 million pounds less than last year and 23 million pounds less than the five year period average, according to information which has been received by the Iowa Department of Agriculture.

This decrease in supplies, together with a fairly good consumption demand, has been responsible for a moderate increase in the price of butter. The decrease in the make of butter has probably been due to dry weather and short pastures in some of the heavy butter producing sections. Unless there is a decided change in feed condition during the fall months, the advances during the past few days should be maintained according to the view of department officials.

The total storage holding of eggs and poultry are less than last year and approximately the same as the five year average there by making the outlook more favorable in poultry and eggs as well as with butter.

SPEGIAL ELECTION NEXT WEDNESDAY

IOWA GAS DISTRIBUTING CO. ASKS FOR 25 YEAR FRANCHISE

Polls Will Be Open At Town Hall From 8 A. M. To 8 P. M.

A special election will be held in Klemme next Wednesday, August 26 at which time the voters will cast their ballot either in favor of or against giving the Iowa Gas Distributing Co. a twenty-five year franchise to distribute and maintain natural gas service in the town of Klemme.

Every voter should go to the poll which will be open fro 8:00 a. m umtil 8:00 p. m. and cast their vote as they see fit.

This special election has been given a lot of publicity and every voter should be familiar with the proposition. A sample ballot has been published, including this week for four consecutive weeks. If you have not already done so, read the ballot carefully and know just how and what you are voting for. Tho proposed rates have been published and seem to be in line and in some instances lower than other towns which have voted a franchise.

Having natural gas in a small town like Klemme is an improvement well worth considering. The costs of the special election are all td be paid for by the company. The town invests absolutely nothing in the project if it is carried through, and on the other hand. will gain additional revenue in the way of taxes which the Company will pay. No one is required to use the gas, but people who would like to have the gas in town will find it convenient and economical.

Remember, Wednesday, August 26th is the date of the special election.

THE OLD MEDICINE SHOW

Fairmont, Minn., Sentinel

Remember the ancient medicine shows where they had music, maybe a magician, and a ballyhoo by a leather chested "professor" who then tried to sell you Kickapoo Indian vermifuge, liver purifier and lightning rods That is what the radio program of 1931 has developed into—perhaps we should say degenerated. Twenty four hours a day relays of announcers ballyhoo everything from "peanut butter endorsed by the American Medical association" to "Hellova" watches. In the morning, before the musicians can be dragged from the feather, the phonograph record is called upon to provide the medicine show music. Between each record the announcer expatiates on the virtues of tank heaters, sanitary swill barrels, brooder stoves, maybe a ride on the bus. The records are often announced as "special electrical transcription!" A local house is selling them for ten cents. Later in the morning a cargo of sopranos—they sing very cheaply—is imported, and the records are shelved until next mornmorning. The would-be Galli Curcis yodel a few minutes , then the announcer does his stuff for pancake flour. Along in the afternoon the tenors and baritones take up the burden of selling yeast cakes, hog purifier, tooth paste, horse collars oleomargarine, what not. But it's in the evening that the medicine show bursts forth in all its glory. The nation wide chains are hooked up and the big noises of the musical world, with much dog on the introductions, exchange their talent for the medicine man's money. The orchestras and sloists go into high speed, but between every selection no matter how notable the performer, comes the plea, "buy this, buy that." There aren't enough channels to hold all the super-salesmen. It's the old medicine show.

LOOKING FOR THINGS

Did you ever stop to think how much time we waste every day looking for things which have been mislaid? We misplace a letter o ra document and spend half an hour looking for it. Often several minutes are consumed searching for a hat or a pair of spectacles. Some frequently forget where they have parked the car.

This waste of time through lack of care in putting things in their proper places was called to our attention by a very timely article in a newspaper which has just come to our desk. It is such a fine article, so full of good common sense and practical advice that we shall clip it out for our scrap book at once.

Now where in the dickens did we put those scissors?—Renwick Times

HARRISON SHERIFF MEETS A REAL HOBO

Out at Logan, Harrison county, Sheriff Cross encountered a rather unique specimen of human driftwood. He gave his name as Thomas H. Jamison and claimed residence in Cleveland, Ohio. He had been loitering around a corn field and the neighbors becoming suspicious asked the sheriff to make an investigation. Sheriff Cross escorted the stranger to the county jail and immediately ordered him to get ready for a bath, that the sheriff thot was needed. The gentleman proceeded to remove two overcoats, two coats, two pairs of overalls, several yards of burlap wrapped around his body and two shirts. He also wore four-buckle overshoes and the pockets of his clothing were filled with junk of all kinds. Considerable difficulty was experienced in giving the bath as the man was afraid he would take cold. He was given clean clothing to start out on the completion of his journey to Phoenix, Arizona whither he said he was bound.—Buffalo Center Tribune.

HOUSE THE PULLETS EARLY

Commercial poultrymen all over the United States have found that good egg production from pullets is not possible as long as the birds are given range. It is not only advisable but it is necessary that the pullets be housed about the time they are starting to lay. Most people who are not primarily dependent on poultry for making their living haven't as yet learned this lesson, and a great many times we hear the statement made, "I have never been able to get my pullets to lay before Christmas". It is often difficult to get these people to admit that anyone gets egg production from pullets in the fall months, regardless of time of hatch.

Pullets are like children—as long as they have all outdoors in which to run around, they really enjoy themselves. But we are keeping chickens for profit, not pleasure. The reason that we can't get egg production from pullets as long as they are on the range, or are permitted to have free range is that they don't eat that slightly addition al amount of feed that it takes to produce eggs in profitable numbers

Leghorns should be housed at four and a half to five months of age, depending on maturity. Heavy breed pullets should be housed at five and a half to six months of age. All pullets regardless of age should be housed by October 15, and certainly not later than November 1.

It is necessary to get the feed and the chickens together and keep them together because they will immediately eat two or three pound more feed per hundred pullets per day when in confinment than when on the range and it is this addition al two or three pounds of feed that increases the egg production.

A good procedure is to house the pullets and keep them confined to the house for a month. Then if the weather is nice they can be turned out about four o'clock in the afternoon, gradually increasing the time when they are allowed out until they are being turned out at noon. Laying hens should be confined the year around until noon for most profitable egg production.

WHAT A CHANCE!

Cheer up.
You have two chances—
One of getting the germ
And one of not.
And if you get the germ
You have two chances—
One of getting the disease
And one of not.
And if you get the disease
You have two chances—
One of dying
And one of not.
And if you die,—
Well, you still have two chances.

ANTHRAX

Over 100 cases of anthrax in animals were reported from a western county in Iowa last week. The disease is due to the anthrax bacillus Nearly all animals, domestic and wild, are subject to anthrax. in a greater or lesser degree. Sheep and cattle are most often the sources of the disease in humans but horses, dogs, goats, and hogs may contract and convey the disease. About 140 cases of anthrax occur annually in the United States. One case resulting in death occured in Iowa in February of the present year, one in 1929. Contact with infected animals, or infected hides or wool are fruitful sources of the disease and many infections come from the use of cheap shaving brushes which have not been properly sterilized.

Although anthrax is primarily a disease of animals, like so many other animal diseases it may be transmitted to man. No animal disease is more easily transmitted than anthrax, hence it is vital that extreme care should be taken by persons who come in contact with animals ill with disease or with the carcasses of animals who have died with it.

Anthrax in man presents two types: the superficial, in which sores or ulcers appear on the surface of the body, and an internal type in which the disease may attack the lungs or intestines. Both types are accompanied by general symptoms. Anthrax may be contracted by direct of indirect contact with animals ill with the disease by breathing infected dust or by swallowing the organisms. Biting flies may be a factor in the spread of anthrax from animal to animal and from animal to man .

In the Superficial type the bacillus gains entrance through small breaks in the skin. In from one to three days, itching occurs at the point of entrance, followed by a red spot resembling a flea-bite. A small blister forms soon afterward which contains a bluish fluid. A black spot then appears in the middle of the sore which rapidly becomes gangrenous. Fresh crops of such blisters often appear which undergo the same change. When sores are located on the eyelids they will leave much scar tissue, resulting in marked deformity. There is little or no pain. Pus is not present. General or systemic disturbance usually accompanies the progress of the surface lesions. Headache, nausea, and pains in the muscles appear. The heart becomes weak and rapid.

The Pulmonary form manifests itself as a pneumonia with ulcerative changes in the lungs. The Intestinal type begins with debility, easy fatigue, depression of spirits and most often with a chill. Bleeding from the mouth and nose follows. Vomiting is followed by a bloody diarrhea.

Persons who know that they have been in contact with infected animals should be on the watch for the appearance of pimples on the body or face and should seek appropriate treatment which means the use of anti-anthrax serum promptly and in large dosage.

A WHOLE KITCHEN

full of smiles

BRING the box of Dairymen's Wyandotte Cleanser in from the dairy and try it in the kitchen—on greasy skillets and pans. Don't stop there, but wash your glassware and dishes with it also. It will seem like a miracle. Wyandotte loosens the dirt that other cleansers skip over. Wyandotte leaves everything clean and sweet-smelling and with half the work.

In the dairy, Wyandotte Cleanser cleans and sweetens utensils, separators, and milking machines until they're free from that unseen dirt which often sours milk.

Wyandotte will not harm the hands or any surface it cleans. And it costs less to do your cleaning with it! The J. B. Ford Company, Wyandotte, Mich.

WORM YOUR FLOCK THIS BETTER WAY—

The Gizzard Capsule

Intestinal worms live upon the food fowls consume, starving the birds, retarding growth, lowering vitality and reducing egg production. Don't feed the worms. Simply put a GIZZARD CAPSULE in each bird's mouth. Being insoluble, the GIZZARD CAPSULE releases the medicine where the correct dose passes directly into the intestines upon the worms. 5 times as effective as worm medicines given in the food or given in capsules that dissolve.

— MORE WINTER EGGS —

Give your young birds a chance to make fine, big cockerels and early laying pullets. Worm all your fowls, particularly the layers. Just as valuable for turkeys.

ARE TELEPHONE RATES TOO HIGH IN KLEMME?

Meeting Will Be Held In Town Hall Friday Evening To Talk Rates

The tendancy of the times seems to be a lowering of prices wherever they can be cut. Groceries, meats, dry goods, hardware and, in fact, nearly everything we buy has been cut in price the past year. Many commodities have been cut as much as thirty to fifty per cent, some not as much and some not at all.

In view of reductions in other lines brings up the question of the present charge on telephones in the community. A number of telephones have already been taken out this summer because the user felt he was paying too much for the service when other items of expense were lower in proportion.

In order to talk over matters pertaining to telephones in Klemme and community, a committee of business men and farmers are calling a general meeting of telephone patrons in Klemme and community to talk things over at a meeting Friday evening, August 28th, to be held at the Town Hall in Klemme. All who are interested in this matter should attend the meeting.

BARBERS REDUCE RATES ON HAIRCUTS AND SHAVES

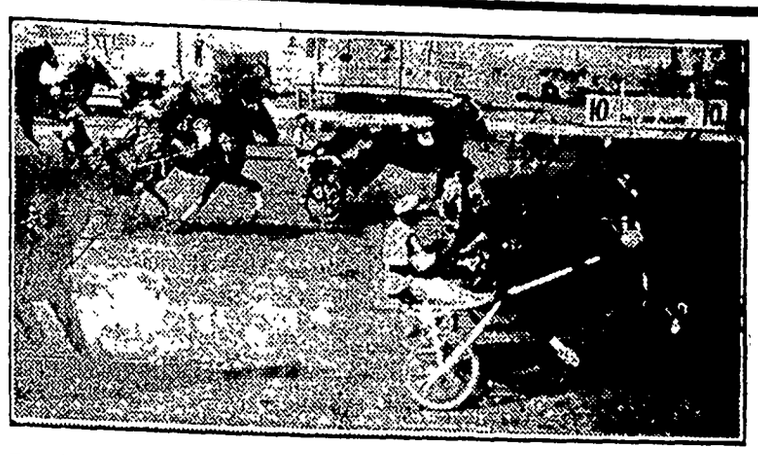
NEW RACING SYSTEM AT FAIR



Des Moines, Special—The new barrier system of starting horse races is to be inaugurated for the first time this summer in the $20,000 harness and running race classics which will headline the Iowa State Fair for five days, August 29, 31, September 1, 2 and 3. This new system does away with delays in starting races and speeds up the afternoon's program by at least a half hour, officials declare. The horses will start behind a rubber tape barrier which does away with the unnecessary scoring under the old method of starting. One of the largest entry lists in many years will start in the state fair speed classics this summer with the prospect of several new records being set.

KITTENBALL TEAM AGAIN BEATS KANAWHA TEAM

Darkness Ends Tie Game With Belmond Monday Evening

The Klemme Kittenball team played the Kanawha team there last Friday evening and walked away with the long end of the score 13-6. This is the second game the locals have played for several months and they seem to be hitting a real stride The first of the season they did not show up so good and interest in the game dropped off and was but recently revived.

Monday evening of this week the boys went to Belmond and played the fast Fireman's team to an 8-8 tie. The boys got off to a poor start and allowed Belmond 3 runs in the first inning but after that the settled down and played decidedly better ball than their opponents. The last few innings of both the games were played in darkness which made it hard for the players because of their inability to see the ball.

JUICES MIX EASILY, CHEAPLY

Combinaions Make Delicious Summer Drinks

Delicious summer drinks made from a combination of home made fruit juices are easily and cheaply mixed.

The addition of one or two lemon to a quart of rhubarb juice or fruit juice gives all the lemon flavor necessary in making a quantity to serve 12 to 18 people By chopping lemon peeling and pounding it with a potato masher more flavor may be secured because of the extraction of the oil of lemon flavor. Mint flavor improves some drinks and may be secured by pounding or slightly bruising mint leaves and combining with the fruit juices.

Any juice drained from canned fruit, especially cherry and raspberry, gives a good color and flavor to drinks. Cold whey drained from cottage cheese may be added to fruit drinks in the proportion of one cup whey to two cups fruit juice. The added flavor thus obtained is pleasing and gives some additional food value. Cold tea may be added to fruit drinks in the proportion of one cup to two cups of juice if the drink is to be used by adults.

Rhubarb juice flavored with lemon is proving a popular drink. To extract rhubarb juice, select stalks of rhubarb. Wash and cut into smal peices with peeling One gallon of rhubarb will make five cups of juice. Put into a vessel which may be covered, using only the water which drops off from the washing Place in a medium oven, 300 degree and cook. Turn into a colander and let the juice drip out. To can, bring juice to a boil adding one cup of sugar to a quart. Pour boiling hot into sterilized jars, make a tight seal and process five minutes in a boiling water bath wth two inches of water over the top. Pint jars are the most suitable size for canning the juice.

URGES TESTING AUTO LIGHTS

Would Prevent Many After-Dark Accidents, Kuerth Believes

Many of the auto accidents occurring after dark are due to faulty lighting, believes William Kunerth associate professof of physics at Iowa State College. A good headlight should be efficient, glareless and distribute light evenly.

Mr. Kunerth believes the state should maintain testing stations at convenient places thruout the state where cars might be tested at regular intervals Such stations, he says, might well be operated under the state Highway commission and could be run at a very low cost.

A REAL MAN

Eldora Herald Ledger: After all is said and done, you have to hand it to the average Iowa farmer. He suffers all kind of hardships, works like a horse to get his crops in, nurses them carefully through the early growing stages, then watches heat and drought damage them, and watches the price of what's left of his crop slide downward And still he is able to produce a smile at the slightest provocation and isn't ready to turn the country over to the reds.

It takes a real man to stand that kind of gaff, and who in spite of his trouble can see through the clouds to the silver lining some place ahead It makes us all glad we live in Iowa among such stout-hearted people.

CO-OPERATIVE FARMING

In an arid country, so rocky that it compares favorably with the slope of the Rocky Mountains, a rancher has tried to eke out a living for more than 50 years. With him lives his hired man who has been with him that length of time also. One day a visitor asked the old rancher how he managed to pay the old hand his wages.

"It's this way," said the rancher. "I hired him for two years and gave him a mortgage on the ranch to guarantee his wages. At the end of two years he got the ranch, and I went to work for him on the same terms. For 50 years the ranch has passed back and forth every two years and neither of us has drawn a cent of wages. So we made it pay."

Women's Exposition.

Des Moines, Special—Women of Iowa will have a complete exposition of their own covering almost every field of feminine interest as a feature of the 1931 Iowa State Fair which opens here, August 26 for eight days.

At the request of State Federation of Women's Clubs, Women's Farm Bureaus and other leading women's organizations, the State Fair Board has turned over two of the largest buildings on the fair grounds to be devoted to women's features exclusively.

One section of the exposition will be given over to exhibits of interior decorating, home economics, home improvement, farm women's projects, child welfare, education and art. Another phase will embrace open forums, lectures, demonstrations, and round table discussions of leading subjects of interest to women including little theatre plays, pageants, style shows, cooking demonstrations, child health, home furnishing, landscaping and citizenship.

It is expected that more than 200,000 women from all parts of Iowa will attend the exposition, making it the largest event of its kind ever held in the state. Exhibits and programs will be open to the public continuously for eight days from August 26 to September 4th.

Feature Farm Exhibits.

Des Moines, Special—More practical farm features than ever before will be embraced in the two hundred acres of exhibits headlining the coming Iowa State Fair here, Aug. 26 to Sept. 4, it was announced today.

Thirty-seven county farm bureaus are cooperating in presenting the thirty-seven leading agricultural projects that have attracted most attention this year—including alfalfa growing, legumes, soil testing and improvement, weed eradication, small crops, and corn yield tests. The women's farm bureaus will present such projects as home furnishing, clothing, nutrition, child care, and home management. Not only will there be exhibits showing methods used and results achieved in each of these projects, but they will be made the subject of demonstrations and lectures by leaders from each county.

These will be in addition to exhibits by Iowa State College, the Iowa Dairy Council, the Vocational Agriculture department, county agricultural displays, individual farm exhibits of prize produce, and special educational exhibits by leading organisations.

OLE'S CONTRIBUTION

It wasn't a Missouri editor but a printers devil who was going thru his experience on "making up forms The paper was late and the boy got the galleys mixed. The first part of the obituary notice of a pecunious citiisen had been dumped in the forms and the next hand full came off a galley describing a recent fire It read like this: "The pall bearers lowered the body to the grave and it was consigned to the flames; There were few if any regrets for the wreck had been an eye-sore to the town for years. Of course there was an individual loss but that was fully covered by insurance." The widow thinks the editor wrote the obituary that way because the deceased partner of her joys and sorrows owed him five years subscription.

WANDERING TINSMITH SERVED IOWA PIONEERS

In the early days the wandering tinsmith and general handy-man served the pioneer settlers of Iowa, Mender of pots and pans, repairer of clocks, barber for the whole family, this wandering Jack-of-all-trades was welcome whenever and wherever he came Such a man was Erik Magneson Kjyte who traveled about with his faithful dog in the Norwegian settlements in Wisconsin Minnesota, Illinois, and Iowa. The story of Kjyte is told by P. J. Tjernagel in the April issue of "The Palimpsest."

Kjyten as he was known to those he served, carried his tools, a charcoal stove, and a supply of charcoal packed on his back. In his right hand he carried a carpet bag containing his personal effects. As he walked from home the fire was not extinguished, and a faint cloud of always announced the arrival of Kjyten to the settlers. The, stove of course had to be so placed in the pack as to minimize the danger of fire.

But changes soon took place in the settlements. Railroads came to the very doors of the pioneers. Tinners, barbers, jewelers an dother artisians opened their shops in the villages. The settlers built larger homes and barns. Good old Kjyten who formerly had been needed so badly by all, was now superfluous. The pioneers welcomed him but they had no work for him. The pots and pans were already mended by the local tinners, the clock repaired by the jeweler, the childen's hair was cut by the town barber. Even the newspaper disseminator of news from distant settlements. After a time he was seen no more.

THE TRUTH ABOUT TAXES

THE cry for "Tax Revision" has been raised by the politicians because of the growing discontent over the tax situation in Iowa and the demand for relief from the ever increasing burden of taxation.

The various plans which have been proposed to shift a part of this burden from one class of tax payers and place it on another, will not solve the problem—the only real and satisfactory solution will be a general reduction in taxes for all classes of tax payers.

To accomplish this all governmental agencies—state, county, municipal and school—must stop the extravagant expenditure of public money which has been so prevalent during the last few years. This will only happen when the people become fully informed in regard to the increasing costs of government and insist on a retrenchment in public expenditures.

The great majority of the people fail to realize how the costs of government have increased in Iowa in the last twenty years. The following figures are worthy of serious study and consideration by every tax payer of the State.

	Population of Iowa	Total Taxes Collected for All Purposes, State, County, or Local	Taxes Per Capita
1910	2,224,771	$ 32,500,045.88	$14.61
1920	2,404,021	97,100,882.63	40.39
1930	2,467,900	110,307,034.39	44.69

As shown by the foregoing table, the population of Iowa increased approximately 10% between 1910 and 1930 while the costs of government increased approximately 240%—or for every dollar spent for taxes in 1910 there was over three and a third dollars spent in 1930.

Isn't it about time for the politicians to take heed of the situation and talk less about "Tax Revision" and more about "Tax Reduction"?

YOU WOULDN'T CUT A FIELD OF GRAIN WITH A CRADLE

IT WOULD take too much time and effort to harvest with a cradle in these days of binders and combines. It would cost too much money. And for exactly the same reasons, no one who has used Dairymen's Wyandotte Cleanser would consider using any other cleanser!

Have you tried Wyandotte Cleanser? You'll never know how clean dairy utensils can be until you do. It takes Wyandotte to loosen that unseen dirt that often sours milk or gives it a bad odor and lowers its quality.

The quickest way to find out just how good Wyandotte Cleanser is, is to have your wife wash the dairy utensils with it. Once she tries it, she'll want to use it in the house. And she'll find it's just the stuff for washing clothes and all the other things around a house that take a woman's time.

Wyandotte is all cleanser. It contains no soap — therefore makes no suds. It will not taint milk or harm metal or rubber fittings or anything it cleans, including the family washing. It leaves everything clean, fresh, and sweet. And it costs less to clean with Wyandotte.

Wyandotte is so good, it has won first place at the last four world's fairs. And more creameries and cheese factories use it than any other cleanser. Won't you just try it, yourself? The J. B. Ford Company, Wyandotte, Michigan.

THIS MAY SOUND LIKE A "FISH STORY," BUT—

All of the "big ones" do not get away, at least one of the granddads of all fsh. for Iowa at least, failed to make his escape from a Decorah fisherman recently. But here is the story as told by the Decorah Journal:

'Will Longstreet caught last week the largest rainbow trout of which there is any record in Iowa, according to W. E Albert, state game warden of Lansing, to whom Will showed his splendid catch. The fish weighed 5 pounds. He measured 32 inches long and had a girth of 14 inches.

"The catch was made in Village creek. near Waukon. The huge fish struck at artificial flies several times, but would not take hold. Finally Will used a piece of chub and the great fish grabbed it immediately. It was a great job landing him. He fought to get away even after he was up on shore.

"After catching the state record rainbow trout Longstreet went back to the same place and caught five others that measured 15 inches or more."

There are a number of excellent trout streams in Iowa. as trout streams go now days in this section and while catches like the foregoing are rare, yet it is not impossible (if you know how to fish for trout) to get a few nice samples on occasion Many years ago trout were the rule rather than the exception, but they were as hard to catch in the old days as they are now, even tho not so numerous today. Conservation of our fish will undoubtedly bring back some of the old time fishing in time.

MARKET THE WELL FATTENED HEIFERS AT LIGHT WEIGHTS

One of the most serious mistakes made in the feeding of heifer calves is to over fatten them before selling It is very easy to carry the heifers too long in the feeding lots this both from the degree of fatten ing and marketable weight stand points. Such mistakes are most cost ly to the feeder.

Fat heifer calves sell for the most money per hundred pounds when they are in the light weight class tipping the scale beam at from 600 to 750 pounds per head

When 350 pound heifers are lib erally fed on an adequate ration, they, if rightly bred, will gain under good management at least 2 pounds per head daily. In five months that means a minimum gain of at least 300 pounds, maybe 350 pounds. The 350 pound feeding heifer wlil then weigh from 650 to 700 pounds. At this time, if well fattened for age and size, they are near market toppers. To carry them much longer is 'poor business" ordinarily.

When the heifer calves are continued in the feeding yards for approximately nine months, the daily gain being kept close to 2 pounds a day, they will weigh from 900 to 950 pounds, over weight and overfat. At this very fat, heavy weight stage, considerable increase in the cost of production per cwt. and a marked reduction in selling price is experienced.

Larger profits per head are there fore nearly always made on the 600 to 750 pound fat heifers rather on the 850 to 950 pound kind.

SEASON ON PHEASANTS IS PROMISED THIS YEAR

The state game warden has stated that there will be an open season on pheasants again this fall. There have been several changes in the law, the most drastic concerning count of birds killed. This year the birds will be computed as three birds per day for each day of the open season. If there is a five day season the limit will be fifteen birds Thus a man can kill 15 birds the first day and stop shooting. Or he can kill 15 birds the last day. The result will be that every dishonest hunter will kill fifteen birds every day. If he is acosted by a game warden he will say that the 15 birds he has with him are his limit for the five days. —Humboldt Independent

BIG STORM STRUCK KLEMME THURSDAY

THURSDAY'S TORNADO DAMAGE RUNS INTO THOUSANDS

Damage In Klemme Slight; Farmers Suffer Crop Damage

In the great storm and tornado which struck North Iowa last Thursday shortly after noon. Klemme and vicinity received more or less damage from the high winds.

In North Iowa, Clear Lake and vicinity was hardest hit and the estimated damage by the storm was placed at over $100,000. A number of cottages were demolished, cars damaged, the White Pier dance hall blown away and a lady who was struck by a falling tree was instantly killed Others in cottages which were wrecked were more or less seriously injured.

In Klemme the greatest damage was at the Creamery building when th wind caught the tile caps over the east wall of the building, allowing the wind to catch hold of the brick wall and ripping away a large section Mr Gimer, the manager states that most of the east wall will have to be rebuilt. The loss is covered by insurance.

In all parts of Klemme trees were blown down and large branchse twisted off in the storm.

Farmers near Klemme suffered losses to crops by the heavy wind and hail which flattened out fields of corn. This damage will run into many thousands of dollars. Farmers south of the lake who were in the direct path of the storm suffered serious loss, both crops, buildings and live stock being damaged

EARLY IOWA HAD MANY BIRDS

Commenting editorially on early Iowa bird life, the Newell Mirror, P. I Noble. editor says: "When the pioneers were filtering into Iowa they found woodland and prairie swarming with varied hued birds. Prairie chickens, Carolina paroquets whooping or white cranes, labrador ducks, passenger pigeons, wild turkeys were to be seen in abundance. Today the sight of some of these birds would warrant an editorial in metropolitan newspapers. The most numerous of Iowa game birds were the prairie chickens The coming of the settlers marked these birds for destruction. It was not un common to see a farmer come to town with a sled box nearly filled with prairie chickens he had killed These sold as low as $2.00 a dozen Another bird the whooping or white crane was counted no more than a rare migrant in Iowa as early as 1907 although it was once a ewll known resident here.

"The passenger pigeon and the wild turkey have disappeared from Iowa. The quail, or bob-white, the ruffed grouse, the canvassback and red head duck, the barn owl, the swallowtail kite, the upland plover the Eskimo curlew, and many other birds commonly seen by the past generation have gradually diminished in number. Where flocks were once seen, now only an occasional bird is observed.

PHEASANTS ARE DYING FROM GRASSHOPPER POISON

Humboldt Republican: Reports from the Dakotas and portions of Iowa where bran was spread to kill grasshoppers that much bird life is being sacrificed. The birds eat the grasshoppers that died from the poisoned bran, and thus take the poison into their systems and die. It is said that more pheasants are noticed dead from the poisoned hoppers than any other kind of bird life. It is said that in some of the affected areas the dead birds are quite numerous, and the depletion of the game birds will seriously affect shooting this fall.

EDITH HAUPT MARRIED AUG. 2 AT LOUISVILLE, KENTUCKY

Weds Irving Haupt of Kanawha; Have Wedding Dinner In Chicago

Edith H. Haupt, daughter of Mrs. Fred Haupt and Irving Haupt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Haupt of Kanawha, were married August 2nd Sunday at Louisville, Kentucky at the Salem Reformed Church by the Rev. Kriete, whose son and daughter-in-law served as the attendants Mrs Elmer Schlei and son, Dale and Miss Louise Haupt of Kanawha were also included in the wedding party. Dale Schlei played a march as the bridal party entered the church from the rear. The bride was dressed in a very beautiful white silk georgette drses of eylet embroidery, while the groom wore the conventional dark blue suit. The brides bouquet was roses, with streamers and roses tied in the ends

Shortly after the wedding the bridal party left for Chicago, Ill. Arriving there Monday evening, Mr. and Mrs. E. H Herzog had a wedding dinner all prepared which included a large wedding cake decorated very prettily

The bride attended the Klemme schools and finished the twelfth year at Garner Then she taught school for three years at Ell No 8 and the next two years at Twin Lake no 2. The next year she assisted Valentine Josten with the secretarial work at the Creamery and after his death she filled the vacancy. After that she taught three years in Twin Lake no 1. She was always considered one of the best teachers in Hancock county. She had a pleasing personality and the school children were very fond of her as a teacher.

The groom graduated from the Belmond schools and has spent some time teaching and some farming. This summer he was employed at the Farm Experiment Station near Kanawha. He is teaching this year in one of the Wright County schools near Kanawha. Some time next Fall they expect to move onto a farm.

After their wedding trip they returned to Klemme. and the news failed to become known until last Friday evening and they were certainly charivaried. Another group hearing of the event came Tuesday evening and after much merriment the bridal party appeared and they were given the customary treat.

The Klemme Times joins with their many friends in extending congratulations.

LARGE NUMBER ATTENDED TELEPHONE MEETING

Committe Named To Meet With Officials Of Company

About one hundred interested people attended the telephone meeting at the Town Hall last Friday evening to discuss telephone rates in this community. Henry Ludeke, farmer, acted as chairman of the meeting.

From the minutes of the meeting we gather that in bringing up the subject the chairman stated, 'The telephone was a great convenience to the farmer, but under present depressed financial conditions the farmer was unable to pay $18.00 per year for this service." Many rural subscribers have had their telephones removed and the Chairman said he knew of many others who would have their phones removed at once unless a considerabel reduction of rates would be forthcoming.

Mr. T. J. Newman, a representative of the company was called upon and answered many questions. He was present to learn just what the grievance might be here and to report his findings to headquarters.

The discussion turned to the question of rates, and ballots were passed out and the patrons put down the figure for the amount they would be willing to pay for yearly service with the following result: three would pay $10.00 per year; seventy-eight would pay $12 per year; and two would pay $15 per year on rural telephones. After these results were read a number of former subscribers stated they would be willing to again take the service at $12 per year providing that there would be no charge for re-installing the telephone.

The businessmen present then voted as to what they would be willing to pay for the service, with this result: one would pay $12 per year five would pay $15; three $18 and one $24 per year.

The following committee was named to deal with telephone officials in adjusting rates: J. E. Stille, Mayor of Klemme; Paul Stille, farmer; and Dr. Zinn, businessman. The meeting was then adjourned.

Just what action the telephone company wil take in this matter is as yet unknown. It would be only fair to guess that they will make a rate compromise rather than lose a large number of telephone subscribers. A number of tlephoues have already been taken out this spring and summer and no doubt many more will be taken out in the near future if a rate reduction is not established.

IOWA EDITOR PROVIDES SANCTUARY FOR BIRDS

Ira Nichols, editor of the Iowa Falls Citizen, is interested in Iowa bird life and also in the preservation of our wild flowers. Many year ago he planned for a wild life sanctuary and only recently has he been able to carry out his ideal. He has purchased ten acres of land near Iowa Falls and expects to keep it in condition for wild bird life and as a place where the native flowers will never be disturbed. Every man needs a hobby of some kind and what better one could any man have than preserving wild life, both as regards birds and flowers.

CATFISH IN THE CEDAR RIVER

The state fish and game commission recently planted two shipment of catfish in the Cedar river near Vinton. Some of these measured 12 inches in length and were brought from the Lansing hatchery by truck Some Small-mouth bass, wall-eyed pike, crappies and blugills were also planted in the Cedar. Now if they can only keep the dynamiters out there ought to be some pretty good fishing in that section.

How Wood Came to Be Used for Making Paper

It is hard today, when forests are being demolished to provide paper, to realize how lately paper was first made from wood, writes Mark S. Watson in the Baltimore Sun. The Chinese had used fibers and the early European papers were made from shredded rags, which, of course, explains why paper of that day was so much more durable. But not until 1719 did Reaumur, the eminent French physicist, propose that wood be used. And oddly his inspiration came from the humble wasp, whose nests form very fine paper. . . .

"They extract the fibers of common wood," he writes. "They teach us that paper can be made from the fibers of plants without the use of rags and linen, and seem to invite us to try whether we cannot make fine and good paper from certain woods."

In succeeding decades Reaumur's advice (and the unabated demonstrations by the humble wasp) captured an increasing amount of attention, but it was in 1765 that there started the most notable developments in the use of new materials as substitutes for rags. These were the work of Jacob Schaffer, a Saxon clergyman then resident in Bavaria, who, like, Gilbert White, of Selbourne, is better known for his scientific contributions than for his clerical labors.

Junior Farmers Compete.

Des Moines, Special—The largest boys and girls' 4-H Club Congress thus far held in the middle west will open here August 26 in connection with the 1931 Iowa State Fair and Exposition, continuing for eight days.

With over $15,000 in cash premiums offered, and over 2,000 boy and girl farmers from each county in the state in competition, the junior fair will cover practically every type of activity now represented in the 4-H Club movement. Over 1800 head of calves, pigs, sheep and colts will be exhibited by 4-H Club members. The largest individual show will be in the baby beef classification in which farm youngsters will display more than 600 prize animals for state championship honors.

Other phases of the competition will include boys and girls' team demonstrations in all principal livestock, agricultural and home subjects, judging contests in both livestock and crops, the statewide 4-H Club health contest, and numerous other events. The program of the junior fair will continue each morning and afternoon from August 28th through September 4, and all events will be open to the general public.

Free Camp Is Opened.

Des Moines, Special—Nearly 25,000 Iowa vacation seekers are expected at the 100 acre free camp ground which will be thrown open to the public August 26 to September 4, during the coming Iowa State Fair and exposition here.

The camp has been growing in popularity from year to year and is now the largest of its kind in the midwest. Every possible convenience and accommodation for campers is provided, including electric lights throughout the grounds, modern sanitary facilities, stores, post office, police and fire department. A new modern bath house has just been constructed this year, providing twenty shower baths for men and twenty for women. Tents and other camping equipment are furnished at a small rental to those who do not wish to bring their own.

"World On Parade."

Des Moines, Special—The most unusual entertainment features from more than a dozen different nations in all parts of the globe will be combined in a huge evening spectacle, "The World On Parade", which will headline the amphitheatre attractions at this year's Iowa State Fair, August 26 to September 4.

Officials declare that this is one of the most unusual entertainments of its kind ever attempted by producers in the midwest. On a stage over five hundred feet long, with elaborate lighting effects and beautiful musical settings, the spectacle will present Chinese jugglers, Italian trapeze performers, Arabian strong men, German clowns, French tumblers, trained horses from Spain, trained dogs from Scotland, and numerous other world-renowned circus features. The program of entertainment each evening will cover nearly two hours and will be followed by an elaborate fireworks spectacle.

Fair Honors Farm Women.

Des Moines, Special—Iowa will pay special honor to the eleven most outstanding farm women of the state in a statewide search which will reach its climax at the coming Iowa State Fair here, August 26 to September 4.

Every county in Iowa has entered contestants in the event. The search will be narrowed down to one woman from each congressional district. These eleven women will come to Des Moines as guests of the State Fair on Farm Bureau Day, August 31st, to receive special pins and diplomas in recognition of the work which they have done in the up-building of their homes and the advancement of their respective communities.

"Parson Weems"

Mason Locke Weems, who first told the story of George Washington and the cherry tree, was born in Maryland about 1760 and died in South Carolina in 1825. He began the study of medicine but gave it up and went to London to study for the ministry. Upon his return he preached at different places, apparently not having a regular charge. His "Life of Washington," by which he is best known, first appeared in 1800 and during the Nineteenth century ran into more than 70 editions.

What About Feed For The Stock This Fall And Winter?

A good mnay of the farmers in this community have bought SLAT CRIBS and are making TEMPORAY SILOS. This is the cheapest known method of securing a good lot of ensilage for early winter feed—or if you want feed through until spring, set up a couple of them.

A 50 OTN SILO will not cost you very much. We are selling the 50 foot lengths at—and the 75 foot at $6.50. These are not a yellow pine slat, but are good HEAVY FIR SLATS. Line these with RHINO-ROPE and you have an air tight job.

Hogging down of corn this year will be very nearly a necessity. We will have in some 3 INCH CEDAR POSTS in a few days that we can sell for 12 CENTS. We have some FENCE that would make hogging down a possibility for 23 CENTS PER ROD! Figure up and see how cheaply you can feed some of that down-corn to the pigs. Twenty rods of fence and about ten posts will make a temporary fence.

Northern Lumber Company

YE EDITOR AND FAMILY HAVE NICE TRIP

Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Jorgenson and Raymond, Jr., drove to Kansas City last Wednesday afternoon. Leaving here at 1 o'clock we arrived in Kansas City at ten thirty in the evening. Leaving Klemme on paving, then gravel all across Wright county about 34 miles, then all paving except a fifteen mile dirt detour which is under paving construction now. The distance this way being, 332 miles. We went to visit at the home of Mrs. Jorgenson's sister, who has a three and a half acre country home. We made and botled 260 bottles of grape juice and canned peaches galore, and certainly enjoyed picking them right off the tree. That is when they taste good. They have every fruit you can mention on their place. Strawberries blackberries and raspberries, apricots, cherries all kinds of plums, white peaches, yellow Alberta, yellow cling, and a late peach and pears and apples. We even saw peanuts growing in their garden. We picked cantaloupes by the bushel and had the sweetest water melons right from the patch. The late sweet corn was just ready for use, too. And they have a little jersey cow which gives eight quarts of milk at night and five in the morning. So we had all the butter, cottage cheese and cream we could eat We had chicken and rabbit every day we were there to to eat. as they raise their own. Saturday afternoon we drove out to Swope park to see the animals eat. They are fed each day at three, except the alligators and they are fed twice a week. We saw the lions, tigers, hippopotamus (which resembles a very large over grown pig and has an enormous mouth) the seals, monkeys, elephants and bears, beautiful birds, swans, zebras, deer, buffalo and many other kinds of animals. The lions were given pieces of raw meat about ten lbs in the piece and it certainly did not take them long to devour it.

Sunday we went to church with the Chapman's at the First Presbyterian church. Dr Baity is the pastor, but as he was away on his vacation, the assistant pastor, Rev. Brackett was in charge We certain ly enjoyed listening to the fine pipe organ, the closing piece being an interpretation of the harp. Mrs. Jorgenson visited the little tots during the Sunday school hour, and it was very interesting to watch one lady take charge of 37 little youngsters from the age of three and a half to five. The Sunday previous she had 48 to watch over. In the afternoon we enjoyed a very nice drive over the city. We had the privilege of visiting a private park, where they have built a very fine lake, by building a very large dam. This is a very pretty park, and has several natural springs one gives 19,000 gallons daily and these springs empty into little pools. In these pools are very large and beautiful mountain trout The boys caught grasshoppers to feed them and had much merriment to see them jump out of the water to catch them. Monday mornng we left for home arriving in Klemme at seven thirty that night. Mrs. Jorgenson's father, Mr. Davis, was there too, so we had a good visit with him

HUNT DUCKS ONE MONTH THIS YEAR

Federal Government Sets October As Open Season In Iowa

According to a telegram received at the office of the state fish and game commision from Washington D. C., Iowa will have one month of hunting migratory fowl this fall, the month of October, in place of three months heretofore.

This restriction of the open season on waterfowl has been made necessary owing to drought conditions which exist in Canadian breeding areas.

The Iowa season will be from 12 o'clock noon, Thursday October 1 until sunset, October 31. This applies to all surrounding states.

This governmental edict is effective in the United States and Alaska and it is anticipated that Caandian authorities will soon take smilar action.

Although the open season is limited to one month and there will undoubtedly be a great curtailment of the flight, yet it is anticipated that there will still be a fair bag for hunters in those sections where ducks are usually to be found.

Information coming to the commission from various points in the state is to the effect that the loacl hatch is normal, which insures satisfactory hunting.

4-H GIRLS WIN TRIP TO IOWA STATE FAIR

Every year a trip to the Iowa State Fair is awarded to the 4-H team placing first in each county and to the girl who scores highest in the health contest. These girls to be chaperoned by the leader of the demonstration team. Mabel Christiansen of Boone Twp. placed first in the health contest. She represented Hancock County in the State Fair.

Nellie Stromer aud Henrietta Nel son of Ell Township placed first in the county on their demonstration "How to make a Reading Center more Attractive thru Sacks". They won second at the State Fair.

These girls accompanied by their leader Mrs. R. W. Elder left Sunday and returned Friday evening and they surely enjoyed their trip to the Fair. They stayed at the new Hill Crest dormitory with about 183 other girls. Meals were served to them in the large dining hall where 500 can be seated at one time.

The Representatives and Senators and their wives were guests at dinner on Wednesday evening and Gov. Turnr on Thursday evening. Every boy and girl should make an effort to win this trip.

OPEN DATES ON PHEASANTS IN NOVEMBER

Fish And Game Commision Decide On Two Days, November 6-7

Curtailing the number of days on which ringneck pheasants may be shot in Iowa this year, the state fish and game commission has definitely decided that two days will be sufficient and has designated those days as Friday and Saturday November 6-7.

Last year five days were allowed hunters for shooting tliese birds, but sportsmen and farmers generally over Iowa seemed to be of the opinion that two days were long enough hence the decision of the commission to curtail the open season.

Farmers Must Petition

In order to open the season in any Iowa county it is necessary for at least 150 farmer and land owners in that particular county to petition the state game warden It is optional with the warden whether or not there shall be an open season in the county so petitioning In the event the petition is granted it shall be lawful to kill not to exceed three birds per day."

Respect Farmer's Rights

If Iowa hunters are to continue to have an open season they must respect the laws and also the rights of the farmers and property owners on whose land they hunt.

No hunter should deliberately trespass on a farmer's land. He should first obtain permission of the owner or renter to do so In many cases gates have been left open, with resultant liberation of stock and in a very few cases actual shooting of livestock has been reported.

Farmers generally, while prone to post their farms, are not averse to hunters who conduct themselves as real sportsmen.

PHONE AGREEMENT NOT REACHED

SOLUTION FAILS IN SECOND OF MEETINGS HELD HERE

Over 150 Farmers Met With Company Official Friday Evening

At a second meeting of farmers, business men and officials of the Iowa Union Telephone Co. here Friday evening again failed to offer a solution to the disagreement on telephone rates.

In the afternoon a committee representing the subscribers of the Company met with Mr. J. M. Shea. general manager of the Iowa Union Telephone Co., of Emmettsburg. At this meeting the committee and the company representative failed to arrive at an agreement so the general meeting was called for the evening.

The minutes of the general meeting held in the evening are given in full just as they appear in the secretary's report. We print them here and you can draw your own conclusion:

At 8:30 Friday P. M. at least 150 subscribers of the Klemme Phone system met in the school auditorium

Mr. Shea of Emmettburg General Manager of the Iowa Union Telephone Co. was present. He had received a copy of the minutes of our previous meeting of a week ago and he had met with the committee who were selected to try and adjust the matter of rates. The Committee and Mr. Shea could not come to an understanding. Therefore, this meeting at the School House was called by a general ring over the phone lines.

Mr. Shea was introduced to the meeting and after a few introductory remarks he proceeded to explain to the meeting what the income and expenditures of the local Phone system were at the present time.

Income

Rental from 40 business Phones @ $24.00	$ 960
Rental from 57 City Residence Phones @ $18	1026
Rental from 206 Rural Residence Phones @ $18	3708
Total	$5694

He also explained that the income from toll calls, about 35 calls per day averaging 25c per call on which they received a commission of 25% would amount to about $600. 00 per year but all of this was needed to offset their loss on bad accounts and would therefore not be counted as income.

Expenditures

Salaries for Central Operators $85 per month	$1020
Salary of line man $85 per month	1020
Use of car for Line man $25 per month	300
Rent for Central office $20 per month	240
Electric juice for light and ringing $10 per month	120
Misc. items, stamps, garage rent stationary etc.	288
Depreciation 5% in their investment of $20,000 includes replacement of wire phones insulators, poles	1000
$10 per month, part salary L. O. Deal, Wire Manager at Forest City	120
Partial salary of Mr. Shea & Stenographer at Gen. office at Emmetsburg	163
Bookkeepers salary figured at 3c per phone per month	109
Taxes	851
Interest on investment of $20,000 @ 6%	1200
Total Expenditures	$6526
Less total revenue	$5694
Loss per year	$ 832

NOTE—It seems that the Iowa Union Telephone Co. is owned by some Chicago Utilities Corporation and the same fellows who hold the shares also hold the bonds, so that if they got 6% on the bonds and no dividend on the stock it would still be a very nice investment.

There were those at the meeting who felt sure that the above list of expenditures could be pruned down at least enough so that the Company could reduce the rates. take on a hundred or more new subscribers and still earn a nice return on their investment.

PHONE RATES LOWERED AT GRAETTINGER

The Graettinger Times says that H. E. Fink, manager of the Graettinger telephone company, has made a reduction of $3.00 per year in rural and in residential telephone rates, effective September 1st. The old rate was $1.50 per month and the new rate is $1.25 per month No change was made in business telephones.

The Times says the Graettinger telephone company is giving exceptionally good service and only the best of equipment is used in the central office and in the lines.

Mr. Shea stated that he had just returned from a Directors meeting in Chicago called because so many communities in Iowa and elsewhere were asking for reduction of rates. He said most of these rate agitations were started by politicians who knew nothing of the phone business, but stirred the people up in order to get notoriety for themselves; And then Mr. Shea continued, the newspapers took it up, and here we have it, like tonight, every body asking for a reduction of rates

The question was then asked, "Will your Company reduce our phone rates to $12.00 per year?

Mr. Shea then stated that while he was the general manager of a group of phone communities, still he was the "Hired Man" of the Board of Directors who owned this system, and the matter of rates must be referred to them, but, that the Directors would meet within the next ten days at which time he would present to them the three following propositions:

1st. He would ask them whether they would be willing to sell all the farm lines of the Klemme system to the patrons, having them pay a switch fee of $5.00 per phone per year.

2nd. Or in the event the Co. continued to own the farm lines, if the Co. would be willing to leave the rental at $1.50 per month but that the subscriber should receive every 6th month free. or they have six months phone service for the price of five, which would bring the rate down to $15.00 per year. But this proposition to affect rural phones only.

3rd. He would ask the Directors to put a price on the entire Klemme phone system with a view of letting the subscribers buy it.

After Mr. Shea's talk many questions were asked and much discussion.

Mr. Gobell stated that the phone rent on the Meservey system had never been over $1.25 per month.

Mr. Back stated that a new Co-operative Phone System was recently been built in Benton county at a cost of $35 per share.

The question was asked, "How many in the house would be willing to pay $15.00 per year." Others arose and declared that this matter had been settled at the last meeting and it was understood that unless the rates be reduced to $12.00 per year the phones go out. And thus no further voting on the question was permitted.

A member addressed the chair and stated, 'We have listened to a lot of useless discussion and we don't seem to be getting anywhere. I want to know do we get our phone for $12.00 per year or not ". The chairman referred this question to Mr. Shea who answered "Positively no, I know you Gentlemen would not expect so low a rate in view of cost of running this Klemme phone system.

After some further discussion the meeting adjourned.

Henry Ludeke, Chairman
Arthur Wellemeyer, Secy.

The first fall meetnig of the O. E. S. will be held at Garner on Friday evening, September 18th. All Klemme members are urged to be present at this meeting. Refreshments will be served.

MANY FROM THIS VICINITY AT NORTH IOWA FAIR MONDAY

The North Iowa Fair began at Mason City Monday, and as it was Labor Day there was an immense crowd present. The grand stand could not hold the immense crowd and a large number had to stand up out in the field beyond the track. The attractions this year are above the average and the midway this year is overflowing with rides and attractions.

A large number from Klemme and vicinity were present and in walking around we noted the following: Nels Back family, Henry Ludeke family, John Day family and Byrnes Missman, Clarence Kluckhohn family, Albert Barz family, C. G. Waterman family, Wm. Velau family, Chas. Velau, Mrs. Chas. Medaus and Mr. and Mrs. Ed Medaus, Roy Schaefer family. Ed. Schaefer, Art Schoenwetter family Geo. Schoenwetter family. Art Kudjo family, Ed Jacobs family, Mrs. Fred Kluckhohn and Thelma. There were perhaps many others from here that we did not see.

PLANNING ON BURNING CORN THE COMING WINTER

With an excellent prospect of a bumper corn crop this season, farmers in Crawford county are discussing the propriety of organizing a "Burn a Bushel of Corn a Day" Club which, it is argued will dispose of several million bushels of surplus corn. Corn in Dennison sells for $3 per ton less than it costs to procure coal and there are enough heat units in it to justify the venture. Farmors aver that if the plan becomes general it will advance the price of corn at least 25 cents per bushel

Your Car Inspected

You may be putting off having that overhaul job done because you feel that you cannot afford the expense right now. But can you afford to let it go? When repairs or adjustments are needed they should be made at once or else the car should not be used until it is repaired. It is poor economy, or worse than that, it is wasteful to use any machinery when repairs or adjustments are needed. Let us look over your car now and advise what is needed and estimate the cost—

Ruins of Old Roman City

Timgad is a ruined city, 28 miles southeast of Batna, in the department of Constantine, Algeria. Timgad, the Thamugas of the Romans, was built on the lower slopes of the northern side of the Aures mountains, and was situated at the intersection of six roads. The auditorium of the theater, which held nearly 4,000 persons, is complete. A little west of the theater are baths, containing paved and mosaic floors in perfect preservation. Ruins of other and larger thermae are found in all four quarters of the city, those on the north being very extensive. There are the remains of seven churches. Numerous inscriptions have been found on the ruins and from them many events in the history of Thamugas have been learned. Thamugas passed from history after the defeat of Gregorius, governor of Africa, by the Arabs in 647.

Mad Daughter's Sympathy

Iris had been sitting with an absorbed look on her face, gazing at her father.

"Why did you marry mother, dad?" she suddenly said.

"Because I was a fool, I suppose," he replied.

"Poor Mums," said Iris softly.

"What do you mean, miss?" asked father sharply.

"I mean that it was sad for mother to marry a fool, dad," explained Iris seriously.

Ray Baths for Horses

Race horses and dogs are being treated with artificial sunlight just before they go on the track in England. Some stalls are fitted with four powerful lights, and in the rays from these the animals stand quietly while taking their "baths." Among those in the know the sunbath is considered a factor when deciding racing odds.

Road Versus Rail

It is now many years since the expresses of the railway companies running England to Scotland services used to race against each other, and there is today very little "sporting interest" in connection with trains. On the continent, a new form of railway racing was growing up some time ago, touring cars being run against expresses. This road versus rail racing is now discouraged in Europe. However it is catching on so much in New Zealand that a recent race between a car and the Wellington-to-Auckland train was broadcast throughout the country. The race took place at night and, despite the handicap of bad and very hilly roads, the car won by half an hour.

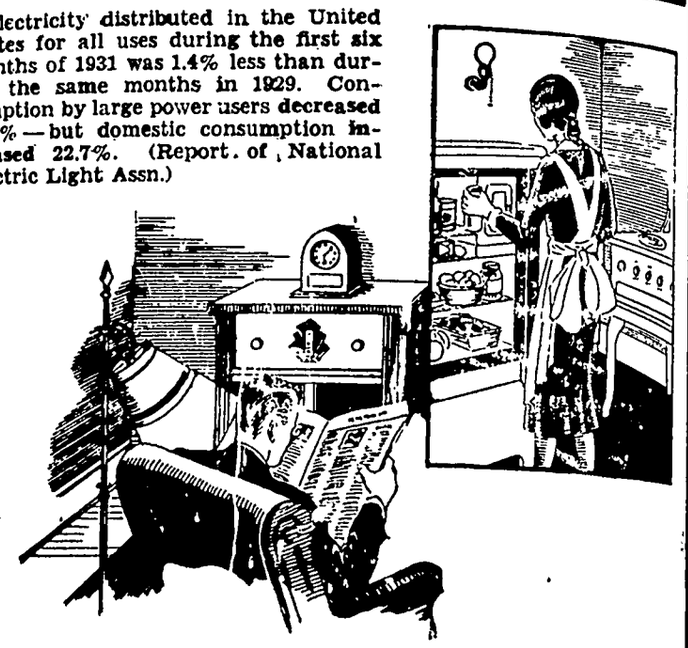
Electricity distributed in the United States for all uses during the first six months of 1931 was 1.4% less than during the same months in 1929. Consumption by large power users decreased 10.5%—but domestic consumption increased 22.7%. (Report of National Electric Light Assn.)



STAYING AT HOME HAS INCREASED DOMESTIC CONSUMPTION . . . .

Shorter or no vacations; more hours spent around the radio; more food cooked in the family kitchen; fewer meals out—all these mean a greater use of electricity.

Business conditions which have resulted in decreases for some uses also caused increases for other uses. The loss of business experienced by the electric industry has been less than that of the other major industries because of the widespread and diversified use of electricity.

That is the best guarantee of the stability of the industry. It is the reason an eminent financier said, "Utility securities are depression proof." That is why you do not need to fear if you invest in the utility industry. That is why you should consider becoming a partner in our business when you invest.

DO YOU PLANT CORN WITH A "JABBER"?

THIS old tool, like many other hand devices, has been laid aside for machinery that does the job better and saves time and labor. Dairymen's Wyandotte Cleanser saves just as much time and labor in the kitchen as the machine that replaced the "jabber" saves in the field. It cleans greasy skillets, dishes and pans with half the work and leaves them sweet-smelling and shiny. And on wash-day Wyandotte Cleanser will save half the soap and half the regular amount of rubbing and never harm the clothes.

Wyandotte Cleanser first made a name for itself in the dairy years ago, where it became noted for removing that unseen dirt which often sours milk and lowers its quality. Then it moved into the home and showed itself equally efficient for all home cleaning uses. It contains no soap, therefore makes no suds. It is all cleanser. It will not harm any surface it cleans. It makes water soft as rain. And it's economical!

Try Wyandotte Cleanser! Then you'll know why creameries and ice cream plants have used it for so long and why it has won highest honors at the last four World's fairs. The J. B. Ford Company, Wyandotte, Mich.

CANNIBALISM AND FEATHER PULLING

There are many causes suggested for this malady. There are also as many remedies advanced. Probably no one knows the scientifically correct cause.

We know that there are several deterrents on the market which when applied liberally will prevent this trouble for awhile very nicely but generally they do not remove the cause.

Some authoritiec recommend the addition of more fiber in the feed to prevent this trouble, but we know that there are 20 different kinds of proteins and we also know that we can get fibre in many different forms.

If we should add fibre in the form of timothy hay and timothy hay certainly does contain enough fibre, we are apt to get trouble from compation of the crop or gizzard. Fibre then, in itself or in any form may be uneconomical.

If we had fibre in a bulky form and succulent at the same time we would go a long way in solving this problem. Cabbage, rape and alfalfa offer us fibre in this form. When molasses is added to alfalfa it make the combination even more succulent.

In other words, when fibre is added to help correct cannibalism it must be in such a form that the digestive juices can act quickly and the fibre particles sweep the walls of the intestines without irritation

CLEANING RANKS AS WORLD'S GREATEST INDUSTRY

Ranking ahead of every other indutsry is celaning,—including both commercial and home cleaning.

Although cleaning in itself is not generally recognized as a separate industry, there is hardly an occupation that does not involve one or more of the many forms of cleaning Your silverware was carefully cleaned before the siverplate was added. The shell of the alarm clock that wakes you in the morning was also carefully cleaned before it was nickeled or enameled. The same is true of your auto fenders and body

Giant office buildings spend hundreds of dollars each night to keep clean. It is claimed that the nightly cleaning bill for cleaning material and labor in the Empire State Building in New York City averages well over $3,000.00. Think of the millions of dishes to be washed each day in hotels and resturants the world over. Added to this cleaning industry is the never ending washing of clothes in hospitals, hotels, public laundries, and in the home. Cleaning, when considered as a unit, and when home cleaning is included, is the world's greatest industry.

And yet it is but recently that housewives of Klemme and this vicinity have been able to secure the same cleaning materials which Iowa Dairymen use in the plants making prize winning butter. No longer does home cleaning have to be done with much elbow grease and with results that are far from satisfactory.

Today you are able to secure the handy 3-lb. cartons of a modern efficient cleaning material which makes no suds. This cleaner, Dairy men's Wyandotte, is the recognized standard of the dairy industry in all parts of the world.

REVEALS CAUSES OF MOST AUTO ACCIDENTS

In a study mad by Dr. A. R. Lauer of Ames, which had to do with auto drivers, their habits and faults he concluded that the following are the principal causes of accidents:

1. Passing to the left in crowded traffic in such a way as to move over past the center of the street or road.
2. Passing standing street cars or failing to stop before passing.
3. Passing on left side of a streetcar when going in the same direction.
4. Driving past a loading street car when going in opposite direction a maximum legal speed.
5. Double parking on any avenue of traffic.
6. Driving slowly in the middle of the street.
7. Driving rapidly at the side of the street.
8. Passing a car on a hill.
9. Cutting thru a safety zone.
10. Failing to give the proper signal in traffic.
11. Crashing red light even when no immediate danger exists.
12. Sudden changes from one line of traffic to another.
13. Passing a loading or unloading school bus.
14. Cutting corners on left turn
15. Excessive or discourteous use of horn.
16. Meandering or weaving in traffic.
17. Driving at irregular speeds.
18. Driving thru an intersection or past a side road without looking both ways.
19. Releasing the steering wheel momentarily for any reason.
20. Stopping on pavements or leaving car parked anywhere on a highway without lights.
21. Very fast driving.
22. Failure to observe commonly accepted ethics of every day life when on the highways.

LOOK OUT FOR HOG CHOLERA

Ringstead Dispatch: A warning has been issued to farmers to look out for hog cholera, which is in an epidemic stage in Iowa.

Here in Emmet county there is a normal hog crop. But there has been less vacination than usual owing to the farmers being pressed for money. There is no question but what the farmers in this county need the money the hog crop will bring them and for that reason it is more imperative than ever that they protect investments in these hogs by vaccination. There is some hog cholera in nearly all parts of Emmet county now. Conditions have been right for the spread of the disease and in a short time nearly every herd in the county might become infected. Vaccination does not help after your hogs are sick. Farmers are warned to watch their hogs for signs of illness.

Iowa is among the states affected by changes in the hunting season for ducks, geese, brant and coot, announced late Saturday by Secretary Hyde of the agriculture dement.

The season in Iowa will now be from October 20 to November 19.

The alterations were made following complaints by many sportsmen that the open date made public when the season was shortened to one month did not give them opportunities for hunting that were afforded in other states.

President Hoover recently shortened theh unting season to one month and the changes today were in the dates made public at that time.

THE REAL RAILROAD ISSUE

In considering the mass of conflicting and technical evidence now being offered the Interstate Commerce Commission in regard to the railroads' application for a general 15 per cent freight increase, the public should not lose sight of the real issue—how can the lines obtain sufficient revenue to continue their programs of development and expansion, provide for the future, maintain employment and pay dividends.

The perfect freight rate of course would be no rate at all. The lines would carry everything or nothing. Unfortunately, this is an ecnoomic impossibility. And it is equally impossible for the rails to continue to operate indefinitely when profits are so low, as is now the case in some instances, that they are insufficient to meet fixed charges alone. During the first part of this year, their net profit on an annual basis was but little more than two per cent on the investment—less than the government pays the holders of its tax free bonds which are backed by the nation's entire resources.

Whether the rate increase is deserved, under the law, is for the Commission to decide. But it should be pointed out that in the nine years since 1922 there have been over 6,000 rate decreases, which have cos tthe railroads some $6,580,000,000 in revenues. When rates are cut few people hear of it—but when there is need for a raise much argument results. This may be human nature—but it does not get away from the fact that the lines are the principal medium of transport, and that their property is intimately related to the prosperity of us all.

THE SAFE INVESTMENT

In the last two years the United States, like the entire world, has been passing through one of the most trying periods in history. Many businesses have been hard pressed and securities have dropped below fair values while profits have often turned into deficits. Under such conditions it is a testimonial to the achievements and soundness of the life insurance industry that it has maintained its high standards of solvency and service unimpaired.

The owner of a policy in any legal reserve life insurance company may be sure that it is as safe as on the day that it was purchased. The obligation it represents will be fulfilled to the letter exactly as in the past. Its borrowing privileges are as good as ever and its cash value has not been altered.

Hard timos have done much to bring out the fact that life insurance, for the person of small means is about as good an investment as he can find. Every policy is secured by gigantic assets administered by executives of the highest caliber, under striot legal regulation for the policyholder's safety. The record of life insurance is deserving of the highest regard and respect.

IN A HUNDRED YEARS

A little more than one hundred years ago the first American Gas Company was organized in Baltimore.

Today the gas industry, natural and manufactured, has 16,800,000 customers, serves a population of 85.000,000, and employs about 150,000 workers.

Careful estimates indicate that 15,000,000 gas cooking appliances 6,000;000 gas wator heaters, 5,000,000 gas room heaters and 900,000 gas fired furnaces are now in use in the United States. The newest of gas appliances, the refrigerator, has found 50,000 users. During 1929 the sales of gas totaled approximately 2,435,000,000,000 cubic feet.

The gas industry, like the electric has made industrial history in less than the span of two lifetimes.

THE MACHINE AGE APPLIED TO CRIME

Methods Employed by Criminals Demand New Police Methods, Bankers Association Official Declares.

USE by criminals of modern technological developments such as automobiles, machine guns and airplanes have given them advantages which old-fashioned local and disconnected police systems are powerless to combat and the situation demands the broader modern protection of State police systems, James E. Baum, deputy manager American Bankers Association in charge of its crime investigating department, declares in the protective section of the American Bankers Association Journal.

"The Association's Protective Committee has repeatedly urged the advantages of extending state police systems beyond the nine eastern States which have enjoyed this protection for many years," Mr. Baum says. "The time has passed when we can safely rely upon the disconnected and oftentimes ineffective methods of local and county police. The advent of automobiles and better roads, to say nothing of machine guns and airplanes, demands the same wide latitude in authority and field of operation be given the police no less than the criminal."

Statewide Police Plans Best

He quotes a Kansas judge as saying that "our system of sheriffs and constables was not designed to meet present-day conditions. As a system of law enforcement, it is as out of date as old common-law pleading, both evolved about the same time. The semi-military, highly trained State police officer owing allegiance only to State laws, is the most effective agency for order yet brought forth."

"Every year the robbery experience of banks in the nine States having State police proves the merits and urgent need of State-wide police protection," says Mr. Baum. "Last year, for example, there were 38 bank holdups in Connecticut, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island and West Virginia where State police forces are operated," he continues. "Although this total is exceptionally high due to an unprecedented number of robberies in New Jersey and Pennsylvania, it is little more than half the number of daylight bank robberies suffered in 1930 in Illinois alone. Furthermore, this total of 38 robberies in the nine eastern States was exceeded in California, where there were 42 bank holdups, and in Ohio where banks suffered 40 similar attacks.

Holdups Fewer Under New Plan

"If we extend the comparison of the robbery experience in these States enjoying State-wide police protection to the record in eight central and far western States, we find a total of 304 bank holdups in the latter group. The odds, therefore, continue to be not less than 8 to 1 against the banks in these western States, where they are denied the speedy, coordinated action of State police and their modern means of transportation and communication. The same comparison holds true of the farmers' losses through robberies of livestock, poultry, produce, etc.

"Moreover, these State police forces invariably yield an operating profit in the amount of fines collected and the value of stolen property recovered. Bankers interested in cutting down the cost of robbery insurance might well consider this job of extending State police systems as a timely, co-operative service to be undertaken alongside the farmers."

BANK EMPLOYEES SENT TO SCHOOL

Modern Scientific Financial and Management Methods Taught Throughout Country.

THE American Institute of Banking Section of the American Bankers Association conducts 223 chapters, or local banking schools in as many cities throughout the country. One large city chapter has almost 6,000 students, who are combining formal theoretical and practical banking studies with their daily working experience and other places have these schools with a thousand to two thousand students. In addition there are fifty study groups in small communities with some 6,000 enrollments. All told over 42,000 bank people are taking these courses—not only clerks, but junior officers and even senior officers in some of the more advanced work.

The work of the institute has been declared to be "a dynamic economic force, pouring into banking a broadening, deepening stream of better qualified bankers than could be developed merely by the daily workings of banking itself," and it has been suggested that every bank worker should be compelled to combine institute courses with his work. A good many banks now make it a part of the contract of employment that an employee shall undertake to render himself proficient and trustworthy in banking by taking institute work and others make successful progress in this educational aspect of banking a pre-requisite to promotion. Plans are being developed to make the benefits of banking education through this organization more generally available in the rural districts.

Picturesque "Home" for Wild Life in France

There has been constituted in the south of France a national reserve for wild life which, in some ways, is the most picturesque natural home for bird and beast to be found in Europe. It is situated on the Camargue, the island famous in old French history and legend and well known to visitors to Arles in Provence. Really the delta of the River Rhone, entirely formed by alluvial deposits, it is in great part a savage region of marsh and prairie.

The Societe Nationale d'Acclimatation, which has charge of the reserve, protects about 50,000 acres as tenant, and it is proposed to increase the area ultimately to 100,000 acres. Even after a relatively short experience, however, it has been observed that the migratory birds of many species which have always used the island as a landing station are increasing in numbers. For many it is the last hopping-off place for Africa. Besides every sort of wild duck in immeasurable numbers—storks, herons and egrets—there are many rare birds which cannot be seen elsewhere in Europe. Perhaps the most astonishing are the pink flamingoes, which are to be found in flocks of 3,000 or 4,000 together.

Little-Known Men Who Are Worthy of Honor

It is suggested that a statue be erected to the memory of the man who first introduced the orange to Great Britain. Japan already has a statue to its first orange bringer. France has put up a statue to Marie Harel, the inventor of Camembert cheese, and Offenburg, in Germany boasts a statue to Sir Francis Drake for bringing the potato from the New world to the Old. But nobody knows who brought the oranges to Britain. They came from Spain about the year 1290, but beyond that there is no record. The first man to import oranges in quantity was Benjamin Bovill, a London fruit broker, the centenary of whose death recently occurred. The man who first brought bananas to Britain is just as worthy of a statue as anyone connected with oranges. Worthiest, perhaps, of any is Sir Richard Weston, who flourished in the reign of Charles I. Though very few people have heard of him it was he who introduced turnips, clover and other sown grasses into Britain and so laid the foundation of modern agriculture.—London Mail.

Blinds Not "Venetian"

Venetian blinds, now becoming popular in America, are not, and never were, really Venetian, Home and Field says.

"While the roller shade is purely an American invention, the use of venetian blinds, or tilting slats, dates back nearly 300 years to the West Indies," the article says. "The blinds now in use are quite similar, but with added improvements. Apparently there is no authoritative information as to why they are called venetian. Careful research shows that they were not seen in Venice until many years after they had been in use elsewhere. It has been suggested, however, that they may have been invented by a Venetian trader making his home in the West Indies and named in his honor."

The Three of Them

The following incident is reported by Mrs. A. M. G.:

"A little five-year-old girl was added to my class last Sunday, and when the lady who brought her introduced her to me she said: 'She was born in Egypt.'

"I thought no more about it, and when class work began, I told the little tots about Moses. The little newcomer said she had heard about Moses; and then, to interest her, I said, 'Moses was a Jew, but he was born in Egypt.'

"'Yes,' exclaimed the new child, 'all three of us were born in Egypt: my sister, and I, and Moses.'"—Kansas City Star.

Make Life a Battle

Young people like to be doing things. A keen student of youth has said that the average young person gets a far greater thrill out of hewing his own pathway through the world than in rolling along in a luxurious car over a roadway that other hands have prepared. But, after all, no one can wholly remove from us all responsibility or fight all our battles for us. Nobody has a right to find life uninteresting or unrewarding who sees within the sphere of his own activity a wrong he can help to remedy, or within himself an evil he can hope to overcome.—Montreal Family Herald.

Says New Buildings Ungodly

"There is a saying that God made the country and the devil made the towns," said Sir Thomas Comyn-Platt in an address before the council for the Preservation of Rural England, in London recently. "When I walk in London and see the buildings they are erecting I can quite believe they are not the work of the Almighty. England owes everything to the country."

Health in Economy

In order to determine the effect of a special diet, nine young women, students at the Washington Missionary college, lived four weeks on food costing 28 cents a day apiece. At the end of the period physicians pronounced them fitter, fatter and fairer.

PLAN SUGAR BEET FIELD DAY

Will Show Leaf Spot Disease Experiments at Kanawha, Sept. 24

Farmers in northern Iowa who have been growing sugar beets and have had trouble with the leaf spot disease are invited to gather at Kanawha, September 24, when the experimental work planned to control this disease will be shown and discussed. The experiments have been carried on cooperatively by the Northern Iowa Experimental Association, plant pathologists at Iowa State College and the American Beet Sugar Company.

The leaf spot disease of sugar beets causes the leaves to die. The beet then puts out new leaves, using up some of the sugar which has been stored in the plant By this continued process the sugar content of the beets is so depleted that their value is greatly lowered.

One of the methods being tried to control the disease is to check the beets instead of drilling the seed, as is the usual practice. When the seed is checked the beets are grown farther apart. In that way they become larger and store more sugar, and this system seems to discourage development of the disease

All who are interested in the experimental work are invited to attend the meeting.

KEEP COOLING CREAM, MILK

Cool Air of Fall Nights Not As Efficient As Cold Water

Air should not be depended on to cool milk even with the coming of cooler fall weather, according to A. W. Rudnick, extension specialist in dairy industry at Iowa State College

Following the first cool nights, produce men report that many patrons send in milk with a high bacterial count.This is because many expect the air to cool the milk. By the use of air 8 to 10 hours are required to get the hame low temperature that would be developed by th use of cold water in one hour.

Cooling quickly with cold water gives bacterial growth little chance to develop. Rapid cooling also produces a better flavor and thus encourages more consumption of dairy products.

No, He Wasn't Telling That One to the Wife

"I can match that one," said the man who owns a dog to the man with a new baby at home.

"Impossible!" said the man with the new baby. He had just offered, as an illustration of the intelligence of infants, the story of how a baby, picked up and walked with at 11:03 p. m., will demand with wails to be picked up and walked with the next night at 11:03 p. m. And the next.

"Well," said the man who owns a dog, "when our Maggie had puppies, I was doing night work. Came in at 3 a. m. Maggie and her puppies were sound asleep in their basket at that hour, but one night when I wasn't sleepy I turned on the light in the kitchen, dumped them all out on the floor and played with them for a while. The next night I did the same thing. And the next.

"The night after that I came home tired, I walked right through to the bedroom, undressed and got into bed, and you should have heard the yelps that went up from that kitchen. Every one of those puppies spent the next 15 minutes noisily reproaching me for my neglect. They woke up the wife, they woke up the neighbors. They made the darndest fuss. The next night I ignored them again, but they woke up and yelped at 3 a. m., just the same. It took three nights of ignoring them to break the habit."

"You don't say," said the man with the new baby, looking thoughtful. "Well, I wouldn't dare tell that one to my wife."—New York Sun.

Turkish Capital Famed for Its Many Mosques

As the tourist gets his first view of Istanbul from the deck of an approaching ship, he is more aware of the mosques than of anything else, says an article in a Boston paper. Their domes, and the slender minarets which rise near them, give Istanbul a real distinction which many great cities lack. Not even Cairo has mosques which show up so astonishingly against the skyline. They are almost numberless, but there are a dozen that are really tremendous in size. They occupy commanding sites, so that the domes and minarets rise above the surrounding roofs. They give Istanbul, from a distance, an aspect of wonderful dignity and grandeur mingled with the charm of the Orient.

Of these mosques, the most renowned is St. Sophia, one of the most glorious buildings in the world. It was built as a Christian church and dedicated in the year 538. The minarets at the four outside corners were added by the Turks when they converted the structure into a mosque. From the outside, St. Sophia is apt to seem a little disappointing, but within it is hardly surpassed anywhere in architectural merit. It would be hard to find another great nave so light and so graceful.—Detroit News.

Mother Earth's Age

The earth is 2,000,000,000 years old, according to the estimate of Prof. Dr. Otto Hahn, director of the Kaiser Wilhelm Institute at Berlin. The noted physicist bases his calculations on the quantity of lead to be found on the surface of the earth.

"The progress made recently in the study of radio-active substances and the disintegration of the atom enables us to fix the age of the world with fair accuracy," the professor told an audience of German scientists. "Uranium and thorium, contained in certain minerals, are converted, in the course of millions of years, into radium, and finally into uranium lead and thorium lead. The lead findings help us to determine the age of the earth at 2,000,000,000 years."

Old Story Disproved

There is an often repeated story credited to the historian, Harvey Rice, that Moses Cleaveland's exploring and surveying party started up the Chagrin river, mistaking it for the Cuyahoga, and that upon discovering the error Cleaveland gave it this name as representative of the state of his feelings.

It appears, however, that this story has little foundation, for on maps made before the Revolution the river was called the Chagrin. The name is no doubt from an Indian word given as "Shagrin" or "Shaguin" and said to mean "clear." One map issued in 1755 calls it the Elk river.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"Spinster's" Derivation

Spinster means one who works at the spinning wheel. In the olden days the work of making cloth for clothing was a part of the household duties and fell to the younger women to spin the yarn. As the prepossessing and marriageable girls had their minds on their fellows, the job usually became the responsibility of those who had had their chance and lost. So a spinster came to mean any unmarried woman, and is still today the legal phrase in England for any woman who has never been married.

Mine Rescue School

To train rescue crews in mine accidents a factory in Berlin, Germany, has opened a school where invasion of gas-infested chambers and the carrying of men to safety are taught. Experiments are made under varying conditions, different types of gas masks being worn by the operators, and dummies are rescued from rooms filled with poisonous vapors.

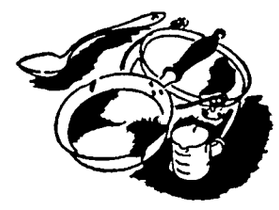
AND THINGS STILL LOOK DINGY!



THE woman who feels this way about her housework should try Dairymen's Wyandotte Cleanser. A little Wyandotte in the dishwater and every greasy dish or pan comes out with its face shining. And on washday, Wyandotte saves half the soap and half the work and turns out the cleanest, whitest, sweetest-smelling clothes you ever saw. Perfectly safe, too, for it will not harm anything that water alone will not harm.

Around the dairy, where it first made a name for itself, this Wyandotte Cleanser takes away that last thin film of grease and dirt that often sours milk or gives it a bad taste or odor and lowers its quality. Milk utensils, separators, milking machines, all are made completely clean. And one more point! It costs less to keep everything clean with Wyandotte. The J. B. Ford Company, Wyandotte, Michigan

Home Grown Feeds Are The Cheapest

Feed from your own farm and then ground so the maximum benefit may be secured in feeding is certainly good business.

At times it may be profitable to purchase commercial feeds so your animals may be assured of a balanced ration but there is no question regarding the advisability of having your grain ground, saving as it does from 12 to 20 per cent in feeding value.

Whon having your grain and corn ground, it should be worth while to have the work done where you will be assured of a first class job, ground strictly according to your needs.

CHICKEN THIEVES AT WORK IN THIS COMMUNITY

Times Urges Farmers To Mark Fowls for Easy Identification

That lowest of two-legged devils, the chicken thief- is at work in this community. Just recently a hunlred chickens were missing from a farm flock near Klemme. It is not known whether or not all were taken at one time or whether a few were taken occasionally. At any rate the thieves are at work in this commun ity and the Times wishes to spread the news so that the farmers can cope with the situation.

Mark Your Chickens

The Times suggests that farmers should mark their poultry. A very simple and effective way to mark your poultry easily and quickly is to simply get a can of bright paint and a brush Put a prominent streak of paint on each bird. The paint thus applied will remain for a long time. If the birds are stolen it will not be an easy matter for the thief to dispose of them anl it is next to impossible to remove the identifying paint mark.

In the event of chickens being stolen notify the Sheriff at once. Give a description of your poultry and the identification. They will be easy to trace.

If every farmer in the county will mark his poultry it is going to cut down the loss as chicken thieves do not care to steal poultry that is well marked and hard to dispose of.

ANNUAL TOUR TO AMES HELD LAST THURSDAY

The annual Hancock Co. Tour to Ames was held Thursday September 17. This tour is usually held in the spring but to give the farmers the opportunity to see the results of experiment crops it was held in the fall this year. Those who attended met at the extension building at 10 a m and were conducted by the guides to the various places of interest

The Dairy and poultry farms were visited in the forenoon. In the afternoon the men went thru the sheep, cattle, baby beef, and horse barns then to the alfalfa and soy bean plots and to the experiment farm. Lectures were given at each place The ladies were conducted thru the formal gardens, green houses, Home Economics building, radio station and Memorial Union building. The ladies enjoyed seeing these different places, especially the kitchen in the Memorial Union and admired the cleanliness and convenience of the kitchen.

The following from Klemme enjoyed the trip. Mr. and Mrs Jonh Bock; Mrs. A. Lange and Glenn Mrs. A. Brown and Leo and Mr. and Mrs R. W Elder. There were approximately 150 farmers and their families present. This is the largest delegation that has been on a tour to date this year from a single county.

NO SCARLET FEVER AT THE C. A. BACHMAN HOME

An item in the Garner Leader last week in the Klemme news stated, "Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Bachman have scarlet fever. "Howard Welker was ill with the disease at the Will Bachman home. Mrs. C. A. Bachman is the one who has it now." The item is a falsehood and the Bachman family want it understood that they do not have the disease. The Editor of the Times was shown a statement from the Bachman physician in which he states the rumor is not true Mr. Welker has been working on the cream route every day. The item in the Garner leader caused no end of trouble for the Bachman family. Correspondents should be exceedingly careful in reporting news items to any paper and be sure they are reporting the facts.

HARRY BUSS SELLS GARAGE TO BELMOND AUTO CO.

Tokman & Heginger Are Now In Possession of Business

Last week Harry Buss sold his garage interets in Klemme to Tokman and Heginger of the Belmond Auto Co., Ford dealers and service.

Mr. Ed. Hughes, who has been with the Tokman & Heginger firm for over nine years, is in charge of affairs in Klemme. Mr. and Mrs. Hughes have rented the apartment over the state Bank building and will soon move to town.

The Times was unable to get in touch with Mr. Tokman, but we understand the garage here will be a complete Ford sales and service.

The Belmond Auto Co. is one of the established and best known Ford agencies in North Iowa, and Klemme and community can be assured of the very best in this line.

We welcome the new firm to Klemme.

CEMETERY LEAP FROG PARTY

It is understood that a couple of Algona young sports and two of the fairer sex put on what is known as a leap frog party in one of the cemeteries in Algona recently. According to our informant they were leaping dancing and what not on the greensward in their birthday suits and having the time of their lives. We have heard that some of the neighbors were quite shocked over the incident because of the fact that the participants made a bit more noise than was thought necesary under the circumstances. We cannot understand why anyone would object to innocent amusement like this on hot nights. —Titonka Topic.

FORMATION OF NEW PHONE CO. IS PROGRESSING

General Meeting Is Called For Next Monday Night

The committee who have been at work on forming a new telephone comapny here are meeting with good success. Tuesday evening a meeting of the committee was held at the Town Hall and was attended by fifteen or twenty men. They reported on what they had accomplished and their reports showed that nearly every one they had presented the plan to were in favor of it. Over one hundred shares have been subscribed by those visited, and only a small number, comparatively have been solicited.

The committee wants a general meeting of all telephone users to be held Monday night at the school house. At that time the plan of organization will be mapped out and voted on and any suggestions will be heard. Everyone interested is urgd to be at this meeting so that the committee will have a definite understanding of the general wish es of the telephone users in this community.

PHEASANTS BENEFIT CROPS

The editor of the Estherville Republican believes that pheasants are a benefit to farm crops and that "granting that the pheasants pull up a few hills of corn in the spring when they are after worms, what is that in comparison to the destruction of the entire crop by grasshoppers and other pests? Pheasants and other birds are known to feed on grasshoppers and other crop pests. Their preservation means the salvation of crops. There is no doubt about that. Every farm should become a bird sanctuary and if that becomes a fact as well as a theory it is doubtful if the country is ever again infested with worms, bugs, and grasshoppers as it has been this year."

Many requests from farmers over Iowa for pheasants are coming into the state fish and game department One which recently reached the department was from R. C. Couch, of Casey, Mr. Couch says he wants the brids to keep down the grasshoppers on his farm. It would be interesting to know how many farmes in Iowa think these birds are destructive or otherwise. If you have had any personal experience with them as related to farm crops will you kindly write to the State fish and game Commission.

KLEMME CIVIL WAR VETERAN AT ANNUAL ENCAMPMENT

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Crane and son, Louis, returned to their home at Beaver Dam, Wisconsin, after spending about two weeks in Klemme visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Lew Lewis.

While here the visitors and Mr. and Mrs. Lew Lewis made trips around Clear Lake, West Bend, Garden City, Minnesota and last week they spent one day at the Civil War Veterans' re-union which was held at Des Moines. Mr. Lew Lewis. who is 86 years of age, was among the "young boys" who registered at Des Moines. Mr. Lewis enlisted at the age of 16 in the 16th Wisconsin Vol unteer Infantry. While at Des Moines he visited the Wisconsin Headquarters but failed to find any of his old comrades registered. However, there were about a dozen Wisconsin Veterans registered but he did not know any of them. There were about 1,800 Veterans at the re-union and they came from every state in the Union. Mr. Lewis says that there are now only about 38,000 Civil War Veterans left out of approximately two million.

Mr. Crane, who is a gentleman of 60 years of age is a Spanish War and World War veteran. He also served on the Mexican border prior to the World War.

A downstate newspaper is sure the end of the small town is in sight According to this journalist the small bank, newspaper and other businesses of the small town are about at the end of their strings. The time is coming when the county seat or the larger town will rise triumphant as population centers of areas denuded of the small towns. Which is another bit of boloney promulgated by journalists too swelled up with their own importance or too lazy to fare forth and really list the factors which make up their counties or the regions compromising their zones of influence, if any It does not take a great deal of hoss sense to realize Farmer Jones is not going to do his banking 25 or 30 miles away if he can get out of it. Neither will Mrs. Jones drive so far to get the groceries for tomorrow's meals. Both will continue to visit the nearby small towns for their ordinary needs and the ordinary needs of some 750 to 1,000 families are a great plenty to keep any small town jumping. Furthermore, the small town merchant has not gone entirely dumb. He has awakened to changing conditions and more often than not is doing business along some up-to-date scheme. Prescience is not the exclusive property of larger population centers.. Swelled up editors in larger towns ought to be told these things now and again. Such telling ought to aid them in maintaining their equilibriums.—Swea City Herald.

KLEMME HIGH SCHOOL

AGRICULTURAL SECTION

This section contains notes and information from the agriculture class for the benefit of the farmers in our community. This work is carried on under the direction and supervision of W. L Grove, instructor in the local school.

In this issue we are attempting to give the farmers of this vicinity and subscribers of the Times much needed information regarding the sources of material. The average farmer is too busy with other things to take a few minutes to find out some of our new and improved methods in Agriculture.

We are attempting here to give you a list of bulletins published by experimental colleges for free distribution to those who desire them. There are vast sums of material put out by experimnt stations and it is ready for your use if you will only write for the information needed.

The farmers of this vicinity are helping to support our experiment station so why not make use of material put out free of charge by them for our use.

There was never a time in history when farmers were in such need of new, improved methods, to better their own system of finance. The farmers of this country in order to survive this depression must keep a complete check on every item bought or sold. They must change their methods of production and in order to do this we are leaving at your disposal free material from some of the best sources of the world.

Many of these bulletins listed below are used by the Klemme Agriculture class to give these future farm boys and farm girls of this vicinity a better understanding of some of the newer problems of agriculture.

It should be remembered that this list is not presented as a complete one, but to give you an opportunity for some of the more recent material on the better methods of farming.

The bulletins listed below are taken from the following experiment stations.

TO THE FARMERS OF IOWA

Your home is the Heart of America. The Iowa Farm Bureau Federation with an organization in every county offers you the most effective protection for the home.

Do you know the Farm Bureau is fighting for:

1. The defeat of the proposal for a 15% advance in your freight rates
2. Justice in the assessment of your property for tax purposes.
3. Justice in distributing the unwarranted tax burden on property.
4. Economics in cost of Government.
5. An agricultural credit system that will provide the farmer finances for his loans.
6. A national land policy that will take large areas of marginal land out of production
7. Marketing advantages for the farmers through which to market their products cooperatively.
8. The stabilization of the unit of value (an honest dollar).
9. Just laws in our state and in our nation.
10. Quality products at a fair price for farm use.

Do you know that the Farm Bureau has:

1. Prepared material to block the freight rate advance and will appear at the freight rate hearings
2. Materially assisted in securing more equitable assessments of property so that the assessed value of Iowa farm lands has been decreased $133,096,423.
3. Created valuable sentiment throughout the state for tax revision embracing an income tax to help replace the general property tax.
4. Worked with a committee appointed by Governor Turner to determine where economics in local and state government can be made.
5. Helped to get in motion efforts that we hope will result in a better finance system for the farmer.
6. Insisted the Federal Government adopt a successful land utilization policy in cooperation with the states.
7. Helped organize and finance the Iowa Livestock Marketing Corporation to bring better returns to the livestock farmer in cooperatively marketing his livestock.
8. Interviewed the President of the United States in behalf of a strong commission to sponsor means of stabilizing the unit of value as well as appointed a Farm Bureau Committee to act in this effort.
9. Been a force to be reckoned with in state legislatures and the national Congress when legislation is up for passage—thus promoting the interests of agriculture and the farmers on their farms through legislative assistance.
10. Through collective bargaining has been the means of providing quality products for farmers and had a determining influence in hold ing the price to a reasonable figure

LABELING LAWS PROTECT CONSUMERS

Consumers will secure added protection in the purchase of all canned goods on account of a new amendment to the federal Food and Drug Act which requires all substandard foods to be so labeled, according to information secured by the Iowa Department of Agriculture

In a recent seizure of canned peas under authority of the McNary Mapes amendment to the Food and Drug Act, the cans contained an excessive quantity of hard peas and thus were substandard under the pure food law. The peas were not unwholesome but the shipper violated the law because he did not label them with the substandard designation, "Below U. S. Standard Low Quality but not Illegal."

The present tendency in the hand ling of all food products is to differentiate in the grades of th products, An examination of the labels on all packages will show the net contents and give a better idea of the quality of the products, particularly if thy are substandard.

UNSEEN DIRT INJURES FOOD

There is some dirt that you can see with the naked eye, and a lot more that you can see only with a highly powered microscope. Both visible and invisible dirt affect the quality and worth of dairy and food products. Just because a surface looks clean is not proof that it actually is clean.

A washed utensil can look clean and yet feel greasy or slippery. When this is true there is usually a film or unrinsed material on the washed surface which will in turn lower the quality of dairy or food products that come in contact with this unrinsed foreign matter.

Unrinsed foreign matter will also hold on to the invisible dirt on a dairy or food utensil and thus literally chain it to the supposedly surface.

Your creameryman will tell you that to get clean, sanitary sweet smelling surfaces and to get clean surfaces that protect the quality and worth of his products, he uses a free rinsing, sudsless cleanser known as Dairymen's Wyandotte Cleanser.

This same cleanser is available to you in handy 3-lb. cartons at all Klemme Grocers.

RECEIVE WORD OF DEATH IN NORTH

Last week Mrs. Lew L. ed the sad news that Mr. George McGrady, ha Fargo, North Dakota d McGrady was 73 years time of his death.

THE TRUTH ABOUT TAXE

THE statement in our last advertisement that the cost of government in Iowa has increased approximately 240% in the last twenty years should cause every taxpayer to inquire the reason why.

In our opinion, a comparison of the tax levy of most Iowa municipalities for 1920 with the tax levy for 1930 will answer the question, for it will show that the tax levy of 1930 included not only increases in practically all of the items shown on the 1920 levy, but also many items of taxation that were unknown at that time. These items will no doubt include such items as a tax for a swimming pool, a memorial hall, a bank, an air field, more and larger parks, a tourist camp or some other project, and sometimes three or four, which during the "jazz age" were loaded onto the taxpayers and must now be paid for and maintained by them.

It is apparent, therefore, that it is these luxuries and not the necessities of government that are to blame for a considerable part of the ever increasing tax burden.

When these facts are known, the taxpayers will understand why we say that no "tax adjustment" such as has been propsed by some of our leading politicians can relieve the condition which has resulted from this unnecessary and extravagant expenditure of public money, and that the only real remedy is "tax reduction." A reduction in taxes can and must be made—not by reducing the amount expended for the necessities of government, but by eliminating the luxuries of government. This cannot be done so long as the State, the counties and the municipalities continue to furnish the people with luxuries—most of which are not a proper governmental function and should not be built, operated or maintained at public expense.

Lasting and worthwhile tax reductions will be possible only when the people stop spending the public money extravagantly.

If the taxpayers will examine the tax records of their respective communities, we believe they will find ample proof of our statement that it is not the necessities of government, but the luxuries of government that are responsible for a considerable part of the increase in taxation during the last twenty years.

Home Grown Feeds Are The Cheapest

Feed from your own farm and then ground so the maximum benefit may be secured in feeding is certainly good business.

At times it may be profitable to purchase commercial feeds so your animals may be assured of a balanced ration but there is no question regarding the advisability of having your grain ground, saving as it does from 12 to 20 per cent in feeding value.

When having your grain and corn ground. it should be worth while to have the work done where you will be assured of a first class job, ground strictly according to your needs.

You won't go far wrong in patronizing an established concern which will be on the job, today, tomorrow and next year. We are always working for the best interests of the farmers.

DO YOU DRIVE TO TOWN WITH A HORSE AND BUGGY

YOU'D consider this way of getting about mighty slow in this day and age. Yet in the kitchen, many housewives are using cleansers that are just as far behind the times as the horse and buggy . . . cleansers that do little and require a lot of help. What housewives really need is Dairymen's Wyandotte Cleanser!

Wyandotte cleans without a lot of hard rubbing and scouring. Wyandotte easily takes the grease out of skillets and pots and pans. Likewise Wyandotte safely brings clothes through wash-day soft and white and saves half the soap and half the work. Wyandotte certainly saves the housewife a lot of labor!

Wyandotte Cleanser has been used by dairymen everywhere for thirty years. They use this efficient cleanser because it removes that unseen dirt which often sours milk and lowers its quality. Almost most of the creameries use Wyandotte.

Wyandotte Cleanser contains no soap, therefore makes no suds. It is a safe cleanser. It will not harm metal, rubber fittings, cloth, or anything it cleans. It will not taint milk. It softens water. It costs less to wash with Wyandotte!

Just try Wyandotte Cleanser in your kitchen and around the house! Get a package like the one shown here. The J. B. Ford Company, Wyandotte, Mich.

QUEER MIXUP IN DIVORCE ACTION

Boone Twp Woman Living With Second Husband Sues for Divorce From First Mate

Britt News Tribune:—The next session of court will find three couples trying to be released from the ties of holy matrimony. One of these is already living iwth a second mate and has four children by him. This is the case listed as Minnie White Messamore vs Roland White. The petition on file in the office of Clerk of Courts recites that plantiff was married to defendant on July 31, 1916, and that they lived together until some time in 1917 when the husband deserted her. Some time in 1918 the mother of defendant told her that White was killed in a railroad wreck and that beliveing him dead she accepted company of another and on May 26, 1920, she married Clarence Messamore. Four children have been born to this union Mrs. Messamore charges cruel and inhuman treatment on the part of Roland White and prays the court to grant her a decree of absolute divorce They live in Boone township.

Estella Wallace recites in her petition for divorce from Edward S. Wallace that the couple was married at Forest City, Feb 5 1912 and lived together until Sept 15, 1931. That owing to cruel and inhuman treatment of defendant her life and health are endangered. The couple live in Boone township two miles south of Hutchins.

Nanna McMahon asks for a divorce from Joseph McMahon. This couple live northeast of Crystal Lake. The were married at Forest City April 2 1924, and lived togeth er until July 28, 1930. There are no children Cruel and inhuman treatment is charged

THIS YEARS CORN CROP

Private estimates of this year's corn crop placed the total at 2,882. 000,000 bushels. The 1930 crop was 2,094,000,000 bushels and the aver age for the preceding five years was 2,761,000,000 bushels.

Thiso estimate is probably to high. There is little question but what the corn crop in north Iowa, Minnesota, Nebraska, North and South Dakota, and Kansas has been severely hurt by the drought and the husking returns will be very materially reduce present estimates There is a very small carry over of corn following last year's short crop Any great reduction from the above estimate should increase the total value of this year's crop.

TALKING STRAIGHT TO AN EASTERN PUBLISHER

Recently, an eastern publisher inquired of M G. Thornburg, Secretary of Agriculture as to the mental attibude and condition of Iowa farmers. He received the following in reply:

"I think that we can safely say that the average farmer is very much discouraged. With his income cut down by the low price of farm commodities, he is compelled to pay for the things he buys, a price that is not comparable with his income For instance, farm taxes are excessive; interest in loans are increasing; farm machinery is still at war prices; now the rairroads are asking for a 15 cent increase in freight rates. The farmer with the present prices of farm commodities cannot exist and pay these increases.

DAMAGES ASKED FOR DRUG HABIT

Britt Man Sues A. E. Couper Estate for $25,000 in Hancock Court

Damages of $25,000 are asked in the case of Joe Hejlik of Britt against Genevive E. Couper. executrix of the estate of Dr. Couper, formerly of Britt, which has been filed for the September term of the Hancock county district court. The petition stated that the plantiff's wife was first treated by Dr. Couper in 1914 who started giving her drugs. It is declared that the physician without the knowledge of the plantiff or his wife continued administering drugs from three to five times a month until 1925 when drugs were given daily.

In March, 1931, it is stated consultation with other physicians revealed the drug habit. The petition asks $2,000 as money collected for treatments, $3,000 for loss of services and companionship of the plantiff's wife and judgment of $20,000 because Mrs. Hejlik is addicted to the drug habit. IMPROVEMENTS ALONG THE STREET

A number of business places along Main St. the past week improved their respective buildings.

The Creamery has had permanent awnings built out over both the east entrances to the plant.

The Northern Lumber Company have been busy for some time repiling all of the lumber and getting everything in ship-shape. The interior of the yard has been improved by putting siding on the office side and painting it. A display roof will be built against the west wall of the office and will be used as a shingle display.

At the Ford Garage, one is surprised to see what changes are being made. The office has been repainted as well as other parts of the building. Wall board has been put on the ceiling of the garage and the entire interior of the building will be painted.

Editorial Comment

THE FIGHT IS ON!

A newspaper should be as much a part of the community in which it is published as the schools churches and organizations composed of a large part of that community. The newspaper should work / hand in hand in whatever the community as a whole is interested. A community newspaper can either help put over a project, or it can do a lot of damage in hindering the same.

Right now there is a movement on foot to put into operation a new telephone system in this community The Klemme Times has always considered itself a part of this community and with this thought in mind we are going to do all we can to help the new telephone company to ward its goal. There are no two ways about it and we will fight to the last ditch to help the farmers. business men and citizens of this community to have what they want.

This community wanted lower telephone rates but the Iowa Union Telephone Company could not see it that way. A large number of telephones have already been taken out mostly by farmers. How many telephones have been taken out we do not know and we doubt if we could find out. At any rate, there have been so many removed that the service is crippled. Try to phone your neighbor; chances are Central will inform you that he does not have a telephone. What good is that kind of service—if we can't talk to our farmer friends over the telephone? Whose fault is it anyway? We will guess with you! Could all this have been avoided? We think it could, but we think too, that it is now too late for the Iowa Union Telephone Company to get off their high horse. We are buying our own horse in this community.

We can see the Iowa Union's side of this affair. The must keep up the rate in order to satisfy the craving for profits which are grabbed off by their greedy investors. They need all they can get. If we are correct, the Iowa Union has ten other systems in Iowa, and another number in Minnesota. If they had cut the rate here, what about those other exchanges They would climb their necks also for a rate reduction, and then blooie would go the profits, and that would not be so nice. That is the whole thing in a nutshell—too many share in the profits, and they can't make both ends meet for loss.

Loyalty to the new company—The Klemme Community Telephone Company—will put it over and put it over BIG! When the men who are out getting subscribers for stock in the HOME company come to you—stick with them. Then continue to stick with the HOME company. United we will stand; but divided we will be a bunch of saps! And, we don't chose to be the latter.

IS THE BACKBONE BROKEN?

The way we look at it. the backbone of the depression is broken right now. and we back up our statement with facts.

40,000 buyers for retail establishments are given as the normal figure in the New York buying centers This year there has been an increase of over 10 per cent in the number of buyers. and they have bought an increased volume. These men and women who buy at the great merchandising centers set the wheels of industry in motion, and especially at this time when all stocks are low in all lines, it is bound to have a very favorable effect.

When the buying centers are swamped with orders the industries begin to buzz to turn out commodities needed, and the manufacturers need raw materials—men are put back to work—and the depression is broken.

One of the best facts to site is the shoe industry. Only a few short weeks ago retail stocks were so low the public demands could not be met. Buyers went to market, jobbers went to factories and factories went to work. Today, the shoe manufacturing towns are back to prosperity and enjoying real boom days

The farmer will say (and we are all farmers in this state)' "Where do we come in at?" All right, with labor back on the job, it is going to spend money and there is going to be a demand for food. Demand creates price and we have the food—pork beef, corn. All of this is not going to happen overnight, but indication are that we are on the upward trend once more.

Another thing worth boosting is high school athletics. Everybody should be interested in the local school and you can do a lot towards encouraging our boys and girls toward higher goals by attending the athletic events. Try it!

Good morning, how's your telephone!

Yes. we still think it would have been a good thing for Klemme to have GAS brought into town. We will be disappointed if this does not get a rise from someone who was opposed to GAS.

RESOLUTIONS

Be it resolved by the citizens of Hancock county in a county wide meeting assembled at Britt, Iowa, Friday, September 25, 1931, that in as much as the prevailing market price levels of the commodities that the farmers of this community and the entire state are required to accept it is the sense of this meeting that regardless of the cause of causes, be they economical or political; be they naturally or artificially maintained. that as a matter of compulsory economic necessity, the price levels of all commodities purchased by the farmer, and the countryside which he supports, must be lowered to the same general levels paid to the farmer forsaid commodities sold by him upon which he must base his buying capacity, his cash or credit transactions; and since such great disparity in price levels now exists between farm commodity prices and prices of all manufactured articles and general services rendered by our common carriers and public utilities and service corporations, be it

Resolved, that it is the sense of this meeting that a definite protest of a direct and forceful economic significance should be made and is hereby made by this meeting.

Whereas, the retail prices of all farm machinery stand at approximately war time levels in spite f decreased raw material prices and cheaper labor, with no prospect of a price reduction for 1932, therefore be it

Resolved, that we farmers pledge ourselves to not buy and do hereby refuse to buy any more farm machinery of any character, including tractors, until the price of farm machinery stands on a parity with the price of farm products.

Whereas. the price of farm machinery is maintained at an unyielding price level not justified by general economic conditions, we demand that our state representative bring this matter before the state legislature at its next session and inquire into the sales policies and trade practices of the farm machinery companies doing business within the state and determine if their prices are fair and if competition between them is fairly maintained and free from trade agreements in violation of the Sherman law.

Whereas. the automobile has been a predominant factor in draining this county of its liquid assets and producing a shortage of money necessary for the conduct of legitimate commercial and agricultural activities, therefore, be it

Resolved, that we declare a vacation on the purchase of any new automobiles and trucks until such time as the price of such commodities are on a parity with the general price level of agricultural products.

Whereas, the citizens of Hancock county are paying the public service corporations of Hancock county substantially the same rates for service today as they did in the days of the highest inflation and high costs of operation, and whereas the price of raw materials have all declined and cheaper labor in plenty available, we feel the rates now charged are entirely out of line with economic conditions and these rates must be reduced, since it will not be consistent with good business methods to continue to pay war time prices for such service on such an unfair exchange of commodity rates as the farmer receives for his products, therefore be it

Resolved, that the chairman of this meeting be empowered to name a committee to take such action as its judgment dictates to seek reduced rates from such Public Service Corporations doing business with the citizens of Hancock county.

We express grave concern for the future of agriculture and belive so-called "chain-farming" by large corporations detrimental to the agricultural life of every community. that the country is better served by a happy contented people operating and living upon our agricultural lands; that if the individual could own and operate his own farm, the danger of corporations or "chain-farming" would be entirely eliminated and the lands again placed in the hands of those who could and would live upon and operate them as has been the practice in the past, and to that end, we favor and commend to our Senators and Representatives in the National Congress for their earnest consideration, the creation of an agency by the Federal Government or the enlargment of the powers of some agency already created, which shall have for its purpose, the right and power to make first mortgage loans on agricultural lands at a rate of interest not exceeding three per cent (3%) to individual owners of land, provided that no loan shall be made to any person, firm or corporation or any subsidiary of any corporation on any acreage in excess of 640 acres; that said loans may be made for a period of time not exceeding thirty-five (35) years, upon the amortization plan, and that bonds of the Federal Government be issued and sold at such a rate of interest as may be attractive to capital, but such rate that the interest received from the mortgage loans will be amply sufficient to pay the interest rates on said bonds and the carrying charge; said bonds to be issued as obligations of the Federal Government and secured by the first mortgage securities on agricultural lands.

We heartily endorse the four suggestions of H. A. Wallace, namely:

.1 The passage of a joint resolution instructing the Federal Reserve Board and the Department of the Treasury to use their powers to bring th price level up to the 1926 point.

2. The appointment. at once, by President Hoover of a commission on legislation on stabilizing the price level permanently, this commission to report to the next session of congress.

3. The calling by President Hoover of an international conference of central bank heads to devise ways of stabilizing world prices at the 1926 level.

4. The recognition, by the Federal Reserve system, of real estate, particularly farm land, as approved security for loans.

And pledge our support of this policy, believing that it will be of benefit to agriculture and speed the day of return of prosperity to the nation and forestall more radical actions and proposals and we ask our representatives in congress to use their untiring effort to obtain necessary legislation to that end.

Whereas, U. S. Senator L. J. Dickinson has defended the Hawley-Smoot tariff measure in numerous public addresses, and whereas the farmers of Hancock county believe this tariff bill to have contributed in a large measure to the chaotic maladjustment now faced by the farmers of Iowa, and that they have been most grossly misrepresented by their legislative servant in this matter, therefore, be it

Resolved: that the citizens of Honcock county in mass meeting assembled do hereby strenuously disapprove and hereby severely censure the defense of the Hawley-Smoot tariff by U. S. Senator L. J. Dickinson as being an entirely indefensible action. and that a suitable copy of these resolutions be presented to Senator Dickinson by the secretary of this committe.

Whereas, it is becoming increasingly difficult or absolutely impossible to obtain adequate financing for fundamentally necessary agricultural operations. be it

Resolved, that there is a definite need for a strictly Agricultural Credit Corporation in and for Hancock county organized under the terms of existing agricultural relief legislation enacted by congress and that a committe be appointed by our chairman to survey the field of operation to determine the extent of the demand for such corporate existence and if sufficient demand exists for such a corporation to serve the pressing economic needs of the farmers of Hancock county to call a meeting to organize for the incorporation and sale of stock.

Whereas, the present livestock marketing situation in Iowa is entirely disorganized and in a chaotic condtion due to several causes but largely on account of the utter failure of the National Marketing plan under the direction of the Farm Board to build a National Marketing organization from the top down without regard to the recognition of the splendid fundation established by the loyal services of the fathers of the Iowa Cooperative Live Stock Shippers Association, and whereas, the State of Iowa occupies a predominant position in the production of livestock by virtue of its production of 28.5% of all fat swine 20% of all fat cattle and 33% of all fat lambs produced in the United States, and whereas. the income of the farmers of Hancock County and the state of Iowa is being reduced daily by the decline of livestock prices through unorganized selling; we believe the time is now opportune for the Iowa livestock producer to assume control of the marketing of his own livestock, and their best interest can best be secured by an authorative central selling agency therefore, be it

Resolved, that the chairman of this meeting be empowered to appoint a committee to work for and secure a Central Selling Agency at Des Moines which can speak with authority for the vast majority of all intelligent livestock producers of the state giving due and just recognition to the officers and framework of organization of the Iowa Cooperative Live Stock Shippers Association who have qualified for this trust by ten years of unswerving loyalty to the best interests of the livestock producer and shipper.

Fall Repairing

NOW Is the time to be inspecting your ROOF— does it leak? If so maybe a bundle of Shingles will put it in order so that you can get through the Fall and Winter without it ruining your plaster. It does not take much moisture on the plaster to stain the painting or even cause the plaster to let loose.

What about the CHIMNEY? Inspect your chimneys carefully NOW. If they look like the mortar is poor, look them over careully AT THE ROOF LINE— that is the DANGER point. These little precautions may save you a lot of money an trouble.

Don't put it off, have it done now!

Here's something of interest for the fellow who goes fishing and gets a "big one" with no means of weighing him. Popular Mechanics says that the weight of a fish can be determined by measuring him. To do do this, square its greatest girth by inches, multiply the result by its length, then divide by 800. and you will have its weight in pounds. The more symetrical the fish, the more accurate the estimate

Sweet Young Thing: "Sixty five! Don't be silly. I couldn't have been going over 30 at the most. In fact. I don't believe I was going more than 25 at the outside."

Cop: 'Well, maybe you're right. I'll just tear this ticket up and give you one for parking."

So New And Yet So Old

A doctor was called in to attend an ailing baby. "You'll have to give him a dose of castor oil," said the medical man to the child's mother.

The mother, one of the ultra-modern type, had expected the prescription to take the form of violet-ray bath or something like that.

"But doctor." she said," castor oil! Castor oil is such an old-fashioned remedy!"

The doctor nodded in agreement. "Babies , madam," he replied, "are old-fashioned things."

Two men were having an argument as to whether or not there was a hell.

After a prolonged argument, with out reaching a decision, they decided to settle it by asking Isaac Goldstein. who happened along.

Isaac sand he would ask them one question and leave it to them to decide for themselves. He asked, "If there is no hell, then where has business gone to?

TRUST the women-folks to make interesting discoveries! Hundreds of them are using Dairymen's Wyandotte regularly for the family wash.

Try it next washday, and see what a difference it makes in your clothes. You will find that they come out cleaner, whiter and sweeter-smelling. You save half the work and half the soap.

And your clothes last much longer—because Wyandotte softens the water and gently separates the particles of dirt without injury to the fabric.

Use Wyandotte for all your cleaning—kitchen utensils, dishes, glassware, pails, cans, separators, milking machines. It costs less to do your cleaning with it. Get it from your local dealer. The J. B. Ford Co., Wyandotte, Mich.

When his moher returned from the booth she immediately noticed he had gone and started looking for him. She went up Federal and to a dime store as all children enjoy going in thore but she could not find him. So after some time had been spent hunting for him she notified the police and they soon located him but he had gone over to Delaware street instead and was still looking for the tractor. DOINGS AT SCHOOL THE PAST WEEK

HIGH SCHOOL NINE DROPS GAME TO GOODELL

Experiments Held Each Tuesday In Physics Class

The Klemme boys again failed to swing the "Bamboo clubs" for a winning score after Goodell took the lead in the late innings and lost the game 6 to 7.

Henry Smid, the curve ball pitcher for the green and white held down the mound position. while Sampson, still limping from his sprained ankle a few weeks ago played first base. C. Kluckhohn played his regular position as catcher and K. Kluckhohn played third base. Missman, Hughes, A. Keeper and Jost played their regular positions and L. Drake played left field.

The physics class have experiments each Tuesday. Six experiments are worked on at the same time. At each table there are four students. Each group of students moves to the next table the following Tuesday. Everyone seems to be getting the greatest possible benefit from this method.

Grades 5 and 6

Eugene Kluckhohn was absent from Grade five Wednesday because of illness.

Glen Lewis had to leave school Friday afternoon because he did not feel well.

The fifth grade have begun their study of South America. They have work books which follow their text and enjoy working in them.

The sixth grade began their study Monday on "newspapers". Each part of the paper is to be studied seperately and then the class is going to make one of their own.

Grades 1 and 2

Mrs. Geo. Ulrich was a visitor in the first and second grades Thursday afternoon. We are always glad to have folks come and see what we are doing.

The following boys and girls have been absent in the primary room the past week: Luella Lewis, Leonard Kaduce, Eugene Haberkamp, Melvin Coobs, and Homer Blickendefer

We are very sorry to lose Mavis Leitzinger from our room. She will be enrolled in the kindergarten at Garner for the remainder of the year.

The first and second grade will commence their rhythm band work next week. They have been having preliminary rhythm work since school started.

The primary pupils were weighed again. This time the results were much more satisfactory. 18 pupils gained from one to three pounds during the month of September 4 children kept the same weight and one child lost two pounds.

Any Woodcock In Iowa?

A report recently reached the office of the state fish and game commission to the effect that woodcock had been seen in Iowa. Anyone knowing of such birds will be conferring a favor by notifying the fish and game department at Des Moines There was a time when these birds were extremely plentiful in the state but like the prarie chicken and several other species of game birds, woodcock are about gone.

DO NOT WANT OPEN SEASON

Farmers in the Goldfield section of Wright county are opposed to an open season on ringneck pheasants this year. Several petitions have been circulated in the county recently asking that no open season be granted by the state fish and game commission. Not only are the farmers opposed to allowing outside hunters to come into the county and take away the birds, but they say the pheasant has been instrumental in destroying noxious weeds and worms.

There has been much dissatisfaction on the part of farmers generally over the oounty at the manner in which outside hunters have conducted themselves and at the flagrant violation of the law in the matter of observing the bag limit.

One petition circulated showed a ratio of about fifteen to one against the open season this year.

August Greiner and Jack Etaon, two state deputy game wardens, who look after violations in northwestern Iowa, enriched the state of Iowa recently by some $360. being fines ossessed against some twenty-one violators of the state fish and game laws. Arrests were made for dynamiting, fishing without a license, falling to attend set lines, seining fish, selling fish without a license.

Moulton, Appanoose county, residents will soon have plenty of fish, providing no accidents occur to the 100,000 bullheads recently planted in the city reservoir at that place. The fish were trucked from Clear Lake by the state fish and game commission.

KLEMME GIRL MARRIES BRITT YOUNG MAN

Miss Octave Church and Elmer Anderson Wedded Saturday

Saturday afternoon, October 3, 1931; Miss Octave Church and Mr. Elmer Anderson were united in marriage at the Reformed Parsonage in Klemme by Rev. C. Grosshuesch. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ward Klemme, were witnesses of the ceremony.

The contracting parties are well known in this community. The bride is a daughter of Mrs. Mary Church of near Klemme. She is a charming and refined young lady who is popular with the young set of the community. Mr. Anderson, who is a son of Mr. David Anderson of Britt is an industrious young man of excellent qualities and has a good position at Britt, where the young couple will make their home.

This happy romance has been going on for seven years, so the marriage was not altogether a surprise to the many friends of the young couple.

Following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Anderson drove to Des Moines to spend a few days before going to Britt to reside.

The Times joins with their many friends in extending congratulations and best wishes.

O. E. Hoel, caretaker of the Clear Lake pike nursery. is very much gratified at the growth of the fish in the nursery pond. He says that the fish have attained a growth of from four to seven inches in 97 days but that they vary so greatly that it is assumed that the larger ones have been feeding on the smaller ones. The general average is about four inches. Water is being pumped into the pond from a nearby drainage ditch at the rate of some 500 gallons a minute. There is an unusual growth of vegetation owing to dry weather conditions and this affords fine protection from birds and the sun. Intwo months more these pike will be seined and put into Clear Lake.

AROUND THE COUNTY WITH AGENT WEISS

KEEP YOUR CATTLE AND HOGS OFF SEEDINGS FOR NEXT YEAR

Test Land For Limestone Requirement; Apply 6 Mo. Before Seeding

With the continued warm weather, it is easy to allow your cattle and hogs to pasture down your new seedings and old alfalfa or clover seedings. Your livestock should not be on these crops if you hope to retain them next year. Give the crop a chance to grow up so that they will not winter kill. Good growth before winter is good insurance for next year's crop.

If you intend seeding alfalfa or sweet clover next spring, don't fail to test your ground for limestone requirement now so that if limestone is needed you can apply it this fall. For best results the limestone should be applied 6 months to a year ahead of seeding. Remember to apply the limestone on top. Do not apply limestone and then plow it under. It is a good policy, however, to drag the limestone in if put on plowing, but never plow it under. If in doubt whether lime is needed, get in touch with the County Agent or send your sample to the Farm Bureau office.

If you have set out a young shelterbelt, do not fail to give it attention within the near future. Many fine young plantings have been ruined during their first few years. Guard them against being damaged by rabbits. A rabbit tight fence around the tree lot is advisable, but, if that can not be done, fence each tree so that rabbits cannot bark them. By all means, mulch the tree with straw. This protects the trees and also keeps down the late fall weed growth.

If you have not already done so. do not put off picking your seed corn any longer. Picking seed corn is hard work, especially this year, but it is time very well spent. Be sure to store the dried seed corn in a seed house or attic where it will remain dry. Also hang it so that the ears will not touch each other and where mice cannot destroy same.

Many farmers are already to start picking corn, some have already started. It seems to me that with the existing price of corn, 2½ to 3c is the most you should pay for picking. At that price the average picker can make fair wages along with room and board

NOW PROPRIETOR OF GARNER FILLING STATION

Harold Leitzinger and family have moved to Garner where Mr. Leitzinger closed a deal the other day and is now proprietor of the filling station and lunch room on the west side of Highway No. 15, just west out of Garner. The former proprietor of the station and hie family have moved to Klemme and reside in the house vacated by Leitzinger.

NATURE HAS YOUNG IDEAS IN KLEMME

The past seasons this year have been quite topsy turvy in more ways than one. Instead of getting the rains in the spring and summer, we are getting them this fall. In Klemme one will find many rose bushes in bloom and a lilac bush west of the old State Bank is in bloom. Several gardens about town, have straw berries nearly ripe.

Will Have Ambulance Service

Arthur Wellemeyer recently purchased a large Buick sedan which he has remodeled and fitted up as an ambulance. The car is so constructed that in a couple of minutes time it can be converted from a sedan to an up-to-date ambulance with full equipment. Mr. Wellemeyer is to be congratulated in giving Klemme and vicinity this added service.

Show your loyalty to the home town boys by attending their benefit dance, Saturday, October 10th.

HANCOCK 4-H CLUB BOY WINS HIGH HONORS AT WATERLOO

Elmer G. Messelheiser, 13year old Hancock County 4-H club member from the Grimes-Avery club with V. A. Cook leader. entered his yearling colt in the grade class in the National Belgian Horse Show held in connection with the Dairy Cattle Congress at Waterloo.

The colt shown at Garner as a foal and at Garner and the North Iowa Fair as a yearling had not tasted defeat and much speculation was in store as to the outcome at th National Belgian Horse Show at Waterloo. Just how far up he would place in this latter show was only speculative because the competition there is very keen. Time, and time only will tell, but, the only thing known for sure was that Elmer would not be found at the bottom. Some hoped for even a second or third place but very few were bold enough to place the colt at the top until its competition might be looked over.

Early Monday morning, September 28th found Elmer and his colt traveling the highway to Waterloo. Monday, Tuesday Wednesday and Thursday, Elmer wae always to be found brushing, washing and combing his colt. Each day also found Elmer running or walking his colt for at least two miles. During the exercise periods showmanship wae also practiced.

Friday was the big day and found Elmer up bright and early cleaning his colt. With the able assistance of Harry Linn of the Iowa Horse and Mule Breeders' Ass'n. his tail was braided and tied up and his mane braided and ornamented with flowers in readiness for the showing.

Eleven o'clock Friday morning found the grade yearlings in the ring being looked over by three nationally known judges, namely: Geo. Potts of Urban, Ill; E. A. Trobridge of Columbia, Missouri and J. C. Ritchie of Stratford, Iowa. At 11:30 Elmer and his colt were in possession of the first prize ribbon for having the best grade yearling colt in the open class at the show. Another half hour found Elmer and his colt in possession of another blue ribbon for the best yearling colt owned and shown by any club boy or girl. This did not conclude Elmer's honors, but, the three judges also exclaimed that a lot of old horse showmen might obtain many lessons on showmanship from Elmer So tense were the minutes in the ring that on being presented the blue ribbon Elmer cried for joy.

M. C. Turner, Clear Lake fisherman, recently caught a thirty pound carp on a hook and line. He was fishing from the White Pier dock when he hooked the big fish. Thinking that he had more than he could handle easily, he jumped into his boat and rowed out to the fish stunning it with a blow from the oar before he landed him.

Fall flights of ducks this year will be about as low as they have ever been, according to authorities who have scanned the situation carefully. There are quite a number of local ducks. but these will last but a short time after the season opens. Ducks from the north will be as scarce as the proverbial hen's teeth, if predictions come true.

NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING

There is this to be said for newspaper advertising: It doesn't shout at you when you are trying to concentrate on something else; it doesn't obscure the view and mar the landscape; it doesn't interrupt your enjoyment of a good grand opera program; it doesn't clutter up your mail and your waste basket; it does not make you turn to page 37 and then shuffle thru eighteen more pages to finish your story; it does not clutter up your front yard or obtrude itself onto the seat of your motor car on Saturday afternoons. It is like a well trained servant—never intruding or making itself obnoxious, but always quietly at hand ready to give service when called up on.

ARE WE CONSISTENT?

Britt News-Tribune: Some of the people in the Klemme territory are going about organizing a telephone company in retaliation against the company operating there because they could not induce them to lower the phone rates charged for farmer phones. If those people have the means to build their own line, or buy out the line established there, it cannot be that they are too poor to pay rental on a phone. Does not that action defeat the very purpose for which the Klemme folks set out.

And those elements of society consistent who condemn the public utility, telephone, electric light and gas companies, arguing that the money spent with them all goes out of the country; while at every opportunity we are sending our money to Sears-Roebuck, Montgomery -Ward, and other distant concerns?

We will never get anywhere by destroying the other fellow.

EVEN IN COLD WEATHER IT IS A MONEY SAVER

You may think that the hot months are the only months in which an Electric Refrigerator is a big money-saver. Such is not the case. The owner of an Electric Refrigerator knows that in the fall and even in coldest winter months they are saving money. Many Electric Refrigerator owners report that in the first year they saved almost half the entire cost of their refrigerator. In other words, an Electric Rerigerator will easily pay for itself in two or three years. And these yearly savings will continue to accumulate for many years after it is paid or. An Electric Refrigerator will be one of the most profitable investments your family ever made.

WHITER, CLEANER, SWEETER SMELLING

TRY Dairymen's Wyandotte Cleanser next washday. You'll be pleased with the way it does its work. It softens the water and loosens all the dirt without injuring the fabric. Your clothes will go to the line whiter, cleaner, and sweeter smelling. And you won't be all worn-out when the job is done. And it saves a lot of heavy work and half the soap you ordinarily use on wash day.

This highly efficient cleanser first became known to dairymen as something that could be depended upon to clean dairy utensils and equipment. Then housewives reasoned that if it was so good for the dairy, surely it was just the cleanser they needed in the kitchen — for pans, dishes and glassware. And then they used it on the family wash and found that it left clothes cleaner than anything else they had ever used.

A better dairy cleanser! A better household cleanser! This, in a few words, is the history of Dairymen's Wyandotte. Just try it and see for yourself what it will do for you. Your local dealer has it. The J. B. Ford Company, Wyandotte, Michigan.

BELMOND MAN FINED FOR CARRYING GUN

BELMOND COUPLE FALL INTO CLUTCHES OF LAW HERE

Late Friday Night Celebration Lands Man In Jail

A call from the Becker farm Friday night at about 10:30 stating that shooting was going on near there sent Klemme officials scurrying out that way to ascertain the trouble. Mayor Stille was informed and he procured the services of Ed. Jacobs, Paul Grange, Ben Coobs and Jim Thomas. The men left in two cars, Stille and Jacobs in one car which drove ahead and past the disturbers. Grange, Coobs and Thomas fololwed up and the two Klemme cars succeeded in stopping the car wanted near the Stone school house east of Klemme. Marshall Coobs disarmed the man who was accompanied by a woman companion and both were brought to Klemme. The man who gave his name as A. L. Lamb, Belmond filling station proprietor, was lodged in jail to await trial. His companion was taken to her home in Belmond. While the Klemme men were in the chase Sheriff Cress was called as the car was headed toward Cerro Gordo County He immediately started a search for the disturbers. Sheriff Hanson was likewise called but could not come to the assistance of the Klemme men.

"Smut" Smid, who works at the Ed. Becker farm, was driving home when he saw a car ahead of him evidently in distress. Smid says he slowed up his car as he approached and as he did so, thought he saw a gun flash in the car. He did not stop further to investigate but drove up the lane to the Becker farm. As he did so he heard several shots fired. The alarm was then turned in to officials.

Lamb was tried in Stille's court Saturday morning. Sheriff Cress was here for the trial and Sheriff Hanson was on deck. The evidence presented was more than sufficient to fine Lamb on a gun toting charge to which he pleaded guilty and was fined $10 and costs, a very light fine for that particular crime. It is alleged that Lamb was intoxicated when arrested and this charge along with driving a car while under the influence of liquor and carrying concealed weapons might have been serious if it had been pressed. However he was let off with a light fine and allowed to return home.

The boys had a small forge, anvil and other tools needed and put on a very realistic demonstration by starting a fire in the forge. heating iron red hot and hammering it out on the anvil. The anvil was set up on corks so that it would ring loudly. In another section the Klemme Troop demonstrated Astronomy with several other groups. The field lights were turned off and Troop 56 displayed the Great Northehrn Cross.

500 SIGN PETITIONS

In contrast to some of the counties in Iowa where pheasants are plentiful or where they do well, comes word from the George News that more than 500 signatures have been obtained to petitions asking that an open season be declared. The News says that it is generally conceded that there are more ringnecks in the county thins year than ever before. "The weather has been ideal for them and with the open winter of last year the spring carry over was considerably larger than usual. There should be better shooting this year than last—and that means more than ever before." Both game wardens in that locality Butler of Arnold's Park and Hartman of Spirit Lake, agree with these deductions.

SCHOOLS BENEFIT THROUGH FINES

Des Moines:—It may not be generally known, but whenever a violator of Iowa's fish and game laws is arrested and fined, the school fund in the county in which the arrest was made profit by exactly the amount of that fine. This should make for increased law enforcement in every county on Iowa's fish and game laws. Last year (year ending June 30) the amount of these fines aggregated $34.625.50, with costs of $9.230 96 going to the fish and game department. Violators during this same year spent 2,291 days in jail. During the year 1930 fines amounted to $35,659.43 and costs were $7.080.91. Violators served 664 days in jail. Every succeeding year sees a more strict enforcement of these laws.

REPORTS MANY LOCAL DUCKS

R. G. Grobaty, local game warden has some interesting news for duck hunters in a report which he recently mailed to the state fish and game department, Des Moines. Mr. Grobaty says:

"It may be of interest to you to know that in my territory of Hancock, Winnebago, Cerro Gordo and Worth counties there are more ducks this year than in several seasons past. Hunters in all four counties are of the opinion that duck shooting will be excellent, provided of course the weather stays fit. Along with the small ducks, mallard and pintails are here in great numbers and are finding great feeding grounds in the fields where corn has been shocked."

FARMERS SHOULD SEND IN NAMES AT ONCE

Mr. T. R. Riehm, chairman of the "Iowa Plan" for central livestock marketing, by which he hopes to stabilize this winter's hog prices around $7.00 per cwt. F. O .B. loading station, has announced that he is desirous of obtaining this week the required number of signatures from Hancock Co. to the end that he may launch the state wide campaign for the plan the first of this coming week.

In order to assist him the Klemme Times is again printing ,at his request, the plan submitted, in ballot form and it is the wish of Mr. Riehm that those who are with him in this livestock marketing program and who have not already signed. to kindly cut out the ballot sign, and mail it to him at Garner, Iowa.

One places himself under no obligation by signing unless the plan is approved by 500 livestock producers and feeder signers in 75 counties in the state of Iowa in which case one has pledged himself. to sell all fat livestock produced for market through the central selling agency formed by representatives from these various counties. Until the association is formed a signer may market his livestock in any manner he desires or as has been his custom

The plan has gained much support from the large livestock producers over the county who realize the problems and market conditions that lie ahead of them and the inability of one man to fight the battle alone for his share of the great naional income, and it is hoped that every livestock producer of Hancock County be he large or small will line up for our livestock marketing program by signing the following ballot and mailing it at once to T. R. Riehm, Garner, Iowa.

—BALLOT—

We livestock producers of Hancock county hereby pledge ourselves to support a livestock marketing program as above described to be hereafter referred to as the "Iowa Plan" and will ship all fat livestock we produce for market through our local shipping association or direct to be marketed through Iowa Producers Cooperative Livestock Marketing Association sales service; providing such organization is formed.

PROTECT YOUR HOGS AGAINST FLU, SAYS COUNTY AGENT

Gives Suggestions To Dairy Men For Balancing Rations

The season for hog flu is again with us so right now is the time to take precautions against the flu. Remember, that your hogs should have a dry place to sleep, not only dry but it should bo well bedded and, too, it should be free from any draft.

Don't allow your hogs to lie in a drafty hog house. Shut off all draft but be sure to have good ventilation. A good cheap house for hogs would be a deep shed open on the south but closed tightly on the north east and west. Then keep heavily bedded. Don't leave your hogs lay around your strawstacks from now on. Shut them in a few nights so they will get used to the sleeping quarters. Remember to have a dry. well bedded, well ventilated and draftless housing place for your hogs.

Dairy men should have been feeding grain all summer to their cows, but, for those that have not and those that have not been balancing the ration for their cows, may I make the following suggestions for fall and winter feeding. If the roughages consists of silage and a legume hay, feed a grain mixture of 400 lbs. corn, 400 lbs oats and 100 lbs. cracked soy beans. If the hay is mixed, used 300 lbs of cracked soy beans, and if it is timothy, corn stover straw, etc, use 400 lbs. soybeans in the mixture. Barley may replace corn; bran may be used instead of oats; and oilmeal may be substituted for the soybeans.

Again, may I suggest that you avoid close pasturing of clovers and alfalfa. Better yet. keep livsetock off, if you haven't already done so.

Now is the time to make suitable water supply arrangements for the winter. A milking cow drinks about 4 lbs of water for each pound of milk she produces. If the water supply cannot be piped into the barn, the water tank should be banked and equipped with a heater. Right now and for some time dairying is and has been our best paying industry, so why not make it pay better by caring for and managing our herds with additional care?

CORN SILAGE PROFITABLE IN LAMB FEEDING

Good corn silage is an excellent roughage for fattening lambs. When properly fed, a ton of silage has a value of at least 800 to 1000 pounds of legume hay. Experiments by Professor King and associates at the Indiana Station, and also others, show that a high yielding corn silage rich in corn grain is worth one-half as much per ton as high protein hays.

It is always wise and profitable in the feeding of silage and farm grain to lambs to give them alfalfa. clover or soy bean hay, once a day, allowing same in the bunks overnight.

A small allowance of supplement such as linseed oil meal, cottonseed meal, or an acceptable high-protein 'superior variety' blend; about one-tenth pound per lamb daily of a supplement. running 30% protein or better is about right.

Bear in mind that coarsely ground corn and cob meal is a safer feed for full feeding with the ration outlined herein above than straight corn or wheat grain .The bulky cob meal prevent overeating, thus it reduces, greatly, the lamb losses; hence on Corn Belt farms corn and cob meal is a real asset in lamb fattening yards.

It is urged that hunters who invade the "open" pheasant counties this year obey the game laws to the letter, because there will be special effort made to see that these laws are obeyed. For instance, one of the most common violations is that of carrying a loaded gun in an automobile. This is a distinct violation and will not be tolerated. It may mean the life of some one and hunters are warned to take down their guns before entering an automobile even if the distance to be traveled is only a few hundred yards.

BEAR DOWN ON VIOLATORS

A good stiff fine when a violator is caught and brought to trial, will do more to knock out lawlessness in a town than anything we know of. A jail sentence thrown in for good measure adds teeth to the sentence.

We believe at least 99 per cent of the people of Klemme are for law and order and stand ready to back up our town officials in handing out good stiff fines to violators. It will only be necessary to sock them hard a few times, the others will set up and take notice and decide that Klemme is a poor place to "celebrate". Bear down on them, officials, and show you mean business.

Teachers stand in better with the community in which they teach when they consider that community their residence. spend a part of their money their and do not go galloping home every week end, but show their interest in church and other community affairs.

That must have been an awful setback to Al Capone when he was hissed and booed out of the stands at Soldier Field in his home town during the recent football game the Al's popularity is slipping.

Over in Cleveland somebody robbed the safe in the police station. Now they expect to hire a night watchman.

We don't know how you bet on the series but there is some satisfaction in having the winning team close home.

Ho, hum! A few more weeks and the political office seekers will be around shaking hands and telling you what a good fellow you are.

Running a business nowdays without advertising is like going to sea in a leaky boat. Maybe you will get there and maybe you won't.

DRY ROTS THRIVE AFTER RAIN

Pick Seed Corn Early and Dry Quickly

Premature ripening of Iowa's corn crop, due to the hot dry weather of early fall and the heavy rains of September, have set the stage for quick development of dry rot in this year's crop.

For this reason, R. H. Porter, plant pathologist at Iowa State College, is urging early selection of seed corn. Early selection and careful drying will enable the farmer to avoid serious trouble with his seed from dry molds and at the same time allow him to make a more thorough selection than would be possible later in the season.

Mr. Porter suggests that two or three times as much seed be selected as will be needed. Whenever possible, pick well dented ears from vigorous, standing stalks which are free from smut and dry rot diseases

Dry rot molds will continue to grow in seed corn after it is gathered until the moisture content is reduced to 15 per cent or lower. These molds cannot grow, however. if the seed is kept at a temperature of from 100 to 110 degrees F. until the moisture has been reduced. For this reason the corn should be put through the drying process as soon as it has been picked.

Improper storage, even though the corn has been thoroughly dried has been the ruination of many bushels of seed corn. If the corn is hung in the driveway of a crib or some other outdoor building, moisture is certain to collect in the corn before cold weather and the molds will have an excellent opportunity to work.

The corn should be stored in a spot where it can be kept dry, away from mice and where the temperature will not get below —5 degrees Fahrenheit.

Hancock County Co-Op. Oil Assoc. Has Site For Station

Officials of the Hancock County Co-Operative Oil Association have been in Klemme the past few days looking over sites for a proposed service station here A suitable site has been secured for a station. Help Enforce the Laws

Tom Johnston supervisor of deputy game wardens in Iowa, would appreciate having anyone knowing of fish and game law violations communicate directly with him at the Des Moines office, or get in touch with the local game warden, there being forty of these men in Iowa. Every effort is being made to enforce the fish and game laws in this State and the public generally can help wonderfully if they will cooperate in informing on those who violate these laws. If we are to have fish and game in the future this must be done Farmers especially are asked to cooperate in enforcing these laws Pheasants and quail are a help on the farm and this is becoming increasingly evident judging by letters coming to the fish and game department. All letters addressed to Mr Johnston regarding game law violations will be taken care of promptly.

Cases of ringneck pheasants flying through automobile windshields are quite common in Iowa, but it remained for one of these birds to do the unusual recently .While driving along the highway in Fayette county, three men were slightly injured by flying glass when one of these birds flew through the windshield of their car, went right on through the back window also, and when the car door was opened, flew into a nearby cornfield.

MISS MILDRED HAMPEL AND RICHARD AX MARRIED FRIDAY

Bride Was Active in 4-H Club Work For Past Seven Years

The wedding of Miss Mildred Hampel and Mr. Richard T. Ax took place Friday in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Hampel, with Rev. Calvin Schmid officiating in the presence of relatives and close friends.

The Bride was attired in a Spanish tile colored flat crepe dress trimmed with squirrel fur, with accessories to match. The only jewlery she wore was an antique necklace which belonged to her grandmother when she was a girl. The Bridesmaid wore a green traveler's print dress The Groom and best man wore the conventional blue. The bridal party took their places before an archway which had been decorated with ferns, flowers and autumn leaves. They were attended by Miss Dorothy Hampel and Mr. Wayne Lemke.

At twelve o'clock noon a three course dinner was served by Winnifred Hampel and Robert Pritchard.

The couple left after dinner on a short honeymoon trip to Omaha and other points of interest in south western Iowa.

Mrs. Ax, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hampel, graduated from the Garner high school in 1927. Since then she has taught school and is at present teaching in this community. She attended college at Ames. She has been very active in girls 4-H club work for the past seven years and has served both as County President and Secretary and was a member of the demonstration team to the State Fair.

Mr. Ax is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ax near Klemme and is a graduate of the Klemme high school Since attending school he has been assisting his father on the farm.

Guests at the wedding were: the bride's parents, sisters and brothers the groom's parents; Wayne Lemke of Algona; Robert Pritchard of Garner, and Rev. Schmid and family.

The young couple will make their home at the Charles Ax farm and Mrs. Richard Ax will continue her teaching duties.

TWO CARS IN SMASH UP NORTH OF TOWN SUNDAY EVENING

Two cars, one a Ford model T roadster driven by Woodrow Schuldt accompanied by Bill Swartz, both of Klemme, and a Ford Coupe driven by "Mac" McMahon, of Garner, collided a mile north of town opposite the Verner Stromer farm early Sunday evening.

"Bill" Swartz was most seriously injured, receiving a bad cut over one eye and injuring the eyeball. He was later taken to a Mason City hospital Woodrow Schuldt received a minor cut and bruise on his upper lip, while McMahon received minor bruises and a sprained foot.

As we gather the story of the accident, Woodrow Schuldt and "Bill" Swartz were driving north on the paving, when they were suddenly confronted by an approaching car which had turned out to pass another automobile and which was coming directly at them. Schuldt swerved to the side to give McMahon clearance when at this point the McMahon car struck the Schuldt car a glancing blow and sent them spinning into the ditch. The Schuldt car remained right side up, but it is thought McMahon's car turned over several times. Both cars were completely wrecked.

CURRENCY MEMORIALS

The bigger the hero the smaller the denomination of the bill which preserves his memory before the public. The dollar bill carries the face of George Washington and the $5 bill that of Lincoln. The Treasury is now issuing a million-dollar bill which carries the portrait of William H. Crawford, and if you have forgotten or never heard of him he was Secretary of the Treasury for nine years more than a century ago. Only a favored few, however can hope to know what he looked like.

TEST WAR AND TAXES

When the whole state is clamoring for a reduction in taxes, along comes an item of expenditure of $55,000.00 representing the cost of sending the national guard into Cedar, Muscatine and Henry counties to enforce the compulsary statewide tuberculin testing of cattle. If that item could be charged up against the three counties involved it would be their hard luck not ours. But as the matter stands it is going to cost every county in the state, Hancock included, for the foolishness of a few farmers who thought they could bluff their way through. Maybe the law has bad points and perhaps it should be revised, but that does not bear on the question, for as long as it is a law the law must be enforced—even at a cost to the whole state.

A DUTY BEING OVERLOOKED

If we are correct, one of the duties of the local volunteer fire department is to make an annual inspection of town properties to see if possible fire hazards, such as defective chimneys, flues, heating plants and rubbish exist, and to report their findings and recommend necessary repairs to the owner. To our knowledge such an inspection has not been made for several years It might not be a bad idea for every property owner to look over his buildings before cold weather and make necessary repairs to reduce his own fire hazard

The Pride Of Playing A Part In The Modern Way Of Living

A few years ago the family washing was a forbidden subject because the proud housewife was unwilling to let her neighbors know that she actually "did the washing".

That, of course, was in the back-breaking days of bending over an unwieldy tub, the housewife's tiring arms plunged deep in a sea of soapy suds.

But now, the application of electricity to household work has lightened the task and given a new dignity to labor in the home

The mere turn of a switch and the greatly dreaded and menial job of washing is uplifted—made acceptable and easy.

It is not within the realm of any woman's desire to do, or to help to do, the family washing in the old-fashioned way. But it is the desire of each of the well intentioned majority to do all that is physically possible to measure up as a help-mate in the true sense of the word.

This is an era of progressive ways of living and the modern housewife is eager to prove her faith. The electric washer enables her to fulfill and actually participate in meeting the responsibilities of thrifty home management without physical strain or loss of dignity.

The installation of this modern household labor saving equipment is a tribute to her advanced ideas of practical economy. The modern housewife no longer shuns discussion of the family washing. With her electric washer she is proud to declare that she willingly "lends a hand", and plays an active part in the modern way of living.

What's unusual about Dairymen's WYANDOTTE CLEANSER

IT CONTAINS no soap, therefore makes no suds. It is all cleanser, and a better cleanser—that's why it cleans dairy utensils better — why it loosens the unseen dirt that is often responsible for milk souring or having a bad flavor.

Wyandotte Cleanser is as helpful around the kitchen as in the dairy. Try it first on greasy skillets, pots and pans. Then you'll want to use it on dishes and glassware. And when wash-day comes around, let it save you work and soap.

Wyandotte Cleanser will not harm clothes, metal, rubber fittings, or any other surface it cleans. And it won't hurt your hands. It costs less to do your cleaning with Wyandotte. Ask for Dairymen's Wyandotte and accept no substitute. The J. B. Ford Company, Wyandotte, Michigan.

AGRICULTURAL SECTION

Roy L. Grove

The high school agriculture class has just finished its first six weeks work. The entire six weeks period was spent on corn. Some very important facts were brought out about corn.

One important thing considered was the selection of corn. The following points were listed as things to consider in the selection of corn.

1. Select before frost. The last two weeks of September have been set aside as the time to pick seed corn.
2. Choose ears of medium size.
3. Select from strong stalks .
4. Pick ears at a medium height.
5. Select from two or three stalk hills.
6. Avoid diseased stalks or ears.

Methods of gathering seed corn were discussed and two important methods were brought out; the one horse cart method and the seed picking bag.

Following the gathering of seed corn storing of seed corn was discussed. The following things were taken up under the question of storing:

I. Methods of storing seed corn
1. Wire hangers made from fence
2. Twine method.
3. Patent hangers.
4. Lath rack
5. Nail system (on studdings, rafters, etc.)

II Essential for storing seed corn
1. Dry. 2. Well ventilated. 3. Even Temperature. 4. Free from all rodents. 5. Convenient.

Desirable places to store seed corn are: Dry sheds, furnace room or furnace heated basement, special corn curing house. Attic or heated spare room, or a tool room that is dry.

Some undesirable places would be on trees, windmill or fence, Outside of granary or barn, over bins of grain or in buildings where stock is kept and damp cellars.

There is still additional material and topics to study about corn that will come later in the year. Ono of the most important of these is the ear testing of seed corn.

This six weeks the class will work on weeds, legumes and grasses.

WELL, WELL, UNCLE SAM IS NOW PRESIDENT

Evansville, Ind.—"Uncle Sam is President of the United States," an alien who took an examination for citizenship papers here said.

"Uncle Sam has been President of the United States for thirteen years and wears clothes of red, white and blue with stars and stripe," the answer read.

Another applicant, when asked to define the Constitution. wrote, "the Constitution is when the United Sates went into business."

Editor R. R. Roberts of the Britt News-Tribune has high ideals in more ways than one. He has growing in his garden a castor bean plant which has attained a heighth of fifteen feet. That's even higher than they can raise beans in Boston.

SAVE ONE-HALF THE SOAP AND ONE-HALF THE WORK IN FAMILY WASH

"Cleaner, whiter clothes than we ever got before; clothes that were sweeter smelling; that's what we secured last wash day. And we did this with half the work, and half the ordinary amount of soap".

Housewives in large cities, in small towns, and on farms, all make the same report about the scientific cleanser long used commercially which is now being packaged for home use.

Following modern methods local housewives find that washing clothes is one of the few daily cleaning operations requiring the addition of soap to the modern sudsless cleanser now available in handy 3 lb. cartons. Soap acts as a carrier of dirt particles and is not needed where hard surfaces like dishes, separators and milking machines are being washed.

Using Dairymen's Wyandotte Cleanser. the same scientific material which is recommended by local creamery men, gives local housewives clean, white, sweet smelling clothes with half the work and half the soap.

DOINGS AT SCHOOL THE PAST WEEK

GIVE NAMES OF STUDENTS FOR HONOR ROLL

14 Boys Report To Coach Grove For Basketball; 6 Lettermen Back

Each six weeks an Honor Roll will be printed of the students receiving an average of 'B' of above. The letter 'B' is equivalent to number 90 to 94 and 'A equals 95 to 100.

Ruth Wellemeyer was the only student in High school to receive 'A' in all her subjects.

The following students received an average of 'B' or better:

Seniors—Blanche Gimer, Emma Goll, Nova Koerner. Thelma Kluckhohn, Paul Hughes, Byrnes Missman.

Juniors—Raymond Drake, Margaret Gates, Nellie Stromer, Irene Harms, La Vohn Larson, Florence Tanner.

The following boys have reported to Coach Grove for basketball:

Paul Sampson, Paul Hughes, Wilbur Arnold, Roy Arnold, Byrnes Missman, Henry Smid, Thomas Gimer, Dorance Day, Clarence Kluckhohn, Harold Jost, George Stokesbary, Percy Brown. Cecil Bridges, Alvin Keeper.

With the six lettermen back from last year a good basket ball team should be developed. Our opening game is with Goodell on Nov. 6.

The Freshman English class recently read the "Gold Bug" by Edgar Allen Poe. They performed an experiment to illustrate an incident in the story; namely that heat will make visible things that have been written with certain substances which have become invisible.

The American Literature class is making a detailed study of William Cullen Bryant's poems.

The English Literature class is reading portions of "The Faerie Queene" by Spenser.

Several new books have been added to our library recently. A volume of "Readings in History", by Robinson and several volumes of Brief Biographies will be of interest to the history classes. "The England of Song and Story" purchased for the English classes tells in an interesting way the customs of the English people during the different periods of English Literature. These books have been purchased with our appropriation from the county book fund. Superintendent Baggs called at the building and delivered them last week.

We have renewed some of our magazine subscriptions and have also subscribed to several new magazines. Our high school offers a variety of reading material that is unusual in a small school.

Three of the English classes last week wrote original essays. There were some interesting revelations in those on the "Art of Killing Time".

The Home Economics girls have been having a series of lessons on meal planning. The class is divided into two groups. Each group is to serve a breakfast to the other group to demonstrate the principles of meal planning that they have been studying. Later we will take up the study of luncheons and dinners in the same manner.

The members most cordially invite you to come and enjoy yourself this coming Saturday evening, October 31.

FORCED VENTILATION TO BE USED IN LAKES TO AID FISH

Waters in North Iowa Will Be Studied Thru Tests by Commission

Man's forced ventilation systems will be used this winter in Iowa lakes to improve on nature.

Ves Baur. fish culturist for the state fish and game commission said that air will be pumped to fish this method of giving them oxygen being a repetition of last year's procedure:

The plan includes the making of oxygen tests by five men from the commission. When they find the oxygen content of the water too low to support fish life, their equipment including special pumping machinery for forcing air under the ice in shallow water will be put into use.

A bout 20 Iowa lakes will be included in the survey. These include Manawa, Blue, Brown, Twin (Rockwell City), Wall, Twin (Goodell), Crystal, Eagle, Medium, Silver (Lake park, Silver (Ayrshire), Iowa and Tuttle. Fish nursery lakes also will be checked.

THE COTTON FIELDS OF KLEMME

Early last spring when several of our townspeople accompanied a car of provisions to the drouth stricken area of Arkansas they brought home with them, among other trophies of the South, a quantity of cotton seed These were handed out to anyone who cared to plant, with the result that many of the gardens in and around Klemme have one or more cotton plants. About the biggest field of cotton hereabouts was grown by Fred Ridder, who has a half hundred or more plants in his garden. The plants are between 4 and 5 feet tall and each has from 40 to 50 balls of cotton. Those who have visited the South say that Mr. Ridder's cotton plants are twice as tall as those grown in the South and our soil is so rich and so well adapted to raising cotton that the Klemme plants have much thicker stems than those of the Souh.

Even tho the killing frost has been delayed a month or so just to give the plants a chance to mature. still the short days and cold nights of October are not quite the thing for maturing a hot weather plant. Besides, if it did mature where could we find a darky to pick it?

Mr. Ridder has taken up a few of the cotton plants and replanted them in pails. One of these can be seen in the Flower Room of Wellemeyer's Store. The plant which has 41 balls of cotton and one blossom will be allowed to ripen in the warm window of Wellemeyer's Flower Shop.

EPWORTH LEAGUE ENTERTAINS SUB-DISTRICT MEMBERS

On Monday evening of this week the Klemme Epworth League were hosts to over one-hundred fifty young people from surrounding towns of Britt, Garner, Thornton, and Clear Lake. These represent the Sub-District Association of Epworth Leagues.

They gathered at the Methodist Church dining room for a seven o' clock dinner which was served by the mothers of the local league.

Following the dinner a program was held in the church auditorium. This consisted of musical numbers and speeches by members of the various leagues.

The main address was given by the Rev. Fred Ortmeyer of Clarion

A business meeting was also held and officers for the coming year elected.

At the close of the program the group returned to the social room for a program of games planned by the local league.

An unusually fine spirit and interest was shown at this gathering.

CULL PULLETS NOW TO AVOID OVERCROWDING IN HEN HOUSE

Hancock County Calves Dressed High at Austin Packing Plant

Right now if you have not already done so is the time to cull pullets so as to avoid overcrowding of laying houses. Eliminate light weight, late maturing pullets so as to have a uniform healthy flock. Discard pullets that have defects serious enough for disqualifications so as to build up the standard of your flock.

If your hens show any signs of T. B., by all means dispose of every one of them keeping only the pullets. Don't forget that T. B. from poultry can be contracted by your hogs so don't keep T. B. hens in your flock.

Hens to be kept in the laying flock during their second year's production must have longevity of production as indicated by late molt and have a good rate of production as indicated by quality and speed of molt. Hens should be kept healthy, of good weight and free from any indication of breaking down. The ordinary farm flock should be made up of not more than one-third old hens.

It may be of interest to some of you especially to those who showed baby beef calves at the North Iowa Fair to know what the calves dressed. Of the 10 calves sold at Mason City the dressing percentage is available on but six of the calves The dressing percentage is the dressed weight of the carcass as compared to the total live weight of the carcass, or, dressed weight of carcass on the hock divided by live weight of the calf.

The average dressing percentage of all the calves that went to the Austin Packing plant from Mason City Show was 62 plus %. Of the Hancock county calves that went to Austin, one dressed average and the others were far above.

Following is the dressing percentages of the six calves.

R. Brouwer's Hereford ..	62.18%
R. Brouwer s Angus	65.45%
E. Weaver's Angus	67.38%
E. Weaver's Hereford	66.03%
C. Greiman's Angus	66.46%
Wiley Weaver's Hereford ..	65.1%

With most of the calves dressing from 59% to 62%, one can easily see that the packer is more than pleased to receive calves like the above and will be more anxious to buy and pay higher prices for calves fed by the above boys in another year.

Over 200,000 acres of farm land in New York state are beiny abandoned annually, foresters of that state assert.

ATTENTION DUCK HUNTERS

Des Moines (Special)—Just as W. E. Albert, State Game Warden, predicted early in the season, local ducks in Iowa are a good crop Ross Moses, deputy warden. Emmetsburg wrote to the fish and game department recently and said that there are more ducks than he has seen for two years on Eagle Lake and Stilson swamp, near Britt. Hancock county. From Sioux City also they are informed by Wm. Schuenke, deputy game warden, that "thousands of geese are resting on the river near that city, and that hundreds of flocks of ducks may also be seen on the river." Reports from other localities in Iowa, where there has been water and opportunity for the ducks to nest an draise their yonug are favorable. The bag covering the duck season is as follows:. 15 ducks any one day, and four geese. One may shoot from 12 o'clock noon on Oct. 20 until sunset November 19.

POISON BRAN KILLS PHEASANT

Reporting from the field, Wm. Schuenke. deputy game warden, of Sioux City, says he has found plenty of evidence in the southern part of Monona county that pheasants have been killed thi syear by poison bran put out to destrop grasshoppers. This poison bran was spread on sections of land around Onawa and Whiting. Mr. Schunke says: "Black birds seem to have been the birds to have suffered most. I found eleven of these one morning at a bird fountain at Mr. Coopers home at Onawa, also have been a great many dead birds on the streets there and on the roads near where this poison was put out."

GIMER ORGANIZES RENWICK CREAMERY

A. D. GIMER WILL MANAGE NEW CREAMERY BEING BUILT

Has Been Manager of The Klemme Creamery For Past Eighteen Years

A. D. Gimer, manager of the Klemme Co- Operative Creamery Company for the past eighteen years is backing a new creamery being built at Renwick. Ground has been broken, concrete foundations run in and the contract for the new building has been let. The new creamery will be 32x64 feet in size and will be built of faced building tile. The building will house all modern machinery which will include a largo churn, two vats, refrigeration plant steam boiler and all machines will be driven by electric motors. Other machinery and equipment of a modern design will be used throughout the plant.

The new creamery at Renwick will be located on West Main Street

Mr. Gimer will use the same system there as has been used here the cream will be brought in by regular truck drivrs, and already he has selected his men to drive the routes.

Has Been Here 18 Years

Mr. Gimer came to Klemme eighteen years ago and assisted in the building of the local creamery, that opened for business on September 22. Since that time the business has grown steadily until today there are 427 patrons who sell their cream here. The creamery this year is enjoying the largest volume of business in its history and is at present manufacturing 200 tubs of butter a week. It is one of the few creameries in this part of the state manufacturing Iowa State Brand Butter.

Mr. Gimer is a competent manager and under his direction the institution has grown. In the past many gold, silver and bronze medals and ribbons have been won for the excellent butter produced.

Son Will Be In New Business

For several years Mr. Gimer has been looking for another location where he might go into business for himself. His son, Harl. who has had a lot of experience in the creamery business, will go in business with his father at Renwick. Mr. Gimer and son, Harl, say they expect to finish the year out here, as the new building will not be ready for some time.

Family Are Community Boosters

Mr. and Mrs. Gimer and their children, Harl, Mrs. Clarence Johnson, Blanche, Thomas and Thelma, are all active community workers. Mr. Gimer has been active on the school board, town council and in the Methodist Church, Mrs. Gimer has devoted much of her time in church work both in the Aid Society and Misionary Society. The children have been active in school and in church affairs. They have all been good boosters and no doubt will carry the same spirit with them to Renwick.

WINTERING GAME BIRDS

It is generally conceded that the primary and principal cause of the game bird shortage in Iowa is not, as many suppose, that the birds have been hunted to extinction, but that they have been starved and frozen to death for lack of winter cover. This is the time of the year, when crops are being harvested, when thought for our game birds should include the saving of a little grain for feed during the winter months. Why not let a few hills of corn stand, or a strip of soy beans, thus providing food for our game birds.

Six months in jail were meted out to an impostor who represented himself as a federal official selling poultry remedies in Webster county Iowa. He was reported by the county agent to government authorities.

RINGSTED TELEPHONE CO. HAS LOW RATES

An item in the Ringsted Dispatch of last week referred to the rates of the Ringsted Telephone Co. to take effect November 1st. The rates published are.

$2 per mouth for business phone, none. shareholder. $1.75 per month business phone, shareholder.

$1.25 per month for residence and rural non shareholder. $1.00 per month residence and rural share holder.

The above rates were published by order of the Board of Directors, of the Ringsted Telephone Co.

We publish the above facts to back the statements we have made in former articles regarding telephone rates in other communities where home owned companies are operated. This shows that telephone companies can be operated with out charging a high rate for service.

That $55,000 cow war that we mentioned last week has now stretched into a $100,000 affair.

It's of no importance, but did you know that men's coats have buttons on the right hand side, while ladies' coats have the buttons on the left side?

And another queer thing we noticed at a recent public gathering was that about ninety per cent of the men who were listening to the speaker had their arms folded. Nothing queer about that until we further observed that nearly all of them had their right hand tucked under the left arm. It happened that our own arms were reversed from the majority, in that we had the left hand nder the right arm. Just for fun fold your arms and see which style you favor.

THE BETTER WAY

It is better to prevent a crime than to punish someone for having committed it. And on the same principle it is better to enforce a few basic laws than to pass new and restrictive laws which are unenforcible and serve only to make lawbreakers of otherwise law abiding citiezens.

This is a fact of which we seem to have lost sight in our passion for passing laws. Probably no other civilized people are bound by so many legal restrictions as we are and it is certain that no other civilized people are plagued , by so much crime or have so conspicuously failed in apprehending and convicting criminals. That is something legislators and voters might take into account when the time comes for consideration of new laws again.

Nearly a quarter billion dollars were collected in the United States from gasoline taxes for road building in the first six months o f1931.

In the "good old days" of sport duck hunters and fishermen used to boast of their big "kills". Today this sort of sportsmanship(?) is decidedly unpopular.

We have just received word from Mrs. John Gruetzmacher and Mrs. P. M. Greismer that they cannot get along without the Times and have sent their renewal for another year. They tell us they are nicely located and Mrs. Greismer has a nice large class of music students and enjoys this work very much. About the first people they met were Dr. and Mrs. Boeye, Pastor, First M. E. Church, a former Pastor of the First M. E. Church of Mason City, who has that tact about him of making one feel that there is a real homelike welcome awaiting one as you enter his church. His church which is one of the largest in the city is well attended and his influence is felt in all the activities of the community. Mrs. Griesemer, at the request of the Boye's has rendered several piano solos during the past few weeks and is scheduled for other program work.

PAY FARMERS FOR HUNTING PRIVILEGES

Better sprtsman-farmer relationship based on a fair compensation to the farmer and adequate protection of his property is necessary if Iowa sportsmen are to enjoy satisfactory hunting in the future, according to Carl N. Kennedy, assistand secretary of agriculture, who is both a hunter and land owner.

"The old-style system of free-hunting on everybody's land, often without permission of the land owner or tenant, must give way to a system of leased hunting privileges in a state like Iowa where there is little, if any, public lands available for hunting," declared Mr. Kennedy

"Farmers feed the game and con trol the land and they must have some protection for their property and live stock and some inducement if sufficient game is produced so that any hunting will remain. Protection to their property is more highly desired by most farmers than renumeration for hunting.

"I would suggest that farmers post their farms with signs stating, 'Leased. Hunting privilege $1.00 daily in advance.' Hunters should encourage such leasing arrangement as a means of building a sound hunting system. The average hunter will spend that much for ammunition,"

ATTENTION TRAPPERS!

Attention is called to the fact that all shipments of furs or game out of Iowa, unless plainly marked on the outside of the package as to con tents, and also giving the name of the shipper, kind and number of furs or game, is a violation of the federal law and subject to a fine of $200. It is also a violation for anyone, not a licensed dealer in furs, to ship out of Iowa, without a permit tag from the fish and game department, any furs whatever from protected animals.

Fish and game regulations were enacted because of the increasingly evident fact that fish and game were becoming scarce and hence needed protection. Out of this grew the fish and game department and the newly created fish and game commission. We are going through a transitional period in which we must realize that it is not only necessary to protect, but to create as well. This will be the obligation of the fish and game commission, that they broaden the scope of the fish and game department, and endeavor to reestablish, as far as possible, conditions which once prevailed in Iowa.

MEAT INSPECTION WORK WILL PROTECT HUMAN HEALTH

A few opponents of the tuberculin test have endeavored to weaken public confidence in the protection which is afforded in the meat inspection work of the federal bureau of animal industry. thereby hoping to discourage the work of tuberculosis eradication, declarey M. G. Thornburg, Secretary of Agriculture

"The meat inspection work was started in 1906 under the Rooseveit administration as a protection to the public. At that time, eminent physicians and veterinarians were called upon to make scientific tests and to establish rules which would designate the standards that would be complied with in passing meat.

"In the examination of carcasses for tuberculosis, it was found that when the disease first attacked an an animal, the infection was confined to a few lymph glands," stated Mr. Thornburg. "These could be removed and destroyed as the disease did not enter the circulation as is the case with such diseases as anthrax. Twenty-five years of experience have proven the soundness of the meat inspection policy.

"All animals which react to the tuberculin test are sold subject to government inspection. The animals are rigidly inspected the same as all other animals. Any diseased parts are condemned and used for tankage and fertilizer. The adoption of any other policy would be an unnecessary waste which would seriously affect the returns from live stock production."

LET THERE BE LIGHT FOR HENS

Many Poultry Houses so Dark They Force Layers Into Hibernation

Too many farm poultry flocks are "hibernated" rather than housed in the opinion of W. R. Whitfield, specialist in poultry husbandry in the Extension Service, Iowa State College.

Windows in the laying house have an important influence on egg production. Conditions approximating the spring period such as abundance of sunlight, comfortable temperature, abundant food and water supply aid in securing high production.

Windows in the east of the house get the birds up earlier; plenty of windows in the south keep the house light and creates the desire to work and eat. Windows in the west allow the birds to go to roost later and windows in the north side under the droping boards permit the greatest possible area of floor space to be used.

The hen, unlike other farm animals, eats all of her daily ration between daylight and dusk. Provision of all possible light influences the hen to increase her ration, thus increasing production.

NOT ENOUGH GOLD IN WORLD

That's the Cause of Present Depression. New York Economist Tells Iowa Extension Workers

Overproduction is not the principal nor the only cause of the present depression, county agents and extension workers attending the annual conference at Iowa State College, Oct. 19 to 21, were told by Dr. W. I. Myers, professor of economics and farm management at Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y.

Dr. Myers gave figures which showed that production in the United States has been decreasing in the past few years, especially the last two seasons. It has not increased as rapidly in proportion to population as it did during 1909 to 1919 when prices continued to rise and there was no depression

The scarcity of gold and its increased value, resulting in the fact that a given amount of gold will exchange for a larger amount of commodities, was given by Dr. Myers as the cause of the present economic situation. Inability of people to replace clothes, automobiles and other products at a normal rate is the reason nations and individuals are suffering, he said.

R. K. Bliss. director of the Extension Service. in discussing the relation of the extension program to the present situation, said that while farmers are waiting for legislation the extension program carried on through the farm bureaus is helping the farmer produce at a lower cost and to meet his immediate problems, such as payment of taxes and expenses of food and clothing.

Director Bliss did not miminize the importance of seeking legislation for equality for agriculture, lower taxes, and other projects in wich the extension service is interested along with other agencies. He stressed the fact that the extension and farm bureau program provides for production, marketing, club work, women's work and community activities.

WATER IS FREE

—if you go to the river for it. But if you draw it at a faucet in your home it costs money. ¶ The greater part of your water bill is the cost of delivering the water—not the cost of the water. ¶ The same is true of electricity. What you pay for is a service which must be dependable and adequate to meet your requirements, whether they are large or small—not the cost of manufacturing the kilowatt-hours you use. ¶ If we could deliver the current to you at the power plant, we could sell it for only a small fraction of the cost of delivering it to your home, office or factory.

AROUND THE COUNTY WITH AGENT WEISS

MAKES CHECK ON SPRAYING DEMONSTRATIONS

Oyster Shell Scale Controlled By Dormant Spray

That Oyster Shell scale can be effectively controlled under average Hancock county orchard conditions by the application of a dormant spray was the opinion of County Agent Walt Weiss and several men from Iowa State College, Ames who recently examined the orchards of J. J. Urick and C. D. Daniels of near Garner. Last April, just before the growth started, Mr Weiss with the assistance of H. E. Nichols, fruit specialist with the Agricultural Extension Service of Ames helped Mr. Urick and Mr. Daniels apply three different spray materials on different trees in their orchards. A 7% solution of two different brands of dormant spray oil were compared with dry lime sulphur, used at the rate of 15 pounds to 50 gallons of water. Recently these orchards were examined by Dr. C. H. Richardson and F. B Paddock of the Entomology Department of Iowa State College together with Mr Weiss and Mr Nichols.

"No outstanding differences in control could be noted between the three spray materials used. Although many scales were still adhering to the bark of the trees. the larger majority of them were dead.

"There is very little diference in cost between the different materials used," states Mr. Weiss. "The price of these dormant spray oils and lime sulphur varies considerably, depending upon how and where purchased so that there is not much difference. A dormant spray is however, the most expensive single spray necessary in the orchard Lime sulphur, especially when used so strong is so caustic it burns the skin and stings the eyes. I found it much more pleasant to use the dormant spray 'oil.'"

The oyster shell scale is causing considerable damage in many north Iowa orchards. This insect is a gray louse that lives under a scale covering. The scale is about 1-8 inch long, shaped somewhat like on oyster shell, and about the same color as the bark. During the winter small white eggs will be found under the live female scales. These hatch in the late spring at which time the bark of badly infested trees will be covered with tiny white lice. Soon these exposed lice build a scale over themselves and suck the sap from the bark all summer long. Where a tree is badly incrusted with this scale, it can make very little growth and often does not produce much fruit. The combination of scale and the drouth of this past summr will cause many old apple trees to. die."

The first thing necessary in getting an orchard back into profitable production is to clean up the scale by applying a dormant spray. If the trees are badly infested, it will require the application of a dormant spray for several years before the pest is effectively eradicated. County Agent Weiss is planning several spraying demonstrations for next spring for the further control of oyster shell scale.

Yields Of Alkali Test Plots Are Given By County Agent

Hancock County farmers are confronted with the problem of reclaiming much alkali ground and for this reason two experimental plots were conducted this past season with corn on alkali ground.

One plot was located on the V. A. Cook farm in Avery township and the other on the Louis Griffen farm in Liberty township. The alkali ground found on your farm is the poorest ground you have. The reason it is the richest is that you have not been able to grow any crops on it as compared to the other land. However this was an unusually cool year for alkali ground in that it was extremely hot. This is a big factor due to the fact that alkali ground warms up very slowly.

Alkali ground is ground that contains an excessive amount of minerals. mostly limestone. For this reason never apply limestone to alkalin ground. You can apply alkali ground to your land that needs limestone, but, of course, on a big scale the cost would be greater than buying limestone.

The two plots will be carried for at least two more years without any more fertilizer being applied.

Following are the results, but, please bear in mind that next year wil probably give much better results unless weather conditions are the same as this last season. Without an exception, the corn stood up better where the potash fertilizer was applied. The yield is in bushels of dry corn per acre with the moisture content removed.

V. A. Cook Plot

Plot 1. Check. 24.77 bu. per acre.

Plot 2. 100 lbs. potash per acre 27.52 bu. per acre.

Plot 3. 200 lbs. potash per acre 27.31 bu. per acre.

Plot 4. 300lbs. potash per acre 33.11 bu. per acre.

Plot 5. Check. 38.75 bu. per acre.

Plot 6. 500 lbs. potash per acre. 43.54 bu. per acre

Plot 7. 1000 lbs. potash per acre 34.08 bu. per acre.

Plot 8. Check. 35.8 bu. per acre.

Louis Griffen Plot

Plot 1. Check. 13.61 bu. per acre

Plot 2. 100 lbs potash per acre 22.25 bu. per acre

Plot 3. 200 lbs potash per acre 30.48 bu. per acre

Plot 4. 300 lbs potash per acre 28 14 bu. per acre.

Plot 5. Check. 32.75 bu. per acre.

Plot 6. 500 lbs. potash per acre. 29.63 bu per acre.

Plot 7. 1000 lbs. potash per acre 30.07 bu. per acre.

Plot 8. Check. 25.87 bu. per acre

Comparing yields in the Griffen plot with an application of 200 lbs potash per acre as against no fertilizer, the yield where potash was applied was nearly four times that of no treatment or 200 lbs. potash per acre gave a return of 39.9 bu per acre and no treatment gave return of 10.9 bushel per acre.

ETHER HEAVY STUFF

If someone asked you how heavy you thought the ether of space is, like the rest of us you would have to say—Idon'no. But Sir Oliver Lodge, the famous British physicist thinks its pretty heavy stuff. In an address at Oxford university recently he opined that this ether business may be almost inconceivably heavy. A pinhead of it. he believes, would weigh a thousand tons. And this causes us to mention that many modern physicists have abandoned the idea of ether filling all space and carrying the rays of light. etc. Space, they think, may be empty except for the various rays shooting through it like bullets through a vacum. But not so Sir Oliver. He continues to believe that ether is something real, that it fills space and that it carries light rays and other such things.

Mary S. Dennis was born in Warsaw, Ind. and passed away at Goodell. Iowa at 3 a. m. on Monday, November 2nd, 1931 at the age of 83 years, 6 months and 9 days. She has been in poor health for a long time but the past eight months has been na invalid and much of the time was unable to get around the house.

She was married to Thomas Dennis at Newton, Iowa, April 10, 1866 Since the death of her husband 13 years ago she has made her home with her daughter, Mrs. Lamer, here at Goodell.

Mrs. Dennis is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Lamer, and son, Ramon Dennis, of Goodell Iowa, seven grandchildren and eight great grand children, also five sisters. Only one sister. Mrs. Louisa Peck, of Indianola was able to come at this time.

Funeral services will be held at Newton, Iowa, Wednesday at eleven o'clock where many relatives and friends will meet the bereaved ones.

She will rest beside her husband in the family lot at Newton, that city having been their residence for many years.

PHEASANT COUNTRY POLICED

Indicative of the thought which the Iowa Fish and Game Commission has with reference to the conservation of wild life in Iowa, Tom Johnston, supervisor of deputy wardens in Iowa, was sent to the pheasant country recently with a view to developing a protective system for the open season (Nov. 6-7). Men will be stationed in every county where hunting is allowed and woe unto the violators who are caught this year with too many birds, or who carry loaded guns in their cars Extra men will be in the field to keep the pheasant territory as free from law violations as it is humanly possible to do.

YOUR GUN AND YOUR CAR

Be sure to see that your gun is taken apart and unloaded, or unloaded and put in a case before you transfer from one shooting place to another, as it is a violation of the law in this state to carry guns in any other manner in an automobile. This was brought to the attention of W. H. Grotewald, Granite (Lyon county), quite forcibly and realistically recently when he was fined $200 for shooting pheasants out of season an dalso for carrying his loaded gun in his car. He was also guilty of shooting from his car. He was picked up by wardens Butler and Hardman. Naturally he is also minus his gun.

No Fur-Bearing Animals In Antarctic

There are no fur-bearing animals of any kind on the land within the antarctic circle. Nor are there any aborigines. The Eskimo, the polar bear, the musk-ox, the arctic fox all of which aid to make the far north interesting to explorers, are unknown to Antarctica. PLANS MADE FOR JUNIOR CARNIVAL

DENTAL CAMPAIGN CARDS GIVEN TO STUDENTS

High School and Grade Basket Ball Teams Have Games With Goodell

Be sure to keep November 20th open for the Junior Carnival. Watch next week's paper for program of the Big Main Show and annoucement of other attractions.

The Iowa Plan for Dental Health education for school children is progressing nicely. Cards for the dentist to sign have been given to every pupil in school. After the cards are returned the pupils name will be placed on the dental honor roll. Everyone in school should have their teeth examined. If dental health is neglected, diseased teeth in the mouths of children are frequently the source of much poor health during childhood. Proper dental care results in improved health conditions, improved scholarships, fewer retarded pupils, better school attendance and better discipline. Better personal health results by clean mouths free from disease and greater resistance to all diseases. It is more economical to have teeth fixed at the proper time. Everyone is invited to help in the School Dental Campaign.

The Klemme High School basket ball team has been working hard for their first game of the season Friday. November 6 when the locals meet Goodell here.

Goodell has a good strong team, with lettermen back from last year should give the local aggregation plenty of competition.

The boys of green and white are working hard to make the strongest team Klemme has ever had. With three weeks of practice as compared to five weeks for Goodell you should see a good game.

The following boys will start the game for Klemme: Byrnes Missman rf; Paul Hughes, lf; Henry Smid, c; Paul Sampson, rg; Wilbur Arnold lg.

Dorance Day, Clarence Kluckhohn and Alvin Keeper also may see action when the locals turn back the fire of the rival team.

The game starts at 7:30 sharp. Come and support the team.

Grades 1 and 2

The first and second grades have made a very good attendance record the past week. There have been no absents or tardiness for the entire room.

The primary room is very glad to report the following visitors during the past week: Mrs Levi Klotzbach, Robert Johnson, and Bruce Arnold.

Grades 3 and 4

Our contest for covered wagons and dolls has closed. Dorance Grang won first prize with his covered wagon and Mildred Jean Sitzer won first prize for her pioneer doll.

The third and fourth graders are enjoying several plants that some of the children have brought.

The children have started stamp booklets for Geography. They are learning all about the men whose faces appear on the stamps. We would appreciate any old envelopes on which are old cancelled stamps.

Grades 5 and 6

Mrs. Calvin Grosshuesch was a caller in grades 5 and 6 Monday afternoon.

Last week Thursday for sixth grade history the boys made Greek theaters out of clay and the girls dressed their dolls as Athenian ladies. The class voted to see whose was best. Wayne Shoafstall s theater was chosen to be the best and Elaine Buntenbach's doll was chosen as the best dressed Athenian lady.

The fifth and sixth grades had a short Hallowe'en party Friday afternoon.

THE VALUE OF FARM COOPERATIVES

In these hard times the necessity and value of agricultural cooperatives have been proven time and again.

The farmer who belongs to a cooperative, has, in many instances, received a good deal better price than the farmer who has done business independently. This is especially true in the case of the dairy industry. Statistics concerning the Dairymen's League Cooperative Association—a pioneer in the field—and other similar organizations, show that, while milk prices are generally low, their members have had a steady market at higher-than average prices.

The principle of cooperation is the most important economic step for agriculture in many generations It has been given sanction by practically all interested public officials and farm leaders as being the solution to profitless prices and shifting markets It is permanent and it is sound—something that cannot always be said for various government relief measures. It is the means of giving the farmer sufficient bargaining power to meet the organized retail industry, with its great buying power on fair terms.

And the farmer should have learned this—that cooperation can only be successful if it is carried on all the time—wether conditions are good or bad. He may not like to pay his dues when he sees no need for it—but in the long run he will get them back a hundred times over If farmers refuse to cooperate when prices are high they have only themselves to blame if they face bankrupcy when the down-turn comes.

As an evidence, of carelessness on the part of hunters, the Tama News reports that John Kauffman, a farmer, had one of his horses shot in the eye recently. This is the sort of thing that farmers generally object to, and while your average sportsman is not careless in the handling of his gun, there are those who are, and like the careless auto driver, doesn't give a "hurrah" for anyone but himself. It is these careless fellows who are making it "tough" for the real sportsman.

A NEW BIBLE

The Bible brought up to date is the idea of a new translation and edition of the holy book prepared by University of Chicago scholars. Making use of some 8.000 manuscripts discovered since the King James translation, together with the light thrown on the subject by scholarly research in the last 300 years, the translators put the text into English words of today's current speech It has been discovered it was said, that the Greek in which the Now Testament was written was not classical but colloquial. The Now Testament translation was under the direction of Dr. Edgar J. Goodspeed, while Dr. J. M. Powis Smith had charge of the Old Testament version. Some errors discovered in the old translations were corrected. For instance, the passage from Isaiah which in the King Jamos version reads, "Though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow," was changed to read, "If your sins be like scarlet, can they become white as snow?" A further modern touch is the abandonment of the two-column page, the lines going all the way across as in ordinary books The following is an example of the new text from the second chapter of St. Luke:

There were some shepords in that neighborhood keeping watch through the night over their flocks in the open fields. and the angel of the Lord stood by them, and the glory of the Lord shone around them. and they were terribly frightened. The angel said to them·

"Do not be frightened. for I bring you good news of great joy that is to be felt by all the people, for today, in the town of David, a Savior for you has been born, who is your Mesiah and Lord. And this will prove it to you; you will find a baby wrapped up and lying in a manger."

People's Column

HERE IS THE ANSWER TO "ARE WE CONSISTENT?"

The Editor of the Britt News-Tribune is all wet in describing the telephone situation at Klemme. It is very plain that Mr. Roberts does not know the town of Klemme very well nor does he know our people. He probably got his information from hearsay. His visits to Klemme are so very infrequent that scarcely anyone can remember having seen him on our streets. Still. he would have his readers believe that Klemme people are rather a bad bunch and that they are unfair to public utilities in general and unfair to the Telephone Company in particular.

The trade territory in and around Klemme consist of 775 families who receive our newspaper, receive circulars and letters from our merchants and tradespeople; they are served by our professional people, they attend our churches, they send their cream to our creamery ,etc.

Before the Iowa Union Telephone Company came into Klemme, two-thirds of the families in this trade territory had Klemme phones and chief complaint against the Iowa Union people today is that they serve only one-third of these 775 families. Not only that, but their rural lines have been allowed to run down to such an extent that they were not worth the money to the rural subscribers and these subscribers have been complaining loudly.

Now then, Mr. Roberts, if you know anything about Klemme, you will know that Klemme people seldom do things by halves, and you know that as a community they cooperate well. To illustrate:

Behold our creamery, 427 patrons making more than 200 tubs of butter a week and our butter is a special brand.too, known as Iowa State Brand butter. This Klemme Creamery makes as much butter as any 2 other creameries in Hancock Co.

How about churches? Klemme has the two newest and most beautiful churches in Hancock County.

How about banks? They all busted in Britt. The old First National at Klemme is still going strong.

Klemme was quick to respond with food for Arkansas. A carload was raised in one day

In livestock shipments, Klemme leads all other stations on this branch of the C. R. I. & P. Ry.

In school matters, Britt has the best school building but Klemme's school building is large enough for our present needs and we have no debt on the building. Everything is paid.

We could keep on but the point we want to make is this:

Kleme must have a Phone System of at least 500 phones and this system must be well maintained and the service must be satisfactory to our people. If the Iowa Union people can do this they had better be at it. If not, why allright—we will proceed to reach this goal in some other way.

And, Mr Roberts, if you have no ideas which would help us, then don't knock and strive to hinder us. The town of Britt needs you, help solve her problems.

Arthur Wellemeyer

GETTING BUSINESS GLOOM BEHIND US

By ROME C. STEPHENSON
President American Bankers Associatio.

THERE is such a thing as over-staying a depression just as there is of over-staying a boom. Over-confidence makes the great majority miss the turn in a boom, and under-confidence makes them miss it in a depression. A leading New York banker was asked recently when he could tell that a turn for the better had come. "About three months after it has happened," he candidly replied.

R. C. STEPHENSON

There is more significance in that remark than appears on the surface. As more and more manufacturers and business men realize that the turn has already come and that they are overstaying the time to adopt constructive policies, they begin cautiously to press their selling campaigns, to speed up their production, to enlarge their working forces and increase their commitments for supplies. It is the gathering weight of their influences that finally raises the pressure of confidence to the dynamic power of recovery.

The surest way to bring the nation out of the business depression is to raise the pressure of public confidence to the point of becoming such a dynamic force. It has invariably been the push of that force which has started recovery in the past, and it is the gathering power of this force which will start recovery from this present depression.

It is a favorable sign of the times that there seems to be general agreement that the bottom of the depression has been reached and all eyes are peeled and looking ahead for the first indications that the turn for the better is in sight. Who knows but what the first thing we know we will find ourselves looking backward instead of forward as we realize that the turn has already come. It is a rough and rocky road that runs across the bottom of the valley of business depression, and most of us are too busy steering the old Ford from bump to bump to be able to take in all the scenery. So who knows but what some important changes in the landscape are already taking place.

BANKERS FAVOR GRADUAL CHANGE

National Commission Believes Local Sentiment Should Govern Evolution in Methods of Conducting Banking.

IF substantial changes are to be brought about in branch banking in the United States they should originate within the states rather than from Washington on inter-state lines as proposed in "trade area" branch banking plans, a recent report of the Economic Policy Commission of the American Bankers Association declares. Such changes, it adds, "should develop by evolutionary rather than revolutionary stages."

"The extension of branch banking through state action would mean that states not now permitting state banks to have branches or else closely restricting them, would individually liberalize their laws as an expression of changing local desires and conditions, and this doubtless would insure a deliberate, evolutionary process," the report says. "The other method, that is, through Federal action, would mean a sweeping change for the country as a whole, for legislation granting branch banking powers to national banks in all states, regardless of local sentiment, would, of course, induce equivalent branch banking enactments in every state in the Union not now permitting or really wanting state banks to have branches, in order to keep them on a competitive equality.

Upholds State Privileges

"We find some bankers who feel that a proper stimulus to the development of branch banking would be given by the Federal Government taking the initiative through granting broader privileges within state lines to national banks than they now enjoy. It is argued that state governments could then follow suit as to state banks and that in this way a more progressive branch banking attitude might be promoted by the national banks taking the lead. While we do not deny that there may be some merit in this view as to some specific localities, we stand firm nevertheless on the principle that no such grant of powers to national banks should cross state lines, or exceed the privileges that state legislatures could and would grant to their state banks.

"Moreover we believe that if the choice between these two possible courses of extending branch banking were put up to bankers they would be generally opposed to any forcible imposition of branch banking on the states through the medium of the national bank system. We believe it would be preferable for any change to come about through the more gradual and democratic method of the states granting their banks branch banking powers state by state where, if, and as local conditions and sentiment might be ready for a change."

"Perfect Road," So Far, Beyond Reach of Man

When you happen to be driving over a stretch of modern road and you find it is a little "bumpy," do not blame the contractor for doing a poor piece of work, because it may not be his fault. In fact, the really perfect road has not been invented and the highway engineers are looking for just this article at the present moment. You are more likely to strike the right lead if you place the responsibility upon nature, for she is beating us, despite all we have learned about building highways.

Not one of the many types of roads we have built is an absolute success. All have their drawbacks. The asphalt road has a bad habit of walking—and walking backward. Our heavy traffic—greater than any previous civilization has had to cope with—acting upon a sun-baked road, causes, first of all, waves in the road. Friction of wheels then causes these ripples to move backward, so that a road may "walk" several inches in a year.

Wood block roads are susceptible to weather conditions. The rain works between the blocks and undermines them. Perhaps the best type of road is the concrete, reinforced with steel mesh. Yet there is a drawback here. Heavy rain may cause flooding and washouts.

Credits Lower Animals With Power of Thought

Of all the questions asked of the animal-man, the one which is oftenest repeated is this: "Do animals really think?" The answer, according to Sherman Horne, famous son of a father famous in the animal business, is an emphatic "yes."

Wild animals do not merely imitate or act by instinct, he insists. "They have brains, and they use them," he writes in the American Magazine. "The chimpanzee is the greatest thinker of all, closely seconded by the other man-apes—the orang-utan and the gibbon. In third place I would put the elephant.

"But keep in mind that I am speaking only of wild animals. A good dog is pretty hard to beat.

"Apes possess a surprising ability to learn the meaning of words. The elephant's mind is also very keen; he can be trained to do almost any kind of work within reason, and he will think for himself, too."

Older Than Rome

Este, in Italy, a city older than Rome and claimed by historians to have been founded after the taking of Troy, is a victim of an odd proclivity. Tourists seem to pass it by without any pangs of regret, not realizing what a wealth of noble memories it treasures within its walls. Yet few ruins are more reminiscent of ancient times than the fragmentary structures of the old castle, built in the Fourteenth century by Ubertino of Carrara and the basilica of Santa Tecla, whose origin is lost in the mists of antiquity, which stands close by. It was here that Byron took a villa in 1817 and the following year loaned it to his friend Shelley, where the latter wrote, with vast flights of imagination, some of his best known masterpieces.

Myth About Horns of Deer

Deer and elk shed their horns once a year. This occurs soon after the breeding season. The horns begin as single points on the young deer during the second season and generally increase in size and number of points with each renewal. But the increase in size and number of points is not strictly progressive. So it is not possible, as popularly supposed, to tell the age of a deer or elk by the number of points on its antlers. The growth of the antlers is dependent upon a number of circumstances, such as physical condition of the animal and its virility. There is a tendency for the horns to become smaller with fewer points as the deer grows old.

Ancient Coinage Excelled

Some Corinthian coins, 2,300 years old, have recently been put through a test alongside of some modern mint productions and in the opinion of the investigators the old pieces were far superior to these of the present day. The analytical study was made in the department of chemistry of Princeton university. Corinthian bronze was, for the use for which it was intended, much better, since it was extraordinarily hard and, in this respect, distinctly superior to the present United States bronze coinage, although the latter is made with special reference to this quality and in accordance with the most modern metallurgical knowledge. The report reveals that coins of the city of Sicyon were made by mass production methods. As in modern mints, the metal was hammered out into sheets and the design later stamped with a die.

Only One Bank

Modern check signers who sometimes revamp checks of one bank to make them payable at another can envy the American colonists, who had no need to worry about drawing the right check on the right bank. There was but one bank in the land at that time, the Bank of North America, located in Philadelphia. Checks of the Revolutionary war era accordingly did not mention any bank, merely starting out, "Cashier of the bank; please pay to the order of," etc., as there was no other place to go for payment.

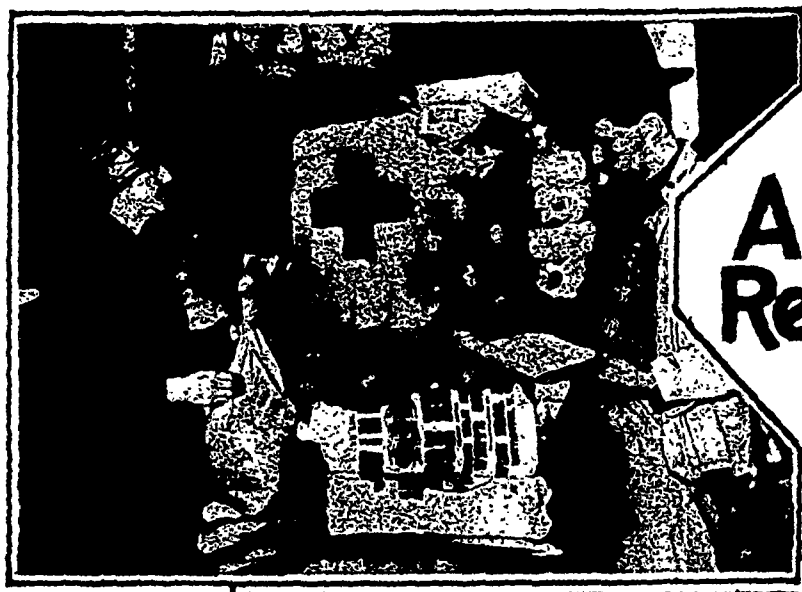
The American Red Cross in Action



Above—Red Cross paid the grocery bill, and maintained the health and morale of more than two million drought sufferers. Balanced rationing and ample provisions prevailed. The Red Cross commanded the services of thousands of volunteers. It was an impressive demonstration of neighbors helping neighbors. At right—Hot lunches for school children in the drought area.

Colorful and strange is a field trip out of Manila. The native napa house is a real home that warmly welcomes the Red Cross nurse.

Bits of cheer at Christmas time—80,000 boxes spread good will and happiness round the world. An important phase of Junior activities.

Men's classes are popular features of Home Hygiene and Care of the Sick.

The American Red Cross was founded in 1881. It is, by Presidential proclamation, the National Relief Agency. It is chartered by Congress, headed by the President of the United States, and supported by annual memberships.

These memberships make possible a program which includes:

Disaster Relief—1,000 catastrophes in 50 years—all the way from Johnstown flood to Drought.

Veterans—380,000 social and financial problems in a year for ex-service men and their families and for the men of the regular Army and Navy.

First Aid—73,000 certificates awarded in a year—the answer to the annual toll of 100,000 deaths from accident.

Life-Saving—70,000 candidates pass tests in year—one way to prevent the 7,000 drownings now occurring each year.

Public Health Nursing—1,340,000 visits to patients in 12 months—building health in home, school, and community.

Home Hygiene—568 Chapters conducting this work—teaching the family how to care for sickness.

Nutrition—138,000 children and adults taught in year—better food and better bodies.

Junior Red Cross—7,000,000 school children enrolled—spreading cheer and good will round the world.

Insular and foreign activities—aided in 12 disasters last year.

Volunteers—110,000 in one year—ever ready in war and in peace.

Says Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes: "The American Red Cross represents the united voluntary effort of the American people in the ministry of mercy. It is the best and most effective expression of the American heart."

The annual party for disabled veterans on the lawn of the White House. President Hoover who is also president of the American Red Cross is interested in all phases of Red Cross service to both the sound and the well among soldiers, sailors, marines, veterans and their families.

Water Safety methods, as taught by the Red Cross, prevent many needless deaths from drowning.

Currants from Greece were used in these cookies baked by Juniors and served in school lunches in drought areas. There are 12,000,000 Juniors in the world, bound together by mutual understanding and ideals.

Tractor Viking Queen Preserved in Museum

In the Oslo museum can be seen the best existing specimen of the old Viking ships. This is known as the Oesberg ship. It was discovered in 1903 in a mound about 20 feet high on the Oesberg-Odegaardon farm in the county of Vestfold, near a little stream about four kilometers from the sea. It was covered by stones and peat, which aided in its preservation. The ship was the pleasure yacht of a queen during life and the burial chamber for herself and her personal effects, as was customary in those times, after death. The queen and her accompanying bondwoman were laid in the burial chamber about the middle of the Ninth century.

The ship is an open clinker-built boat constructed of oak, 21.5 meters long and a maximum width of 5 meters. She was supplied with a rudder at the starboard side of the stern. From the prow ornamentation it is believed that she was built about the year 800. She was of the Femtansessa class, i, e., rowed by 30 men.

She was robbed, presumably in the Eleventh century, and the gold and silver ornaments removed, leaving the less valuable ones behind. Being comparatively shallow and setting low, it seems she was intended for cruises in sheltered waters rather than a real Viking for crossing the ocean.—Medical Journal and Record.

Sagacity of Elephants

Elephants have their own code of customs. One of them is that no member of the herd must die amongst his fellows. When an old elephant feels that his course is run, he separates himself from the herd and makes for its graveyard—for each herd has a burial ground of its own.

"Solid" Security Behind Old Continental Money

Many and varied were the paper notes issued in America during the dark days of the Revolutionary war. One of the earliest was a note issued by the Sons of Liberty in Boston, brought out in 1775 to finance the cause of liberty, with a face value of 24 shillings.

Paper money was in common use in the Colonies from its enforced use in Massachusetts in 1690. One of the most interesting of the Continental paper moneys was a note issued in Massachusetts in 1780 for the purpose of financing the state's quota in the Continental army.

The note was backed up not by bullion, as at the present time, but by definite measures of existing commodities. Thus it carried this inscription: "Pay 250 pounds on the first day of March, both principal and interest to be paid in the then current money of the said state in a greater or less sum according to 5 bushels of corn, 68 and 4-7ths pounds of a part of beef, 10 pounds of sheep's wool and 16 pounds of sole leather shall then cost, more or less than 130 pounds current money at the then current prices of said articles, the same being 32 times and ½ what the same quantities of the same articles would cost at the prices affixed to them in a law of this state in the year of our Lord 1777."

From this old note it appears that the idea of a stabilized currency is not new.

Good Illustration of "Horns of a Dilemma"

A "lemma" is a thing taken for granted (from the Greek word "lambano," to take). A "dilemma" is a double lemma, a two-edged sword which strikes both ways, or a bull which will toss you whichever horn you grasp. A classic illustration of a dilemma is given in the following ancient story: A young rhetorician said to an old sophist, "Teach me to plead and I will pay you when I gain a cause." The master sued for payment and the scholar pleaded, "If I gain the cause, I shall not pay you, because the judge will say I am not to pay; and if I lose my cause I shall not be required to pay, according to the terms of our agreement." To this the master replied, "Not so; if you gain your cause you must pay me according to the terms of our agreement, and if you lose your cause, the judge will condemn you to pay me."

Pancake Bell

Many of the ancient customs and curious anniversaries of England are recalled in a book recently from the press. One of them is the Pancake Bell. In old days this was rung on Shrove Tuesday to call the people to church to confess their sins. It is still rung on Shrove Tuesday at Olney, in Buckinghamshire. At the first chimes of the bell the makers of pancakes mix their materials. Then, after sufficient time for cooking the dainties has been allowed, a big bell tolls as a signal to eat them. Immediately girls rush to the church with frying pans in their hands and the pancakes merrily sizzling within. The reason for the race is to have the honor of being the first to serve pancakes to the ringers.

Where to Get Winter Tan

A winter tan amid the snows is possible for all the tourists who visit Austria between December and March. This land of mountains, lakes and woods, provides scores of fashionable resorts for the winter traveler, from the ski life and toboggan runs of Bregenz on Lake Constance to the snow trails in the Vienna forest. In spite of low temperature, the climate is dry so that the cold is not as penetrating as in more humid lands. It is quite common to see people out in the snow in light flimsy dresses, with bare necks and arms covered with the tan which is the gift of the warm winter sun of Austria.

Oldest Money

Although various sovereign states have been bringing out coins for the past 2,000 years or so, no coinage ever has enjoyed the continuity given to coins issued by the popes. The first papal coins are said to have been struck during the reign of Pope Hadrian, about 791 A. D., circulating not only in the papal states but beyond, due to the temporal power by the popes from time of Hadrian down to the end of their temporal power, far longer than the coinage of any other state authority.

Fur Founded Detroit

The French fur trade, in danger of extinction by the British, gave Detroit its excuse for being. Cadillac was commissioned by the French government at Montreal to establish a strong military post on the Detroit river. He landed there on July 23, 1761, and immediately started the erection of a stockade for Fort Pontchartrain. Later the little settlement became known as the City of the Straits, De Troit, or Detroit.

Ordinary

Two little boys halted the other day in front of the window of one of the big Los Angeles music houses.

"Gee whiz, look at that!" exclaimed one of them, his eyes glued on a man in the window who was playing the piano without hands.

"That ain't nothing," replied the other. "My mother sings and dad often says she hasn't any voice."

What's unusual about Dairymen's WYANDOTTE CLEANSER

It contains no soap, therefore makes no suds. It is all cleanser, and a better cleanser—that's why it cleans dairy utensils better—why it loosens the unseen dirt that is often responsible for milk souring or having a bad flavor.

Wyandotte Cleanser is as helpful around the kitchen as in the dairy. Try it first on greasy skillets, pots and pans. Then you'll want to use it on dishes and glassware. And when wash-day comes around, let it save you work and soap.

Wyandotte Cleanser will not harm clothes, metal, rubber fittings, or any other surface it cleans. And it won't hurt your hands. It costs less to do your cleaning with Wyandotte. Ask for Dairymen's Wyandotte and accept no substitute. The J. B. Ford Company, Wyandotte, Michigan.

LICENSE PLATES TO BE WHITE ON MAROON IN 1932

Iowa One of 37 States to Change Colors for Coming Year

Iowa is one of the 37 states which will change the color combinaton for automoble license plates in 1932 when 23 different motifs will be used thruout the country. Almost every hue will be represented in next year's parade, according to a survey by the American Automobile association.

Iowa's colors for the coming year will be white on maroon. L. L. Raymond, automobile clerk, has received a shipment of the new plates and will be ready to issue them on December 1.

35 Change Color

There were 35 states to change the color combination in 1931 and a total of 26 different motifs were used. The national motoring body pointed out that 13 states and the District of Columbia will retain the 1931 colors, reversing them as to background and lettering, indicating a trend back toward standardization of colors. A total of 11 states and the District of Columbia retained the 1930 combination last year. Arkansas, Missouri and New Mexico are the only three states yet to select colors for the 1932 plates.

The AAA survey reveals that first rank will be divided between two color combinations, with white on black and white on blue each being adopted by six states. These color schemes will therefore predominate in 1932, with white on black retaining its 1931 position.

Other Combinations

Second honor wil go to the black on yellow, white on green and yellow on black combinations, which will be used in four states. Black on orange and also white on maroon will each be used in three states giving these combinations third place. Beyond these more standard color motifs, will be found a variety of colors used to identify the units in the nation's rubber-tired transportation system.

The canal zone will use plates with black letters on a yellow background, while Hawaii will have a combination of yellow on green, Porto Rico, white on brown, and Alaska white letters on a dark blue background

Following are the 1932 color combinations for passenger cars in all states, with the exception of Arkansas, Missouri and New Mexico:

Alabama, black on white; Arizona white on copper; Arkansas, not selected; California, black on orange Colorado, sienna on black; Connecticut, white on blue; Delaware, old gold on blue; District of Columbia, black on cherry yellow; Frorida, yellow on black; Georgia, white on blue; Idaho, block on orange; Illinois, blue on orange; Indiana, white on green; Iowa, white on maroon; Kansas, black on orange; Kentucky white on maroon; Louisiana, white on red; Maine white on green; Maryland, red on white; Massachusetts, white on red; Michigan, white on blue; Minnesota, gold on maroon; Mississippi, gold on black; Missouri not selectel; Montana, white on black; Nebraska, white on dark blue Nevada, orange on black; New Hampshire, white on green; New Jersey white on black; New Mexico, not selected; New York, yellow on black North Carolina, black on gold; North Dakota, white on maroon; Ohio white on blue; Oklahoma, yellow on black; Oregon, white on blue; Pennsylvania, blue on gold; Rhode Island, white on black; South Carolina. black on yellow; South Dakota yellow on black; Tennessee, black on yellow; Texas, white on green; Utah. white on black; Vermont, blue on white; Virginia, white on black; Washington, green on white; West Virginia, white on black; Wisconsin, blue on yellow; Wyoming, cream on brown.

BIG 4-H CLUB FUN NIGHT WILL BE NOVEMBER 21ST

County Agent Receives Book On "Explosives In Agriculture"

Last Wednesday evening a joint meeting of the County Boy' and Girls' club committees was held to make preparations for the big 4-H fun night to be held at Garner on Saturday evening, November 21st.

In other years a county-wide 4-H Club banquet was held to bring a fitting close to the years club activities, but this year it was decided to hold an informal Fun Night instead of the usual formal banquet. All formal speeches are taboo as the entire evening will be spent in stunts and other forms of amusement Each club has been requested to be present and ready to put on a stunt not to exceed 10 minutes in length Milo Honsey of Forest City wil be on hand to furnish music by the aid of his musical goblets and musical saw Parents and club members alike are requested to be present and come prepared to enjoy yourselves.

Only 10c per person will be charged which will be used to help defray the expenses for the lunch which will be served directly following the fun festival. The lunch will consist of: Ham sandwiches, milk or coffee, cookies, pickles. cheese and possibly ice cream Dixies.

It is no more than proper to inform you that Mr. Burt Jurgeson of the Jurgenson Meat Markets located at Garner. Britt and Kanawha has voluntarily donated all the ham except one for the making of the sandwiches. The Decker Packing plant of Mason City has agreed to donate one ham which leaves at least 3 or 4 to be furnished by Mr. Jurgeson. It will be remembered that through Mr Jurgeson many of us were able to partake of beef steak or beef roast from two real good baby beef club calves after the club show this fall.

The definite meeting place and program will be announced in next week's county papers. Club members should make preparations now to be present and don't forget to bring the entire family.

County Agent, Walt Weiss has received from the Institue of Makers of Explosives, New York City, a copy of a book entitled "Explosives in Agriculture" which has just been published and which is said to be the most comprehensive and valuable treatise on farm explosives and their uses which has ever been printed.

The book represents the joint efforts of experts of the leading makers of explosives to consolidate in a single volume the results of more than twenty year's study of agricultural explosives and their application to the physical improvement of farms.

Separate sections of "Explosives in Agriculture" are devoted to stumping, ditching, rock and boulder blasting and miscellaneous uses of dynamite. Among the occasional uses of explosives described are such as soil blasting, subsoiling, tree planting, orchard rejuvenation, vertical drainage, burying stone piles excavating cellars and trench silos, blasting wells, ice blasting, making and cleaning out water holes, digging post holes and numerous purposes whereby time and labor costs may be saved. Still another section deals with the properties of explosives and describes the various types along with description of electric blasting machines, the tools required by the blaster and other accessories. In this section are explained wiring systems, the priming of charges, transportation and storage of explosives and safety practices.

Mr. Wiess has the book on file at his office for the use of farmers and will be glad to consult with the min matters relating to farm betterments which can be brought about by employing explosives.

MRS. VERNER STROMER DIED SUNDAY AFTERNOON

Young Lady Called By Death; Services Were Held Wednesday

It hath pleased God to take out of this life Norma Elizabeth Stromer, nee Lenz. She was the wife of Verner Stromer and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Lenz.

Norma was born on th 23rd day of May, 1908 on the Lenz homestead three and one half miles west of here. On the 5th day of July the same year she was baptized in the Christian faith In early girl-hood she attended the public school of that district. After finishing the eighth grade she attended the High School at Garner finishing that course in 1926 with high honors and with the privilege to teach in the public schools. Norma continued the teaching profession for four years and because of her cheerful, friendly disposition and efficiency she proved to be a good teacher and stood in favor by the patrons and children of the schools she taught.

Norma also attended the Sunday school, Bible school and Catechetical Instructions of the Peace Reformed church. In these studies she was very regular in attendance faithful to her work and desirous to learn those things so necessary for our souls salvation, which the many questions she asked would naturally imply. It showed that she was intent upon not only to memorize the lesson but also store up true wisdom obtainable only from the Word of God. She was confirmed with the class of 1923. The confirmation verse given her was: "Fear not. I am thy shield, and thy exceeding great reward" Gen. 15,1. Her serious, yet cheerful, disposition gave her the confidence of her fellow members of the Sunday school so that they elected her teacher at various times. She was teacher of a class at the time of her death. She also helped in the choir as occasion required and was ever ready to help in the other activities of the church

On the 22nd day of October, just a little over a year ago, she was united in marriage to Mr. Verner Stromer. The future of this young couple seemed bright, for they established themselves in a new home erected by the groom immediately north of his fathers home. about one and one half miles south of the Elltown church. It was to be a home of true christian spirit for both were active members of the church This happiness was not to endure very long. Ordinarily Norma enjoyed exceptional health, even up to about two weeks before her death she went about performing the ordinary duties of the household.

About two weeks ago she became ill and on the following Sunday it became necessary to take her to the hospital, for it was established that her ailment was appendicitis. At the operation it was found that the appendix had been ruptured for some time and gangrene had set in. It was immediately realized that her condition was very serious and slight hope was entertained for her recovery. Yet she rallied from the operation and for a time seemed to improve. but her condition led to perrinephritis which caused her death. During the whole time of her illness she maintained her christian fortitude and confessed her faith in the only Saviour and Redeemer Jesus Christ, realizing that it is the blood of Jesus Christ alone that cleanseth us from all our sin.

She leaves to mourn, her bereaved husband, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Lenz, a brother, Clarence. three sisters, Ruth (Mrs. Harold Haberkamp), Lois and Evelyn a grandfather, Mr. Fred Greiman as well as many other relatives and friends.

May she rest in peace.

Services were held at the home Wednesday at 1:30 p. m. and at 2 p. m. at the Ell Town Reformed Church. Interment was made in the Elltown cemetery.

Seniors Perform Many Interesting Experiments In Physics Class

The Klemme High School basket ball team won the first game of the season by defeating Goodell 39 to 13.

The locals displayed an array of flashy style when they paraded out with new suits. They seemed to have out classed as well as outplayed the Goodell agregation. The locals are working hard to develop their shooting and defensive team work so that they may keep their slate clean. The next game is on a foreign floor when the "Shamrocks" meet Crystal Lake.

Smid, Sampson Hughes and Miss man showed up good for the locals. W. Arnold, star guard is still limping from an injury received in the early practice season.

BOOST BETTER BUTTER

When you go into a restaurant or barbecue stand today and ask for a sandiwch you are likely to receive a piece of bread—or a roll and a piece of meat.

When we were children at home and went to mother's kitchen and asked for a sandwich, we got a piece of bread, well buttered and a piece of meat.

There are probably 500.000 restaurants and hamburger stands in the United States. A great many of these are getting by without putting any butter into a sandwich. Do you realize as a producer that if you would demand a buttered sandwich you would encourage the operator to serve all his sandwiches that way? One more pound of butter per day in each restaurant or hamburger stand would increase the demand for butter and dairy products.

Are you a booster of butter consumption? If so, why not demand a complete sandwich?

THE SLOW DRIVER

Strange as it may seem, it will be generally conceded by Klemme motorists that the slow driver is as much a menace as the speedy driver on highways that are heavy with traffic. He has, and often exercises the capacity of tying up traffic. He causes others to dart around his car and in so doing takes the chances of an accident. He delays everybody, is berated by all and is plainly a common nuisance.

Don't understand this to be a plea for greater speed anywhere and everywhere It is not. But when a driver can without danger to himself or others, set such a sensible pace that he will not slow up the line and make it necessary for others going in the same direction to drive around him, then speed is advisable. It is the smart-aleck who seeks to pass everything on the road regardless of curves, hills or cross roads, that does the sort of speeding decent drivers despise and denounce.

There is a happy medium between "speeding" and "poking along". It is that which should govern driving on main-traveled roads. If one really avoided accidents by creeping along at a snail's pace, it would be justified. But they do not. In fact there is less danger in stepping the speed up a little where the road is clear ahead and thus avoid the line that is coming along behind. Practically all states realize this by making an average of 40 miles an hour a safe speed limit. But no road, no matter how smooth, is safe when a speed fiend insists on doing from 60 to 75 miles an hour. The only safe place then for sensible drivers is at home and the only safe place for the speed fiend is in jail.

FARM BUREAU EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE MEETS

An easier credit situation for the farmer, stabilization of the dollar, opposition to any advance in the tariffs, insistance that immediate steps be taken to meet the present situation, were embodied in resolutions passed by the executive committee of the Iowa Farm Bureau Federation at its fall meeting.

The committee insisted that loan companies give the mortgagee opportunity to continue ownership of his farm by extension of mortgage at no increase in interest rates, no commission costs and no demand for part of principal.

The resolution pointed out that farmers are in desperate conditions and that far more can be gained by making it possible for those with the desire and courage to further shoulder the responsibili of paying the interest and taxes and endeavorng to retire the mortgage when conditions make it possible, than to take over the farm with the responsibility of taxes and interest and help finance some one to operate it

On stabilization of the dollar, it was advocated that more money be put into circulation and that every possible effort be made to stabilize the buying power of the dollar on a fair basis, thus to bring up the commodity price level.

Officials stated that no stone would be left unturned by the organization in its efforts to restore buying power and higher prices for farm produce. Insistence that immediate and effective steps be taken to meet present conditions was voiced.

The resolutions were sent to the American Farm Bureau Federation and representatives and congress men from Iowa and other governing officials and leaders.

Committee leaders stressed the need for immediate actions to bring about better conditions.

Resolutions as adopted were as follows:

We, the Executive Committe of the Iowa Farm Bureau Federation, in session in Des Moines, October 21st, 1931, have carefully reviewed the situation regarding the renewal of farm mortgages by the loaning companies.

We are unalterably opposed to any added demands being made on the farms at this time in the renewal of mortgages. We insist that the loaning companies give the mortgagee opportunity to continue the ownership of his farm by the extension of the mortgage at no increase in interest rates, no commission costs, and no demand that part of the principal be paid.

Hundreds of our most competent farmers are finding it absolutely imposible, under the present prices prevailing for farm products, to meet the present demand and if increased costs are imposed they will have no alternative but to give up their home and farm.

Transportation, manufacturing and all industries also find it difficult to meet their current obligations under the present financial depression.

No thinking person, under present economic conditions, should be guilty of further adding to the present distress of those who produce the food and raw material that feed and clothes the nation, and who produce the new wealth that flows into the cannels of trade.

Many farmers are in desperate condition caused by the low price level for farm products and the lack of buying power on the part of the consumers. Far more can be gained by making it possible for those with the desire and courage to further shoulder the responsiblty of paying the interest and taxes and endeavoring to retire the mortgage when conditions make it possible than to take over the farm with the responsibility of the taxes and interest and probably necessity to help finnance a new operator. There is a responsibility on those who loan money on farm land, as well as on those who borrow it.

At this time we insist that those holding mortgages on farm land give the mortgagee every opportunity to carry on. A lowering of the interest rate would be far better than to take possession of the farm wih the added expense involved in trying to operate it. Far better would it be to co-operate with the farmer on the present basis and protect the investment by taking part of this interest in furnishing lime and assisting in a crop rotation that will build up the value of the farm.

We further insist that the value of the dollar be stabilized at a figure comparable to the figure at the beginning of the deflation period: that more money be put into circulation and that every possible effort be made to stabilize the buying power of the dollar on a fair basis thus to bring up the commodity price level.

We insist that there can be no permanent prosperity in our nation until the farmers' buying power is restored to the point where he can not only return his obligations but again be a purchaser of industrial commodities. With the farmers buying power restored, the unemployed can be put to work and thus industry can again be put into active operation.

We insist that no further advances in tariffs or that no new tariffs or embargoes be placed on the products used by the farmers until the tariff on agricultural commodities be made effective.

The Executive Committee of the Iowa Farm Bureau Federation, realising full well the acute situation confronting the entire nation, largely for lack of buying power on the part of the people, unqualifiedly insist that immediate and effective steps be taken at once to meet this situation and to preserve to the farmers of our nation the opportunity to remain in their homes and on farms.

KILLS THREE RED FOXES

O. U. Trine, armer living in southeast Eden, Winneshiek county, has suffered extensively from depredations of the red fox. Becoming tired of it, he recently went out with blood in his eye and killed three of them. He is of the opinion that the animals are a cross as they are too large to be the regular red fox. The law allows the killing of protected animals only when they destrop property.

Someone has truthfully said that "dead ducks lay no eggs" and with that thought in mind duck hunters are asked to be good sportsmen and kill only enough for actual needs. While the law allows fifteen ducks a day (which is too many by several sportsmen are being urged to take less than the limit in order to help along a situation, which, if it continues through several more years, will seriously threaten our duck shooting for all time to come and may result in legislation detrimental to those who love the sport and who wish to safeguard it for future generations.

OUR SURPLUS GRAIN

The Izaac Walton League in Minnesota has started a movement to provide grain for game birds during the coming winter. The entire state is to be enlisted in the campaign. As a humanitarian move and a method of using up the surplus grains we commend this action to the attention of Iowa sportsmen. Sportsmen know that the feeding of our wild game birds during the winter months insures more birds for good hunting later on.

It seems to me that a most valuable suggestion is that which came to my notice recently from Mrs. H. W. Stafford of West Union, Fayette county. She suggests that alfalfa be planted along Iowa highways instead of rye, wheat and oats and in many cases nothing at all Alfalfa is always a beautiful green, is a most valuable legume for feed, does not grow too high, enriches the soil provides excellent cover for pheasants, in fact as far as my limited knowledge permits, I would say it would make an ideal plant for Iowa highways Perhaps the highway engineers have a different idea

WATCH THE FISH POLES

People driving cars with fish polesfastened on them should be sure the hooks are securely fastened, according to the Monona Leader. New ton Benzing, a citizen of Monona, Clayton county found a fish hook a piece of line fastened in the hinge of his auto door rcently. He remembered that he had passed a car that day and had heard something strike the machine. The window of the car was open and the hook might easily have caught him in the face. Be sure the hooks are securely fastened.

Observers of a severe storm at Storm Lake declare that the wind which swept over the lake converted the water into a solid wall in a certain locality and sweeping along for a distance of some 300 feet left the bottom of the lake so bare that fish were exposed.

REPREHENSIBLE PRACTICE

Men who go out and kill game birds in an unsportsmanlike manner and who dynamite fish. or kill them with clubs and other reprehensible practices should be given the limit of the law. Three farmers, John Rapp, Sam Gooden, and John Clark living northwest of Britt were apprehended recently by deputies Ross Moses and H. A. Holmgran and arraigned on four counts: killing pheasants, hunting game birds after sun down, hunting game birds with a motor vehicle, possession of pheasants out of season. The men were hunting birds by the use of the auto lights and killing them with forks and clubs when they became confused and blinded by the glare. A fine of $50 each was assessed against them, as well as fifteen days in jail, the latter sentence being suspended on good behavior.

AUTUMN IN IOWA

Call it what you will, and perhaps I am a little "touched" by the outdoors at this time of the year in Iowa, but certainly those of my readers who drive through the country or along the highways, in certain areas just now, can not help but feel that indefinable something that makes a most powerful appeal to our asthetic side and love for the beautiful. The reds and yellows of the fall season. combined with vary ing shades one notices along the wooded areas are beautiful and are only another powerful argument for the conservation of the forests in Iowa.

IS JUSTICE BLIND?

Considerable complaint reaches the fish and game department from time to time regarding the disposition of cases by justices of the peace in various localities in Iowa. The most recent of these is in regard to the cases of two violators of Iowa's game laws, near Nevada recently. The men in this case were old violators, according to all reports and were charged with shooting pheasants in closed season, illegal possession and shooting on the public high way. They also had their guns assembled in the car and were hunting without a license. The fines were all suspended except $50 of the $140 assessed. One of these men is reported to be Story county's richest man. Iowa's fish and game laws are as important as any other law on the statute books and being 'chicken hearted' with law violators is going to be mighty expensive business for any justice of the peace who fails to do his duty.

Highest Quality Butter

That Puts More Dollars in The Farmers' Pockets

We pride ourselves in the high quality butter that we manufacture in Klemme. Because of the high standard we are able to maintain, month after month, Klemme Creamery Butter goes on the market that demands highest quality, and every pound is sold at a premium. This extra profit goes right back to the farmers for their cream at higher prices than they would otherwise be able to receive.

We are at present marketing our output through the Iowa State Brand Creameries. Through this group Klemme Butter iswrapped, put in cartons and sold under the Iowa State Brand. It's the quality butter in great demand at fancy prices.

Car Drivers Make Plea for Saint's Protection

The holy Saint Francisca is the patroness of motorists. She was, in the Middle ages, a charitable woman who mitigated many misfortunes. On the Roman forum stands her little church, appearing almost fragile, yet most beautiful, amid the mighty arches and ruins of ancient Rome. Upon her feast day, in March, there come every year hundreds and still more hundreds of automobiles to the square before this little church.

All sorts of cars are there, belonging not only to the wealthy, but to the poor as well. Ambassadors and other government officials are represented. Instead of chauffeurs sitting at the wheel in solemn state, these functionaries and many lovely young ladies, too, drive their own cars to the consecrated spot, where at the altar of Saint Francisca their vehicles may be protected against disaster and misfortune for another year.

Successive services are held in which the guardianship of the saint is invoked, and all the cars driven to the precincts of her altar are blessed and dedicated to her, that she may intercede for their owners and drivers, and guard them from peril and accident during the year to come, and very appropriately at the season of the year when motor traveling is most prevalent. Certainly these ceremonies have a deep and solemn significance, occurring as they do in the very center of what was anciently a pagan Rome!—Berliner Tageblatt.

Life's Prime, the Years Between Youth and Age

At what age is the average man or woman in his or her prime of life? is often asked, and what is the average length of life?

The prime of life, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer, is the period of full vigor and power, that which succeeds youth and precedes age.

The average length of life in the United States, according to estimates made by the United States public health service, is fifty-six years. Statistics indicating the expectation of life place Australia at the head of the list with an average length of sixty-one years. New Zealand comes second, with an average expectation of sixty years. The average expectation of life at birth in various countries, according to the United States bureau of the census, is as follows: Denmark, Norway and Sweden, fifty-seven years; England, fifty-three years; Holland, fifty-two; Switzerland, fifty-one; France, fifty; Germany, forty-six; Japan, forty-four and India, twenty-three. Statistics also show that females have a greater expectation of life at birth than males.

England's Earthquake Year

About one hundred and seventy years ago England experienced the first of a series of severe earthquakes, which created great alarm. The first shock was very distinct, the second still more severe, and a crazy soldier scared many folk almost out of their wits by predicting that the third, which he timed for April 6, would totally destroy London. On April 5, tens of thousands of all ranks quitted the metropolis, and many who remained were afraid to go to bed, but spent the night in the streets. The prophecy proved false, of course, but further shocks were felt in various parts of the country in the spring and summer of that year, and some held the prophet justified—with some error of date and locality—by the awful earthquake which shortly after destroyed Lisbon.

Should Appeal to Tourists

The Baltic republics of Lithuania, Latvia, Esthonia and Finland, formed from territories of the old Russian empire as a result of the World war, offer the tourist a region of great interest and beauty for exploration. Scenes of natural splendor abound along the winding coastlines and amid the dense northern forests of all these countries and about the vast and innumerable lakes of Finland. What is not generally known is that each of these peoples boasts of long centuries of independent civilizations and that in many of the cities relics of unspoiled and charming medieval beauty remain.

Coffee Production

The regions best adapted to the production of coffee are those between the parallels 15 degrees north and 15 degrees south latitude and from 1,000 to 4,000 feet above sea level. It is cultivated from latitude 25 degrees north to 30 degrees south in places where the temperature does not fall below 55 degrees Fahrenheit. Moist and somewhat shady slopes are found most desirable. Little streams of water are conducted to the roots of trees which are kept very wet until the fruit is nearly ripe, then the water is turned off to keep the fruit from becoming too succulent.

Area Taken From Mexico

The treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo, February 2, 1848, conveyed to the United States the territory which has since become the states of California, Nevada and Utah, part of Colorado, and the largest parts of New Mexico and Arizona. Previous to that time, this territory belonged to Mexico. Five years later, the United States purchased from Mexico about 45,000 square miles of southern Arizona for $10,000,000. Since this treaty, Mexico has remained approximately the same size as it is at present.

Children Enrolled in Old English Colleges

A curious possibility of the turning of the wheel is suggested by the plea which is being made for an earlier entry into the universities, partly in order that distressed modern parents may be relieved a little earlier of the cost of maintenance of sons and, presumably, daughters. It is true that at present boys enter the university at an age when, over a long period, they would have been ready to leave. John Milton had only just passed his fifteenth birthday when he went up from St. Paul's school to Cambridge, and he was nineteen when he took his bachelor degree. Sir John Denham was sent to Oxford at sixteen, though he seems to have behaved himself there very much after the fashion of some young fellows who have matriculated at a later age, for the future poet is described as a "dreaming young man, given more to dice and cards than study." But even fifteen or sixteen, which seems very early to us, would have seemed very late to the authorities of an earlier age, when "thousands of boys, huddled in bare lodging houses, clustering round teachers as poor as themselves, in church porch and house porch" took the place of "the brightly colored train of doctors and heads." It was in those days that scholars like "Edmund Rich, archbishop of Canterbury and saint in later days, came to Oxford, a boy of twelve years." The most ardent advocates of change would scarcely advise a return to those days.—Manchester (England) Guardian.

Historic Eastern Spot

Shimoda, on the eastern coast of the Izu peninsula, came into the American spotlight in the middle of the last century, when a treaty was ratified there which first opened Japan to foreign trade.

In 1853 Capt. Matthew Galbraith Perry, United States navy, sailed up the bay of Sagami to Shimoda, went ashore with 300 men and delivered letters from President Fillmore to a representative of the Japanese emperor. In the spring of 1855 the first treaty between America and Japan, providing, among other things, for the opening of Shimoda to American trading vessels, was proclaimed.

America's first diplomatic representative to Japan resided at Shimoda. It was a tidal wave and earthquake that caused the diplomatic offices to be removed from Shimoda to Yokohama in 1859.

Careless Pedestrians

In Nuremberg they seem to have hit upon a plan which secures some lasting results. Any person who drops a paper or an empty cigarette box in the street is liable to a fine of one mark. A watchful policeman steps up, names the offense, collects the quarter and hands over an official receipt for it. The streets of Nuremberg are astonishingly free from litter.

Not a Major Crime

A soldier walked rapidly from a railroad train in London, gazing nervously down at a suitcase he carried. A railway detective looked at him for a moment and then leaped in pursuit. Blood was dropping from the bag. A few days later the soldier was found guilty by court-martial. The charge was stealing six pounds of fresh meat from the company kitchen.

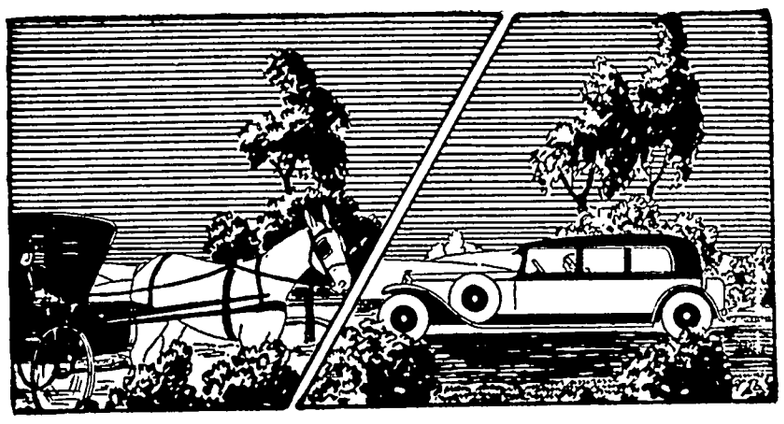
MAKE THE AVERY YOUR FAVORITE PLAY HOUSE



In the GOOD OLD DAYS

People were satisfied to travel by the slow moving horse and buggy—today they want to speed over the road in a high-powered automobile.

In those days, people were also satisfied with electric service for lighting a few hours a day—today they require electric service at all times for an endless number of uses.

To meet the present day needs, it is necessary to invest large amounts for machinery, equipment and transmission lines that are held in reserve for use in case of emergencies. Such investments assure the customer of adequate and dependable service, but do not increase the earning power of the company. The result is that the investment today per meter is many times what it was in the old days. These added investments are made for our customers' protection, not for our profit.

You wouldn't be satisfied to limit your use of electricity to a few 16 candle power lamps, any more than you would be satisfied to travel in the old-fashioned horse and buggy.

FURNITURE
Klemme is not the largest town in Hancock County, but wo have the largest Furniture Store, the largest stock of Furniture and Floor Coverings, and the lowest prices. It doesn't take much gasoline on these good roads to drive to Klemme and prove the truth of the above statement. Two-thirds of the furniture we sell goes more than 10 miles from Klemme.
Free Auto Delivery.

FUNERAL SERVICE
For twenty-five years, we have served this community as Funeral Directors and Licensed Embalmers. Our business was restricted during the early years of mud roads and horse drawn vehicles, but since the coming of good roads and automobile equipment. our business has shown a steady increase.
We have lately remodeled our funeral rooms, re-decorated the walls, and added new equipment so as to keep this department up-to-date and the best in the Coutny.
We now have two licensed men on our staff, (Arthur W. and Andrew W.) and we want you to know, that if you prefer us, we are able and willing to serve you no matter where you live. We are frequently called to the nearby hospitals of Mason City and Hampton, and we are also prepared to take full charge when death occurs at such places as Rochester, Iowa City, Des Moines or Cherokee. We are fully equipped to give good service.

AMBULANCE
It doesn't seem right, somehow, to haul a sick person to the hospital in a hearse. The springs of a hearse are rather hard, somehting like a truck, and besides, just the idea of riding in a hearse is too depressing a thought for the sick one.
We never use a hearse for hauling sick people at Klemme. We have a Master Buick Sedan which has been built into a side-loading ambulance. Our ambulance equipment includes a convertible chair-cot, first aid supplies, clean linen and blankets, a car heater and a seat for the nurse or attendant.
A Master Six Motor, Hydraulic Brakes, Balloon Tires, and Shock Absorbers are some of the mechanical equipment which insure the patient's comfort while traveling. A low center of gravity for safety on turns is another feature of this ambulance.
Calls at any hour of the day or night will be immediately answered, and patients will be taken anywhere at the speed they desire, up to the rate of 65 miles per hour in emmergency cases. Just phone Klemme Central and ask for the Ambulance and she will know that you want to talk to us.

FLOWER SHOP
We have a warm room, a sort of sun porch for plants. built right in as a part of our front show window. Here we carry a stock of such potted plants as are in season.
Just now we have—
Primroses at ..... 75c, 85c, and $1.00 Cyclamens at 85c, $1.00, $1.50
Chrysanthemums at ..... $1.00 and $1.50
Also Ferns, Jerusalem Cherries, Christmas Peppers, Begonias, Etc. Potted Plants make appropriate gifts.
We also give prompt service on orders for Cut Flowers for any and every occassion and can deliver by Parcel Post, Express or Telegraph anywhere in the United States.

Grandma Schroeder was 80 year young, Monday, November 9th but Lena Schroeder, Mrs. Mary Waterman and Mrs. Grosshuesch stole a march on her and successfully planned and served a four o'clock dinner Sunday afternoon in Grandma's honor. Rev. Grosshuesch started it off by informing Grandma, that if she would be home Sunday afternoon he would be down and call on her. When he arrived the following invited guests came along with him Mrs. August Lau. Mrs. Schlawin, Mrs. Haupt, Mrs. Metzer, Mrs. Ernest Schultz, Mrs. Baack, Grandma Haefner, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. ENGINEER REPORTS ON ROAD WORK

FORTY FOUR MILES OF COUNTY GRADING COMPLETED

Casting Grading Is Cheapest And Best Type of Construction By Far

(By C. F. Merten, county engineer)

People often ask questions in regard to county road work and to answer these questions I am writing a series of articles which I shall give to the local papers. Suggestion and constructive criticism of the articles will be welcomed by the author whether they come from editors or the readers of the papers. The first of the series deals with road grading.

The middle of November finds us with more grading completed than we had hoped for at the beginning of the season. We have completed seven miles of end haul grading by contract thirty three miles of casting grading by contract and fourteen miles of casting by day labor. These last fourteen miles include a small amount of end haul work. This maks a total of fifty four miles of grading in the county that has been completed this season or an average of three and three-eighths miles per township.

In end haul grading the dirt is loaded into wagons or trucks and hauled from the higher ground to the lower ground, cutting down the hills and filling up the valleys. This type of grading is always used on the more important roads such as our primary highways and is necessary on local roads in rolling country. The advantages of this type of construction are a more pleasing appearance, reduced grades on hills better soil and higher fill in swampy places, greater sight distances over the hills and better drainage in the ditches. All of our roads on which end haul work was done this year are in the north part of the county.

In casting excavation the grade is made by moving the dirt with an elevating grader directly from the side ditches into the road with very little end movement. By this method the grade is raised as much over the hills as in the low places but an excellent road is secured in a level or slightly undulating country. The advantage of grading by casting are the low cost of construction, which is about one fourth the cost of end haul grading, and the freedom from snow blocades which this type of grades enjoy. The topography of most parts of our county lends itself readily to grading by casting with its low construction so that the mileage of grading we construct here is a source of wonder to the engineers in the hilly counties of southern Iowa.

There are several other items of expense which enter into the grading of a road besides the moving of the dirt, such as clearing and grubbing of tree stumps, removing the boulders, constructing driveways, giving fence and telephone pole notices, surveying and administration. These items will be taken up more fully in a later article dealing with road grading costs.

MIDWEST UTILITIES IN HANDS OF RECEIVER

Iowa Union Telephone Company Is Part Of System

Last week the Midwest Utilities Co. went into the hands of a receiver. The Iowa Union Telephone Co. is a part of the system. The Klemme exchange is a part of the Iowa Union but as far as we have been able to learn, the receivership will not affect the present system of operating here.

BLAZE DESTROYS BEAUTIFUL HOME

TERHUFEN HOME IN LIBERTY TOWNSHIP DESTROYED BY FIRE

Beautiful Homo Only Partially Covered By Insurance

The beautiful modern home of Mr and Mrs. John Terhufen in Liberty township was completely destroyed by fire of unknown origin Sunday night. Mr. and Mrs. Terhufen were at home alone when they discovered that their home was on fire, the time being about eight o'clock. Not having a telephone to summon assistance they battled the blaze alone until Wilbur Haefner saw the blaze from a distance and procured help. By this time the roof was all afire and the crowd that soon arrived helped to save what furniture and other belonging they could get out of the house. The Klemme fire department arrived and gave valuable assistance in as much as they brought long ladders with them and this equipment was valuable in saving the other farm buildings which were close to the house.

The house which was built in 1919, was 24x28 feet in size, full two stories, modern and was finished in oak and had many built-in features. It was valued at perhaps around $7,000, but the insurance will cover only about half of this amount.

Mr. Terhufen wishes to thank all who came to their assistance and helped them to save the other buildings on the farm.

The Terhufen family will construct temporary living quarters for the winter and expect to rebuild a new home in the spring.

Dancing Advocated as Remedy for Human Ills

Not infrequently the alleged "quack" of one generation finds justification in the next, and the recommendation of dancing as a cure for mental and physical ills by so cautious a scientist as Sir Arthur Keith may rehabilitate the memory of Donald McAlpin, who a century ago set up as a healer by dancing a strathspey, writes a columnist in the Manchester (Eng.) Guardian. A shepherd and a famous dancer, Donald was reputed to have cured his mistress of a mysterious malady by dancing a reel with her, and this story being noised abroad his cottage was besieged by crowds of sick folk who hoped to rid their ailments by persuading him to dance with them.

Donald, whether he believed in his own power or not, was shrewd enough to take advantage of such a stroke of luck. He engaged an ancient piper as assistant, and between them the pair evolved a course of dancing treatment for almost every ill to which the flesh is heir, establishing an extensive practice from which, for a time, they derived a considerable income. The doctors, of course, denounced him as a charlatan, but it seems just possible that he hit on a real remedy for certain troubles.

Ruins of "Great Wall" in the Peruvian Andes

Like China, Peru once had a great wall—the "great wall of Peru." This wall was revealed in photographs of remote sections of the Peruvian Andes taken by the Shippee-Johnson aerial expedition. They reported the great wall as being near Huancayo along the ridge of the Andes east of Lima, Peru. As usual there is a good deal of skepticism regarding the authenticity of the find. But Philip A. Means, archeologist and author of "Ancient Civilization of the Andes," says these ruins are probably those of a long boundary wall built by the ancient Chancas in their fruitless effort against the powerful Incas. He thinks it possibly dates back to the Eleventh century. Mr. Means points out that similar walls have been found in other sections of the Peruvian Andes although they have not been so large as that reported by the Shippee-Johnson bunch.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Beautiful Brioni Isles

Little as we may know in America of Yukoslavia, we should always associate with that little known land, the lovely Brioni Isles. They have broken into the newspapers recently because of the death there of Karl Kuppelwieser, whose family made these islands the paradise of the Adriatic, which was sought out by royalty and by the modern notables from George Bernard Shaw to Eugene Tunney. They were malaria-infested islands when Kuppelwieser bought them 25 years ago, but today they are noted for their freedom from mosquitoes. The late Archduke Ferdinand wanted to buy them, but they were not for sale. Ask any tourist who loves the Adriatic and he will say, go to the isles of Brioni.

Ancient Egyptian Headdress

The Horus headdress for Egyptian women came into use in the Ptolemaic times. Originally, in the earlier history of Egypt, it was customary for a king to have his statue modeled with a hawk back of him showing the protection of the god Horus. Later, Isis, the wife of the god Osiris, was sometimes shown with wings of a hawk, a sacred bird of Egypt. A large figure of the goddess would have the wings like long arms protecting a small mortal standing in front of her. As time passed this was abbreviated into a headdress worn by women of the royal family.

Cuban "Santa Claus"

The Day of the Three Kings, January 6, is the great boys' and girls' day in Cuba. That is when the presents come. It is the Three Kings bearing gifts they picture in their minds for days ahead.

The toys may not be fine. They may be only little carts made from pieces of packing box board, or doll chairs, cradles, etc. These are oddly painted.

Children come first in the Cuban family. Cuban parents will even make personal sacrifices in order that the children may have gifts and playthings.

His Comment

They were spending a holiday in Morocco.

"Think, Ernest," she said. "Supposing brigands should come now and take me from you?"

"Impossible, my dear," her husband assured her.

"But if they did come and carry me away, what would you say?" she insisted.

"I should say the brigands were new to the game—that's all," he replied.

Columbus

Though there has been much recent questioning as to his ancestry and birthplace, most biographers agree that he was born at Genoa, Italy, about 1451 and was the son of a woolcomber and weaver, Domenico Colombo, whose family had lived in Italy for generations. He kept a journal or diary of his voyage, the original of which has disappeared, but an abridgement of it is to be found in his biographies.

Kaiser Wilhelm's Joke That Embarrassed Czar

It was on the occasion of this meeting at Reval (1902) that William II uttered the jesting words as he approached me arm in arm with the czar: "Do you know how we have decided to style ourselves in the future? Czar Nicholas is from now onward admiral of the Pacific and I am admiral of the Atlantic!" Czar Nicholas looked very embarrassed at this, Prince von Bulow writes, in his Memoirs. To help him I remarked that I was not surprised that a monarch, who in spite of his great power appreciates the welfare wrought by peace as well as the czar does, had decided upon this title of "pacific." The ruler of all the Russias agreed very emphatically. But when we were alone I urged the kaiser to refer no more to his horrible joke. His majesty with the obstinacy of an enfant terrible brought up the matter again at table to the obvious discomfort of the czar. At last the hour of parting arrived. The two emperors embraced and kissed; the Russian yacht steamed for Kronstadt, when Kaiser William signaled the Russian emperor by way of farewell: "The admiral of the Atlantic bids farewell to the admiral of the Pacific." After a few minutes came the cool reply: "Good-by!"

Mankind Seems to Have Reversed Nature's Rule

It has been revealed that the men of one great American city spend almost as much for clothes as the women. There is a difference in cost, of course. Women can purchase three or four dresses and appear beautiful for the money a man pays for one suit. And there can be no dispute about the women looking far more comfortable, especially in hot weather.

One writer, commenting along this line, makes the observation: "The masculine taste is to dress well enough to be unnoticeable and the feminine ambition is to dress well enough to attract attention." Accepting this epigrammatic statement as true, it is a complete reversal of nature's rule as between male and female. In natural life the male is endowed with the fineries, presumably to attract the attention of modest potential mates.

It is a waste of vigor to protest against woman obtaining what she denominates her rights. She takes them where she sees them and there is nothing to be done about it.—Toledo Blade.

Removes "Frozen" Bolts

Nuts on bolts used on machinery often become "frozen" in place and are removed only with great difficulty. Often it becomes necessary to cut them away with a chisel or remove them by drilling, either of which is a long and tedious operation. Human strength cannot move these pieces, but a piece of pneumatic machinery has been recently devised which does the work. It is an air-driven wrench which has been largely adopted for use about locomotive shops and similar establishments. The tool is of such convenient form that it may readily be carried about and will quickly dislodge nuts on bolts up to an inch and a quarter.

United States Fur Center

The United States has displaced London as the fur center of the world, according to the latest government reports. There are no accurate figures for the domestic fur catch in the United States, but its annual value is estimated at from $45,000,000 to $70,000,000, and most of this comes from the Mississippi valley, which is the largest fur-producing area in the world, with double the catch of Russia and three times that of Canada. The four outstanding domestic commercial furs are muskrat, opossum, skunk and raccoon.

Remarkable Carving

With a pocket knife and a piece of glass, Mowritz Peterson, of Portland, Ore., carved a model of the frigate Constitution that is all of wood, even to its 37 sails. Each sail was carved and shaved down to a thickness of an eighth of an inch, from a block of wood three inches thick. It took an average of four days to make each sail, and a year to finish the boat. The hull was made of western red cedar and the sails of Idaho white pine. Two other woods, Port Orford cedar and California sugar pine, were used for the smaller parts.

Impasse

The somewhat irascible superintendent of a public edifice watched two women going through the building opening doors and then retreating.

He approached them and said: "It beats all how people will wander around without asking directions when we employ attendants to direct them, Now then, what are you ladies looking for?"

"Politeness," murmured one of them softly.

Spade's a Spade

Ted may not be a bridge expert but he knows his cards. One day he was sent to a neighbor's to borrow a spade that Dad wished to use. But the neighbor said he had none. Then Ted's attention was attracted to a card game that was in progress and running to the table he picked up an 'ace' and excitedly exclaimed:

"Why, here's a spade."

It was.

Allenby's Great Victory Justified Arab Proverb

An old Arab proverb says that "not until the Nile flows into Palestine shall the prophet from the West drive the Turk from Jerusalem."

But that is exactly what took place when Allenby's British army of 96,000 fighting men with 46,000 horses, 40,000 camels and 13,000 mules fought its way north from the Suez canal. It defeated and drove out the Turkish army, which opposed every step of the advance.

The British forces were closely followed not only by a swiftly laid railway, providing commissariat facilities, but also by a huge pipe line to water that host. That Nile water drawn from a canal in Egypt was filtered at the Kantara water works and then pumped underneath the Suez canal to reservoirs on the east bank. Here it was chlorinated and then, thanks to seventeen auxiliary pumping stations, carried through the pipe over 200 miles of arid desert.

In order to realize how completely the terms of the proverb were satisfied you must know that the word prophet in Arabic is Al Nebi which you will admit is pretty close to Allenby, the name of the brilliant strategist who came from the West and who did drive the Turk from Jerusalem!—Charles H. Sherrill, in the American Review of Reviews.

Word "Grimace" Matter for Scholarly Dispute

"Grimace" is a word with which our scholars have loved to play. One of them derived it from grim. Menage claimed for it agrimensor, a land surveyor. Thomson looked to the Italian grimmacia, and if this be reliable, then it may come from the Spanish gimio, monkey, in Latin simia, but it should not be forgotten that grimaciers were formerly a company of artists whose duty was to carve the fantastic heads used in architecture, such as are frequently to be seen in our gargoyles, and Randle Cotgrave draws attention to this fact. But, in Old Saxon we have grima, a mask, whence hergrima, a war-mask, including the vizor of a helmet that concealed the warrior's face.

Despite this explanation, modern scholars claim that its origin is unknown. Undoubtedly it came into our speech from the French, and the French trace it to the Spanish grimazo, an extraordinary position in a picture. Dietz drew it from the Anglo-Saxon grima, a mask, a fantom, yet it may come from the Italian grimo, wrinkle.—Literary Digest.

The Mountain's Appeal

In summer thousands of tourists find their way to the famous monastery of St. Bruno at Chartreuse, which, until a quarter of a century ago, made the just as famous cordial. In winter, close to the monastery the tourists flock to St.-de-Chartreuse and its wild and beautiful skilands. The village is in a hollow bounded by the Pic-du-Grand-Som, the slopes of the Cucheron pass and the peaks of Channechmude, nearly 7,000 feet high. This makes it a sheltered winter resort, while the hills provide most unusual ski fields. The landscape, at all times of the year, is one of the most beautiful in France, but in winter the sleigh parties and skiers find a country of indescribable beauty.

Parthian Shots

The Parthians were a very warlike people of ancient times, who flourished about 250 B. C. in the area covered by the Persian empire. They were especially celebrated as horse archers. Their tactics became so famous that they passed into a proverb. Their mail-clad horsemen spread into a cloud around the hostile army, poured in a shower of darts and then evaded any closer conflict by a rapid flight, during which they still shot their arrows backwards upon the enemy. A "Parthian shot" is a sharp remark to which no opportunity is given to reply.

In Favor of Greek and Latin

Nothing can take the place of the examples and the lessons which ancient history and the ancient writers give of patriotism, courage and all the manly virtues. One of the leading men in the economic life of Germany, Albert Ballin, once said to me: "If I had two candidates for a post in the Hamburg-Amerika company and one could read Homer and Vergil in the original and the other knew all the intricacies of double bookkeeping and was experienced in stock business as in exchange discounting, I would prefer the former."—From the Memoirs of Prince Von Bulow.

Need Created by Printing

Our medieval ancestors did not need eye-glasses. There was so little chance of acquiring and using knowledge in the olden days that only a few persons ever learned to read or write. Occupations were of a general nature and did not require the close application of the eyes that modern vocations demand.

A real need for visual attention in the world came after the introduction of the printing press. People then began to read and learn to do things for themselves.

CORRECTION

In Wilson's Pharmacy advertisement last week an "r" was left out of a line "Treat your Poultry For Worms with Dr. Hess' Ver-Me-Trol." The line read "or" instead of "r." However this does not affect the good qualiteies of the remedy and poultry raisers will do well to get Ver-Me-Trol which can be purchased at Wilson's Pharmacy.

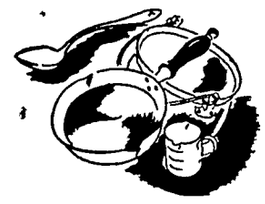
A WHOLE KITCHEN full of smiles



BRING the box of Dairymen's Wyandotte Cleanser in from the dairy and try it in the kitchen—on greasy skillets and pans. Don't stop there, but wash your glassware and dishes with it also. It will seem like a miracle. For Wyandotte loosens the dirt that other cleansers skip over. Wyandotte leaves everything clean and sweet-smelling and with half the work.

In the dairy, Wyandotte Cleanser cleans and sweetens utensils, separators, and milking machines until they're free from that unseen dirt which often sours milk.

Wyandotte will not harm the hands or any surface it cleans. And it costs less to do your cleaning with it! The J. B. Ford Company, Wyandotte, Mich.

Little Dee had a cold, and his mother came in to his bed to see how he was getting along. "Is your nose running, dear?" she inquired. "No, mamma," said a serious voice, "it's just [illegible]"

Excursion Into Crater

After so many centuries of blighting and blasting human life, one would not expect that the old volcano outside of Naples would interest tourists. Yet that is where we can go today and right into its mouth. It will grumble and puff in spasms of rage while you enter, but that need not annoy you. It may even jerk out jets of brown steam or with muffled roars throw up beautiful gold vapors, while wicked-looking vents of hot air will lick up in flame any paper you hold to them; but, apart from the uncomfortable feeling that you are walking on ashes and molasses, breathing sulphur the while, you will return safely to the plain.

Netherlands Dykes

The dykes which protect The Netherlands from the North sea in many cases go back to Roman times. Many are raised as much as 40 feet above high-water mark and are wide enough at the top for a general roadway or canal. They are made of earth protected by stone slopes and by piles and at the more dangerous points by artificial structures of brushwood laden with stones. The West Kapelle dyke is 12,468 feet long and has a seaward slope of 300 feet. On a ridge 39 feet wide are a roadway and a railway.

One of World's Wonders

The Hanging Gardens of Babylon are said to have formed a square with an area of nearly four acres and rose in terraces, supported on masonry arches, to a height of 75 feet. They were irrigated from a reservoir built at the top, to which water was lifted from the Euphrates by a screw. Fountains and banqueting rooms were distributed throughout the numerous terraces; groves and avenues of trees, as well as parterres of flowers, diversified the scene, while the view of the city and neighborhood was extensive and magnificent.

How Schliemann Found His Perfect Helpmeet

Schliemann (the excavator of Troy) went to Greece, a middle-aged man, believing in the simplicity of his heart that he would find the manners of Acadia. He was to begin married life over again after an unfortunate experience in Russia. What more fitting than a Greek wife? It is hardly credible, but he asked his old Greek tutor to find him one. It is not incredible that the tutor found one for the wealthy foreigner among his own relations!

Before they were betrothed he gave her a viva-voce examination, including the reciting of passages from Homer by heart. She passed! The marriage was nearly broken off when the millionaire asked her why she was ready to be his wife. She replied: "Because my relations have told me that you are a rich man." And he had come to Greece sure of finding simplicity of heart.

Yet the marriage took place. And it succeeded. Mme. Schliemann survived to see her husband's reputation established beyond the reach of ridicule. She made a perfect helpmeet to the grown-up boy. His instinct had been right in matrimony against all the probabilities, as it was in archeology against all the antiquarians.—London Saturday Review.

Few Corpulent Bad Men in Life or Literature

Doctors say that the man of middle age and beyond who is underweight has a better chance to live out the year than the man who has too much poundage. Doctors look askance at the individual of large girth and excess weight. His days are likely to be fewer in number than are those of the skinny man with a natural site for a belt.

A medical officer at a Japanese prison has been studying the physical aspects of his charges and he gives his approval to fat men. They are not lawbreakers or if they are they avoid the expected results of a lawless life. They do not go to prison.

Wilkie Collins apparently did not know that fat men are not criminals for he made the villain of his "Woman in White" a fat scoundrel. He is the only fat villain in literature so far as the records go. On the theory that there are exceptions to all rules this fat villain can be accepted in spite of the Japanese medico who asserts that the pinguidinous lawbreaker is rare.—Miami (Fla.) Herald.

Metallurgic Changes

Since the discovery of radium by Professor and Mme. Curie in 1898, the enormous importance of this and other metals which behave in a similar way has been more and more strongly realized. Radium, thorium, uranium, and one or two other metals, have extraordinary properties. They are never at rest, but are always flinging off parts of themselves and changing as they do so into something else. In the course of millions of years radium, by far the rarest and the most valuable of metals, turns into lead, one of the commonest and cheapest.

Osmium Heaviest Element

The element osmium is the heaviest substance known. Its specific gravity, compared with water, is 22.5. Irridium, with a specific gravity of 22.42, comes second; platinum, 21.37, third, and gold, 10.33, fourth. Specific gravity is relative density, that is, the ratio of the weight of any volume of a substance used as a unit or standard. Air is generally used as the standard for gases, and water for solids and liquids. When we say that the specific gravity of osmium is 22.5 we mean that osmium bulk for bulk is 22.5 times heavier than water.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Religious Unbelief

Infidel is a term given to disbelievers in religion by those who do believe, rather than by themselves. An infidel is one who does not believe in religion, or, often, in the particular religion of those about him. An atheist is one who denies the existence of a God; while an agnostic is one who professes ignorunce as to whether or not there may be a God, a future existence, etc., and who often holds that man cannot possibly prove the matter either way. The inventor of the term agnostic was Thomas Huxley.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Divisional Line

The Continental divide of North America consists of a continuous line extending north and south from the Arctic seas to the boundary between Panama and Colombia. In the United States it follows, as a rule, but not always, the most elevated portions of the Rocky mountains. Water falling east of this line flows into the Pacific. The term "Great Divide" is a popular one, but rather indefinite in meaning, and applies to a vast region in Montana, Idaho, Wyoming and Colorado traversed by the Continental divide.

Moncton Tidal Bore

The famous tidal bore, near Moncton, N. B., is the inward rush of waters up the Petitcodiac river of New Brunswick from the bay of Fundy, which has one of the highest tides in the world. The waters enter the estuary of the Petitcodiac in the form of a bore, or tidal wave, from four to six feet high. The difference between extreme high and extreme low tide at Moncton is 30 feet.

KLEMME HEARD FROM

Britt News Tribune:—A subscriber of the Klemme Times wrote three-fourths of a column last week because he did not like what we said a few weeks ago about the effort of persons there to organize a local telephone exchange. We questioned the advisability of this move, not because it was Klemme, but because of rumors of dissatisfaction over rates and services in other places and we wondered if a local exchange could serve a community as cheaply or as well as the larger utility. A fair question.

But My! My! What an avalanche of personalities and abuse it brought down! What for? To befuddle the issue, or is his idea (if it was his) to stir up strife between the good people of Klemme and Britt?

This man first accuses us of not knowing Klemme or its people very well as we are seldom seen on its streets. We are seldom seen on the streets of any town for the simple reason that we have work to do in our own office and like to be there if anybody wants to see us. However we know who's who and what's what in Hancock county as well as anybody, and too well to suit some. We have been in Klemme several times in the past year and we never fail to be impressed with the neat, prosperous appearance of the town. We venture to state that we get to Klemme as often as this man gets to Britt

He goes on to say that the Klemme creamery makes as much butter as any two creameries in the county We will let the creamery men decide that. He also puts in a good word for the new Klemme churches reminds us that Klemme sent a carload of food to Arkansas, says their school house is paid for and avers that while two banks in Britt "busted", Klemme has an old bank still going strong. His community pride is commendable but what has it to do with a telephone matter?

He states that the Klemme territory consists of 775 families, two thirds of which had telephone service before the Iowa Union took it and now only one-third of them have it. If the company refuses to serve as many subscribers as it can, some effort surely should be made to make it do so. If it is a question of poles and wire where did that go that was used on the 250 phones discontinued? If Klemme must have 500 phones it is obvious that 250 posible subscribers are not being served and it must be a very short sighted company that would refuse to double its service in the face of such public demand. It looks just a little as if, perhaps, the people of the community may be slightly at fault in such a drastic curtailment of support to the company. "Punk" service of any sort, from the national government down is most generally due in a considerable degree to lack of support. This includes newspapers, stores, banks creameries, schools and churches as well as phones.

We are sorry that this man feels that we do not like the people of Klemme, when we feel nothing but good will toward them. We hope that their phone troubles may soon be arranged to the satisfaction of all concerned. If they want a local exchange let them have it. However we still wonder if it would prove as cheap in the long run. If so, every town in Iowa will want one.

Our friend ends his article with these words: "The town of Britt needs you, help her solve her problems" As much as to say that we should stay here and mind our own affairs. Now is that consistent, when he begins his article by complaining that we are seldom seen on the streets of Klemme? What would he want us to do if we did go over there?

If Britt does need us, it needs us occasionally to speak up for it, in reply to the slams that are constantly directed toward the town on accoun of our "busted banks". One would think that this was the only town in Iowa or Hancock county that ever lost a bank, instead of being one of the first of a semmingly endless string of failures. We sincerely hope that no more of our county banks will fail, and we do not think they will if they get the local support they should have; but in our defense we feel compelled to remark that we are five or six years ahead of the precession on the road to recovery and that the new bank we now have is as good as the best no matter how old they are. There are other things in Britt to which we might "point with pride" but as for making comparisons, they are always in bad taste if not useless, and anyway the question was about telephones.

RESULTS OF SEED TREATMENT OF CORN

The field plots dealing with seed treatment of corn were carried on in 10 counties this year under the supervision of R. H. Porter of the extension service at Iowa State College. They are a continuation of similar tests carried on since 1927 The field plot in Hancock county was located on the M. Sprole farm west of Garner.

According to Mr. Porter, during the course of these tests we have come to know something of the benefits to be derived from seed treatment in an average season and we have also learned something of the effects of environment including soil conditions at planting time, the date of planting and rate of planting as well as the quality of seed used.

The past season of 1931 gave the practice of seed treatment a more severe test than any previous season in which the field tests have been conducted. Most of the plots were planted early in May and later in the month much damage was done by frost. In addition, insects and rodents caused injury to some of the plots. In spite of these conditions the stand resulting from the use of treated corn in most plots was slightly more than none treated seed.

During the growing season lack of moisture seriously interfered with the growth of corn, hence the heavier stands suffered more than the lighter stands. For this reason rows planted with treated seed may have produced no more or even slightly less than those planted with non-treated seed.

The hybrids had smaller kernels than open pollinated varieties, hence the heavier stands suffered severely. This condition prevents a fair comparison between them and common varieties. For all of the above reasons we should be prepared to make allowances for the results of 1931.

Following are the results of the Corn Seed treatment plot on the Sprole farm where Merko, Semesan Jr. and Sturdidust were used in treating the corn as compared to a check plot where no dust was used.

	Golden King	Gain
Check	34.6
Merko	36.1	1.5
Semesan, Jr.	36.16	2.0
Sturdidust	35.6	1.0

Average gain 1.5 bushels per acre.

	Pannhoff's	Gain
Check	38.4
Merko	41.6	3.2
Semesan, Jr.	41.6	3.2
Sturdidust	40.1	1.7

Average gain 2.7 bushels per acre

	Hybrid 968	Gain
Check	35.7
Merko	38.3	2.6
Semesan, Jr.	37.1	1.4
Sturdidust	37.4	1.7

Average gain 1.9 bushels per acre
Average gain with 3 dusts on 3 varieties 2.03 bushels .

These gains are not large but the drouth and irregular planting interfered with the results. Another year should give better records. The hybrid 968 was too late for northern Iowa, it had 29% moisture as compared with 18.7% for Golden King and 19.0% for Pannhoff's.

Commanders Who Defied Mighty Power of Rome

Hamilcar was a Carthaginian general, surnamed Barca (lightning) whose warlike conceptions were carried out by his greater son, Hannibal. Hamilcar came into prominence in the sixteenth year of the First Punic war (247 B. C.). He landed in Sicily, near Panormus, and, seizing the stronghold of Ercte, with a small band of mercenaries, he waged war for three years against Rome. In 244-2 he occupied Mount Eryx, and stood at bay against a Roman army. His master conception was to redress the loss of Sicily by creating in Spain an infantry capable of coping with Roman legionaires. Entering Spain in 237, he in nine years built up a new dominion; but in 228 he fell fighting against the Vettones. His son Hannibal was born in 247 B. C., and in his ninth year his father made him swear eternal enmity to Rome. In the Second Punic war Hannibal left New Carthage in 218 with 90,000 foot, 12,000 horse, and 87 elephants. He crossed the Pyrenees, gained the Rhone, defeated the Gauls, and crossed the Alps in fifteen days. His troops, reared in Africa and Spain, perished in thousands amid ice and snow. Remarkable achievements against Rome followed, with many victories and much slaughter, but at last Hannibal was weakened by his niggardly countrymen denying him necessary support. When the Romans demanded his surrender he took poison and died about 183 B. C.

Hard to Get Agreement on Dangers of Hunting

Leopards are one of the five most dangerous of African game animals. The other four are the rhinoceros, the elephant, the buffalo and the lion. The five animals are considered so dangerous because of the number of men who have been killed while hunting them. Which of the five is the most dangerous is a question. Each hunter has his own opinion, and that opinion is based upon the circumstances under which he has encountered the beast in question. For instance, a hunter who crawls into some patch of thick bush after a wounded buffalo and suddenly finds himself being charged while on all fours, is apt to get such a thrill of excitement that he will ever after place the buffalo at the top of all dangerous animals. This same hunter may later on shoot an elephant in more or less open country where he is in no great danger. So it happens that the man who has been charged by a buffalo while in a tricky position and the man who has been so charged by an elephant never, never will agree as to which of the two is the more dangerous to hunt.

Old Trade Name

"Naval stores" is commercial cant and is generally misunderstood by the public, says Pathfinder Magazine. Although sometimes applied to the ordinary supplies for war vessels, the term is a trade name for the resinous products derived from the gum or pitch of pine trees. In the early days these products were used for calking and waterproofing sailing vessels, and vast stores of tar and pitch were accumulated for the use of the navy. A desire to obtain such supplies independently of the French and Dutch was one of the chief reasons for the first British settlements in America. At one time "naval stores" included all the raw materials employed in building and maintaining sailing ships, such as tar, pitch, resin, flax, cordage, masts and timber.

Spies in Afghanistan

Afghanistan is a country of fighting and of plots. One party is continually plotting against another, and this provides a steady job for the secret service "beggars." These are wandering fellows who haunt the bazaars of the East. While sitting there in the busiest part of the town with their begging bowls, they have a great chance to overhear conversations, and as every man in Afghanistan belongs to one or the other of the hostile parties, the beggars glean much valuable information. This information they sell to other parties, and they can get a good price for it. Altogether it is quite a profitable way of making a living, though it is dangerous.—Los Angeles Times.

Theft of Consequence

Police are looking for a man who has stolen a stalactite from the famous caves at Wookey Hole, Somerset, England. If it is not recovered, there will be a delay of some 32,000 years before the decorations resume their correct appearance, for the missing stalactite is eight inches long, and it takes, roughly, 1,000 years for a quarter of an inch to grow. Wookey Hole is probably the most famous and most interesting cavern in Britain, under the Mendip hills some twenty miles from Bristol. Close by is the Hyena's den, where remarkable discoveries of prehistoric animals and men were made many years ago.

Caesar's Wife

Here is the story of the saying "Caesar's wife should be above reproach," as told in Plutarch's "Life of Julius Caesar": "Julius Caesar divorced his wife Pompeia, but declared at the trial that he knew nothing of what was alleged against her and Clodius. When asked why, in that case, he had divorced her, he replied: 'Because I would have the chastity of [illegible] clear even of suspicion.'"

ROUND THE COUNTY WITH AGENT WEISS

4-H "FUN NIGHT" WAS BIG SUCCESS

Three Hundred and Fifty People Attended 4-H Club Gathering

The big 4-H "Fun Night" which was held in the high school auditor in Garner last Saturday evening proved to be more than successful.

This was the first year for such an event and as evidence of its popularity, 350 people attended which was 60 more than have ever attended the annual banquet. All formal speeches were absolutely taboo and the entire evening was spent on entertainment. Each girls' and boys' club put on a stunt and other humorous numbers were on the program. Milo Honsey and his cast of Forest City more than entertained with their numbers along with the musical saw and goblets. Miss Evelyn Bienert, chairman of the county girls' club organization presided and handled the huge crowd very successfully.

The entire cost per person attending was 10c and at the close a lunch consisting of ham sandwiches, milk or coffee, cookies, pickles, cheese and ice cream dixies was served cafeteria style. The boys' and girls' club committees had entire charge of this big affair. The total amount of food consumed following the program was: Five 18 to 20 lb hams. FIRST EAR MARKS OF WINTER SHOW UP TUESDAY

Up until Tuesday morning it was a common sight to see flowers in bloom anywhere in Klemme. However for the past week or more we have had an unusually large amount of rain and Monday small cricks and rivers were over their banks. In some parts of town basements were beginning to get wet and several inches of water were in some of them. Monday night however the rain stopped falling and the weather turned cold. Tuesday mornng the thermometer went down to 24 degrees and snow flurries were in the air. The balmy days have passed and the first killing freeze has come.

IN DEFENSE OF THE PHEASANT

While it has been definitely disproved that pheasants do any considerable amount of damage to the growing crops, it remains for Ben F. Greiman, Garner, Hancock county to emphasize the idea and he writes W. E. Albert, state game warden as follows: "You have probably had many complaints about the pheasants doing damage to farm crops. But I'm going to keep at least ten hens and two or three cocks on my 160- acre farm this year as that is about the number I kept last year to help me fight the bugs and grasshoppers. I have had many acres of corn destroyed by pheasants until I learned how to take care of my corn. We all know that they pick the corn out with their bills and the only time they can do this is when there is a crust formed on the ground after a heavy rain.

"The thing to do is to take a rotary hoe or drag and break this crust as soon as possible, then the pheasant can not pick it out as the fine dirt rolls back into the hole and Mr. Pheasant goes after the cut worms and other insects. I have followed this plan for three years and have had a good stand of corn each year.

" I have counted as high as ten hen pheasants on my sixty acres of corn at one time and if anyone thinks I haven't a good stand of corn all I ask is that they come and see for themselves. If you have many complaints next spring I would like to see my plan tried out and see if I am not right.

This week we are starting a new feature which will be a column every week by El Kaye, a local writer. If you like El Kaye's variety of comments, suggestions and thoughts, let us hear from you. El Kaye says the title suggests that the cactus has thorns, but the cotton may help sooth some of the jabs from time to time.

AUXILIARY NAMES YEAR'S COMMITTEES

AMERICAN LEGION AUXILIARY NOTES

By Mrs. P. W. Johnson

The Kanawha Unit entertained the county organization last Tuesday. Those frome Klemme who attended were Mesdames Carl Wolfe, Paul Grange, Ben Coobs, David Schwichtenberg, A. Brown and the Misses Berdice Schwichtenberg and Lydia Bock. They report an excellent meeting. Two interesting reports were given, one on the national convention at Boston and the other on the district convention.

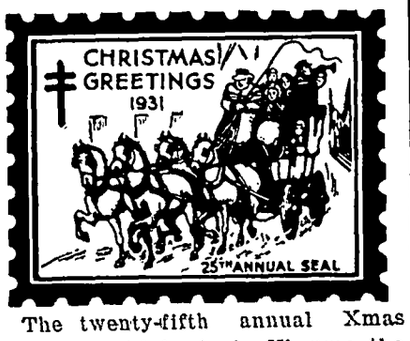
The entertaining unit served a lovely lunch at the close of the meeting.

Following is a list of the refreshment committees for the year. This was made out before the membership list was completed. The rest of the year will be made up of the members who have joined since.

December, Mrs. Hess, Grace Blank January, Mrs. Thomas, Mrs. Coobs; February, Marie Blank, Mrs. Dave Schwichtenburg; March, Mrs. E. J. Arnold, Mrs. Griggs; April, Mrs Lewis, Mrs. Grange; May, Mrs. Jacobs, Mrs. Wolfe; June, Berdice Schwichtenberg, Mrs. P. W. Johnson; July, Mrs. Pavey, other hostess to be named later.

Each year more and more of the men who served in the World War are breaking down physically and mentally from the affects of their war service. Government hospitals are crowded and even the new hospital construction authorized at the last session of Congress will not provide the facilities needed to care for the increasing number of disabled men. A large majority of the veterans now becoming disabled are married and have families dependent upon them, creating an additional problem and responsibility for the Legion and Auxiliary.

The women who carried out such splendid work of mercy and relief during the war cannot fail to carry on this work for those who are still paying the price of America's victory in suffering and hardships. Every woman whose husband, son, father or brother served in the war should be in the Auxiliary doing her part for the unfortunat comrades of her men folks and for their families. The Klemme Unit of the Auxiliary offers them an opportunity to serve in this great work.



The twenty-fifth annual Xmas Seal sale will begin in Klemme the last of this week.

Instead of the stamps being sent thru the mail, the chairman for Klemme, Mrs. Martha Bredbenner, assisted by Mrs. E. H. Patet, will canvass the town.

Fifty-five million penny Christmas seals distributed by the Iowa Tuberculosis Association will be offered for sale by local health associations during the twenty fifth annual Christmas seal campaign which extends from Thanksgiving to Christmas. This quota for Iowa is ten million more than any previous year.

Proceeds of the seal sale are used by local associations in the aid of families affected by sickness, in child health work, school health inspection, dental inspection, public health nursing, fresh air camps, clinics, health education, and school health supplies such as scales, first aid kits and thermometers.

This year's seal commemorates the twenty-fifth anniversary. The first Christmas seal sale was held in December 1907 by Emily Bissell who still resides in Wilmington, Delaware, and who because of her active interest in known as the mother of the Christmas seal sale.

COTTON AND CACTUS
By El Kaye

Isn't it fortunate that so many of our local young people took Spanish at college? At least, listening to a Mexican radio station proves to be of some use even of it is renewing knowledge gaind thru hours of tedious study. I even found it useful to be sitting near one of these people at a movie recently.

Charles Towne declares there is no such thing as inspiration. Hard work--not waiting for the impulse or urge to accomplish things- is responsible for success in the business world. Well, if every farmer in our agricultural sections seemed as ambitious as local farmers, why the depression? Don't bother to tell it for I've heard the identical tale seven times this afternoon.

It takes years to gain a firm foothold in the business world. When a man has faithfully toiled in our community for eighteen years, shouldn't we congratulate him on his new project? I for one wish him deserving success.

Are we sufficiently interested in local agriculture? I wonder how many of us really knew we were raising cotton until our local paper informed us.

Should you have the Des Moines Register for November 8th, I think the younger sot would be much benefited by framing "Skippy"...*

* * *

Hoover's national advisory committee has urged the creation of the department of education with a secretary in the president's cabinet. If interests are mainly in education most of us had better use to a good advantage what we have. After a'l, experience is tho best teacher. Is sho not? Why shouldn't wo be apt pupils?

Cooperation is essential in married life. they say. Mrs Cal Coolidge furnished an example by holding a lantern for Cal to kill a marauding skunk.

"Luckies" would need to be unusually kind to my throat before I'd hike out in the country to smoke half a package.

*Skippy became very ill from one of his father's cigars. Moral: Profit by another's experience.

Klemme—where men a-men. Not in our house!

A young miss tells me that a busy life is far happier than an idle one (especially a compulsed one). Ease, somehow, loses its power to satisfy. A task to do holds a great thrill (when you can do it) I'm sure that after this printing she will be "swamped" with novels to read, neighbor babies to care for and quilt block patterns.

I find it so hard to be good—only to find myself good for nothing.

Hitch your wagon to a star —but why a falling one?

This coming week is book-week. Our youngest is all aflutter because she has been promised "Millions of Cats" by Wanda Gag.

How many of the housewives heard the drama "Merchant of Venice" Friday? The bread-winner, of course, is excused because he can't be bothered with the "better" things.

How many of us heard Kathleen Norris suggest our giving twenty additional Christmas gifts this year to prove that depression is in the final lap? Or....how many of us wanted to listen? One can always turn to a more tuneful program, you know.

* * *

Now that pheasant season is past, some of us have learned that quickness of eye and ear, and the knowledge of pheasant haunts and habits often offsets poorer technique with the gun.

Still See Significance in Signs and Portents

Although most people in these days disclaim a belief in signs, one who watches closely will find almost every one making occasional remarks on the significance of this or that happening, most of which, sifted down, prove to be remnants of old superstitions, or folklore, of ancient days, some reaching back even to the Dark ages, when the world was commonly supposed to be peopled by various demons, whose voices were heard in the beating of the rain, the whistle of wind, rolling of thunder, and all unusual noises.

When the Evil One visited the earth he was supposed to take the form of a black cat, or a black dog. He was also credited, upon occasions, with taking the shape of a black pig on the ridgepole of a dwelling. A branch cut from a mountain ash, or a horseshoe nailed over the door, was commonly believed to keep out witches. Picking up a pin with the head toward one was supposed to insure a ride.

When the sole of the foot itched, one expected to step on strange land. When the sun shone through the limbs of apple trees on Christmas day it was claimed there would be a good crop of fruit the next year. "Plant a bean with the eye up, and it will grow straight down through the earth to China," was a common belief.—American Agriculturist.

Legendary Horn Highly Valued by Hungarians

The town council of Jaszbereny, Hungary, would not lend the famous Lehel horn to the Byzantine exhibition in Paris until the prime minister guaranteed its return. According to leg end, this beautifully carved horn was originally the property of Lehel, the son of Tas, one of the conquerors who invaded Hungary under Arpad Lehel blew a blast on his horn just before the battle in which the Hungarians defeated the Bulgars under Prince Zalan At Augsburg in 955 the Hungarians were defeated and Lehel captured and executed. Just before his death Lehel asked for permission to blow one more blast on the horn which had stood him in good stead on so many occasions. The request being granted, Lehel blew the horn and then cracked the skull of the emperor's son-in-law, Conrad, with it, shouting, "In the next world you shall be my servant." The Hungarians used to say that the horn lost its voice with the death of Lehel, but Gyula Kaldy, the composer, exploded that myth in 1893 when he succeeded in blowing an alarm on it. Not since 1867, when it was taken to the coronation of Francis Joseph as emperor, has the horn left Jaszbereny.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Ages of Race Tracks

The Lexington race track is the oldest in the country of the tracks now operating, but a neighbor of the metropolitan tracks—the oval at Saratoga—is second oldest. The oldest Sheepshead Bay and Long Branch tracks date far back in the history of the turf, but are no longer in existence as race tracks. Pimlico, the Maryland track, has been in use longer than the present Saratoga track, but if you include the entire Saratoga property, including the little Horse Haven track across Union avenue, then the Saratoga oval can claim second honors.—New York Sun.

Islands Thrown Up in South Atlantic Ocean

In a few hundred thousand years, a whole new archipelago like Japan may emerge from the south Atlantic ocean. This forecast has been made by Rev. Frederick W. Sohon, Georgetown university seismologist, after reports of the discovery of two new islands in the region, coupled with simultaneous seismograph records showing earth tremors that might have emanated from the same territory. The islands appeared off the coast of Brazil, and at first some scientists suggested that they might mean the reappearance of the so-called "lost continent of Atlantis." Father Sohon said there is a ridge along the ocean bed equi-distant between South America and Africa, but if there ever was a continent there, it had been completely destroyed. The modern development, he believes, is the result of thousands of years of erosion, sending rock from the mountains down to the continental shelf of the Americas. This, he said, might pile up so much weight that the pressure would cause a ridge in the ocean bed.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Problem of the Stammerer

A foreign authority urges that attention be given to stammering at an early stage. It is one of the tragedies of life, sapping vital energy and hindering the full development of native talents. Stammering is more prevalent among English-speaking people than among others. The subject is much in need of sympathetic and well informed research. The high tension of modern life does not promise relief from the recurrence of this maladjustment; an inferiority complex consequently becomes established. The basis of developed stammering is fear, self-consciousness and anticipation of failure with consequent psychic strain. Children thus addicted respond to treatment, and this should be commenced before the stammering child is aware of its peculiarity.

Coins of Eleventh Century

Copper coins about nine hundred years old and a small temple have been found as the result of excavations carried out by the Kashmir state archeological department at Naran Bag, in the Sindh valley. The place is about 20 miles from Gandarbal. The excavations revealed a miniature temple and a basement of a hall, 110 feet by 60 feet, on a plinth 9 feet high. A large cistern for receiving Puja-water carved out of a single block 15 feet by 7 feet by 6 feet was discovered together with a few idols and pedestals. Three Sharda inscriptions were also found.

Martin Luther's Passing

Martin Luther died on February 18, 1546, at Eisleben in Saxony, where he had been born 63 years before. He had paid a visit to the birthplace in order to arbitrate a dispute between Counts Albrecht and Gebhard of Mansfield. He successfully accomplished his mission and preached several times to crowded congregations, but the exposure to the inclement weather during the journey and the protracted negotiations proved too great a strain for his infirm body. The cause of death is usually given as heart failure.

WHEN WINTER COMES

The early dawns, the bright sunny days and the long twilights are ended. The countless hours of leisure and recreation you spent out of doors—in your car, on the golf course or in your garden—must then be spent indoors.

Then also come those dark, foggy days when lights must be burnt almost continuously.

This means that during the winter season more than half your waking hours are spent under artificial light.

Besides there are other increases in the use of electricity incident to the winter season—more use of the radio, the electric heater, and the variety of small appliances which are in daily use in the home.

When you stop to think about it, isn't it easy to see why the monthly bill for electric service in your home, your office, and your store increases when winter comes?

A LARGER BOUNTY ON CROWS

There are a number of birds that are not protected by the fish and game laws and the crow is one of them. In fact there is a bounty of ten cents each on crows. Many farmers contend that the bounty should be raised in order to induce folks to go on crow hunts and thus get rid of these pests.

At the present low bounty the fee collected will hardly cover the cost of shotgun shells. Those who have attempted to shoot crows will back us up in this statement. One farmer contends that $1.00 a head bounty on crows would not be too much. He bases his opinion on the destruction that a single crow can do in a year. He cites a few: Crows are directly responsible for the killing of hundreds of our song birds, which are a genuine friend of the farmer; crows destroy pheasant and prairie chickn nests, eat the eggs and kill the young. Of lesser importance they kill many rabbits which furnihs both meat and sport for winter hunters. Crows are responsible in many instances for the spread of hog cholera and other diseases among stock. The crows pick and tear away at the flesh of the dead, diseased animals and then perhaps fly to another farm, carrying the germs of the dead animal with them Crows have been known to kill and carry away small chickens—this will be testified to by a lady on a farm near Klemme.

Thus will the above statements show that the crow is indeed an expensive bird to have around. No one can tell of any good points regarding Mr. Crow. Everything seems to be against the crow and he should be gotten rid of as an undesirable pest The quickest way to do it is to get the bounty raised to a reasonable fee so that it will, in a measure at least pay for the time and expense of those who might take it up as a sort of a business to get rid of him.

Brown Owl's Maternal Instinct Made Trouble

An English naturalist writes the following about the maternal instincts of the common brown or tawny owl:

An amusing adventure befell a friend of mine while he was returning from a service held in a small country church. He was a big man and in his time had been a clever boxer. While walking alone down a lane by the side of a group of trees he received a stinging blow on the back of his head, and his hat was knocked off, to disappear in the darkness. He immediately pulled off his coat, threw it on the ground and called his unseen assailant to "come on."

He tried to penetrate the darkness to locate his opponent, but could neither see nor hear anyone. Then, while he was feeling around for something to hit, he received another staggering blow. The whole thing was so uncanny that he picked up his coat and made tracks for home.

Next day he went to the spot, saw his hat lying on the ground and was stooping to pick it up when another onslaught was made upon him. But in daylight he was able to see that it was all caused by a furious brown owl that was doing her best to protect her young.

First Hotel Bathrooms Credited to Year 1844

It may be news to Gotham and perhaps to our own home town that Kansas City is credited with being the first city of the United States to build and operate a hotel with a bathroom in every suite, says the Kansas City Times. This statement is made in an authentic "History of the American Hotel," by Jefferson Williamson. The hall bathroom and the private bath as a fixed part of hotel service, this historian states, first appeared in 1844, when the aristocratic "New York hotel" was opened. In the following year, 1845, Hartwell's Washington hotel in Philadelphia boasted of its "private baths in fine apartments for ladies." A little later the old Coolidge house in Boston opened with "private baths for guests," though many of their rooms were without baths. "It was many, many years," comments this historian, "before any hotel in the United States could boast of 'every room with bath.' The first to make the claim appears to have been the Victoria hotel in Kansas City, built by George Holmes on Ninth street between McGee and Oak streets, in May, 1888. The Victoria had 240 rooms, all parlor and bedroom suites, with a bath for each suite."

Gardener's Prayer

"Grant that in some way it may rain every day, say from about midnight until three o'clock in the morning, but, you see, it must be gentle and warm so that it can soak in; grant that at the same time it would not rain on campion, alyssum, hellanthemum, lavender and the others which you in your infinite wisdom know are drought-loving plants—I will write their names on a bit of paper if you like—and grant that the sun may shine the whole day long, but not everywhere (not, for instance, on spirea, or on gentian, plaintain lily and rhododendron), and not too much; that there may be plenty of dew and little wind, enough worms, no plant lice and snails, no mildew, and that once a week thin fertilizer may fall from heaven."—Gardener's Year.

Odd Georgetown Fence

The fence in Georgetown made of barrels of old muskets is at the northwest corner of Twenty-eighth and P streets. The musket barrels are topped with cast-iron lance heads. After the War of 1812, realizing that Georgetown had rendered special services, the government, too poor to make any expenditure, invited the citizens of Georgetown to help themselves from the scrap heap of iron and steel in the navy yard. This accounts for the fence and for the presence of the United States coat of arms on the iron work of many old Georgetown buildings.—Washington Star.

Mount Pelee's Anger

Mount Pelee is an active volcano on the northwestern side of Martinique, an island in the West Indies belonging to France. Notable eruptions of this volcano occurred in 1762, 1851, 1902 and 1906. During the eruption of May 8, 1902, a giant rock 1,000 feet high was forced out through the crateral dome. The town of St. Pierre was completely destroyed and some 25,000 or 30,000 people were killed. In the fall of the same year another eruption partly destroyed Morne Rouge and killed about 2,000 persons.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Diplomacy

The little daughter of a landlady had rummaged through the effects of a new lodger, causing him much annoyance. After setting things to rights with many expressions of regret, the landlady told the child that she must go and apologize for her mischief. Complying, she walked to the bottom of the stairs and called:

"Oh, mister, I'm coming up to apologize to you, so please don't throw anything at me till I get it over with!"

Valuable Criticism

Criticism is of little value—in fact, it is usually harmful—unless it is constructive in nature. Tearing down something requires few tools and little intelligence. Constructive effort is the real test in life. Let's build, and leave ...ng to others.—Grit.

OUTDOOR IOWA

Little Stories of Outdoor Life From Iowa's Woods and Waters.

By H. J. Metcalf

Director Information State Fish and Game Commission.

HOW ABOUT THE WILD FLOWERS?

Looking back over a period of some thirty-five years my mind reverts to those days when I gathered handfulls of flowers in the woodlands in Allamakee county, my native county It was nothing unusual for us to climb those beautiful hills along the Mississippi, after school hours or on Saturday and return loaded down with shooting stars, bloody noses, jack-in-the-pulpits, honey suckles, lady slippers and in some cases, what we knew as gentlemen's slippers, besides the

May apple blossoms and many other varieties that time has dimmed in my memory Like the "glory that was Rome's" these flowers have fast disappeared and will become extinct unless something is done about this matter of reforestation, as practically all of these flowers are forest flowers. Surely it is not an impossible feat to bring back many of these native flowers to Iowa. Perhaps the 25 year plan may find a place for these in large numbers. Let us hope so.

PLANS TO BEAT UNEMPLOYMENT

By ROME C. STEPHENSON

President American Bankers Association

SOME look upon unemployment as a social or political problem. For them the remedy is compulsory accumulation of reserve funds on the insurance principle through contributions from the government, the employers, the employees or all three. That will not meet the present emergency, since these reserve funds have not been built up and would take years to do so. At best this plan could only become effective at some indefinite time in the future as against the return of another catastrophe of general unemployment. Others look upon unemployment as purely an economic problem, holding that the only fundamental preventive is in business stability.

R. C. STEPHENSON

It may well be asked whether either of these cures—namely, the creation of unemployment insurance funds on the one hand or the maintenance of everlasting business stability on the other—do not present in themselves bigger problems than the problems they seek to cure. However I am inclined to the belief that the more practical approach to the solution of such problems and the prevention of such situations as general unemployment presents is along the latter lines of economic foresight rather than along lines of social legislation.

National Foresight

Economic foresight is conceivable not only for the individual but for business as a whole. Millions of individuals and virtually all lines of industry failed to practice it during the last stages of the recent prosperity.

The public welfare of the United States demands that industry as a whole vigorously and sincerely devote itself to the development of plans of economic foresight, aimed to prevent repetitions of the present unemployment situation. The general outlines for such plans are clearly definable. They demand that industry adopt a long range viewpoint and lay out its production and distribution plans with the thought that it is far better to have a long period of good sound business activity than a short period of frantically over-competitive endeavor. This would tend to lessen over-production in various lines, to prevent over-expansion of plant capacity, to avoid over-stimulation of public buying and above all to avoid periods of slumps and stagnation following periods of over-stimulation with their disasters of unemployment.

For business, too, there is a part in such a conception of economic foresight. It should aim to cooperate with industry in its endeavor to avoid reckless over-production, over-stocking and over-selling the public.

In this picture of national economic prudence, banking and finance, too, have their place. Their effort should be to influence the use of credit and other financial facilities into channels of sound public economy consistent with the attitude I have already sketched for industry and trade. All finance, whether current commercial banking or industrial investment banking, should seek by their influence in granting or witholding credit to stimulate and build up a balanced economic situation.

The Individual Must Help

Finally, the individual too has a place in any such plan of a sounder economic future for the United States. It is the duty of the individual to make every effort to take care of himself and provide for himself. Neither government nor industry can do that for him. They can give him the opportunity to succeed but they can't succeed for him. He must out of his own initiative and effort earn and create his own means and defenses against the requirements and contingencies of life.

Individual determination to provide against sickness, accident and death by insurance before indulgences in extra comforts and luxuries are given place in the family budget, and individual responsibility to guard against the contingency of unemployment by means of a sound program of thrift and savings are to my mind the true foundation of economic stability for the United States as a whole.

A limestone spreader, owned by a bank in Illinois is rented out to farmers for ten cents a ton, and also a phosphate spreader at five cents a ton. The "limestone project" was the principal contribution of the bank to banker-farmer work, during 1930, and was carried on in cooperation with the Farm Bureau. A man trained in the testing of soil, and in the making of soil maps was employed by the bank The unit maps used covered forty acres, on which 23 surface tests were made at mathematical points. At five other points three tests were made—surface, sub-surface, and sub-soil. The completed map showed, by varying shadings of red, the points which needed limestone. Arrangements were also made by the bank to have limestone shipped in in car lots for sale to farmers in any quantities needed.

Old English "Sport" of Fox Hunting Endangered

Would England still be England, without its hunting rallies? Is this sport of centuries, the merry chase of elusive foxes, fated to die out?

It is unlikely that there is any feature of English country life so typical of the customs and traditions of the nation, as fox hunting. This being so, a recent statement of the earl of Rosebery, on accepting the mastership of the Whadden chase, that this sport is in a very critical condition, came rather as a surprise. He declared that five neighboring packs are having difficulty in finding masters, and that sportsmen must rally around now, or see fox hunting go the way of hawking. His lordship ascribed the decline to hard times and high taxation.

This might be considered bad news, even for the foxes, for from accounts of this sport that I have read, it would seem that the prey gets as much fun out of eluding the huntsmen, as the latter do in the galloping pursuit. After some of these old wily masters of the craft have learned the business, their chances of becoming a mere brush are comfortably few. Why, there are even some of these old fellows who pay visits to the kennels, if the hunt is not up regularly, to see what is keeping their little playmates! At least that's the story told.—Border Cities Star.

How English Merchant of 1480 Sought Custom

One of the earliest posters ever printed in England is to be seen in the Bodleian library, and concerns a Sarum service book, printed in 1480 by Caxton. It reads as follows: "If it pleases any man spirituel or temporel to bye our pyes of two or three commemoracious of Salishuri Use, emprynted after the form of this prese't letre, whiche ben wel and truly correct, late hym come to Westmonester into the almonestrye at the reed pole, and he shall have them good and chepe." The manner of presentation is somewhat unenterprising. The goods advertised belonged to the Middle ages, which were fast dying. But a new force had been let loose, which in the course of the next century was to revolutionize not only the art of advertising, but the whole of European culture.

Famous English Potter

Josiah Wedgewood was born on July 12, 1730. He was the youngest son of a potter and came of a family of which members had been notable potters in Staffordshire, England. Soon after the death of his father in 1739 he became skilled in the art of shaping pottery on the wheel. In 1753 he became manager of a small pottery. In 1759 he began work on his own account in the Ivy house pottery at Burslem. Salt glaze and green and yellow glaze seem to have been his first staples. However, the fine white English earthenware was just reaching perfection and Wedgewood became one of its best known makers. He presented a service of his ware to Queen Charlotte in 1762 and was appointed potter to the queen and later to the king. He next turned his attention to artistic pottery and reproduced designs based on the later phases of Greek art.

Dog's Warning of Death

While there is a very common superstition that dogs by their wailing can prognosticate death, this cannot be given as a fact, any more than other superstitions. A writer in Chambers' Book of Days, mentioning that the howling of a dog at night under the windows of a sick room is looked upon as a warning of death's being near, adds: "Perhaps there may be some truth in this notion. Everybody knows the peculiar odor which frequently precedes death and it is possible that the acute nose of the dog may perceive this and that it may render him uneasy."

Old Dishes Still Popular

Peacock tongues and humming bird wings may have lost their place on the festive English menu, but medieval dishes still play their part in the true English observance of Lent. In hamlets throughout the shires eating fried peas is a time-honored tradition on Carling Suuday, the fifth in Lent.

Semnel cakes are eaten in Shropshire and Herefordshire on Midlent or Mothering Sunday, the fourth Sunday in Lent, and in Westmoreland ayvers or havers are the rule of that day. Pancakes are in order on Shrove Tuesday and on every successive Tuesday during the Lenten season.

What Is Success?

He has achieved success who has lived well, laughed often, and loved much; who has gained the respect of intelligent men and the love of little children; who has filled his niche and accomplished his task, whether by an improved poppy, a perfect poem, or a rescued soul; who has never lacked appreciation of earth's beauty or failed to express it; who has always looked for the best in others and given the best he had; whose life was an inspiration and whose memory a benediction.—Exchange.

Golf and Geography

The scholars of a Pacific coast school have built an ingenious miniature golf course which is at the same time an instructor of geography. The various links represent different parts of the country and their products, which is impressed upon the minds of the players as they make the rounds.

Wobbly Pitcher Saved by Astute Band Leader

A band once won a world series baseball game, according to James J. Coughlin, of Boston, and Mr. Coughlin should know, for he was the band leader.

It was in the world series of 1915, between the Boston Red Sox and the Phillies. The home team took the first game in Philadelphia and the Boston band became worried because if the series ended in four games, the musicians would get no return trip to the Quaker city.

Foster of the Sox and Mayer of the Phillies had been pitching air-tight ball, with the score 2 to 1 in the sixth inning of the second contest. Mayer was working smoothly, but Foster was tired. He started to wobble and Philadelphia got two men on bases with none out. The pitcher needed a rest and he needed it badly.

He was taking his time and was just about to put the ball over when the umpire called time. The gates in the first-base bleachers opened and President Wilson and his party made a dramatic entrance. Coughlin signaled for "The Star-Spangled Banner." But what a rendition he directed.

The band took nine minutes to go through music that should not take more than two. It was a funeral dirge. When the piece had been played once the band started it a second time. Every one was at attention except Foster. He had his hat off but he was industriously relaxing. When the performance was over he went in and struck out two batters and made the other a pop fly. The funeral dirge was a life-saver for him.—Detroit News.

Hard to Get Farmer to See Beauty in Thistle

We scorn the thistle, but Scotland has made it its national flower, its honored emblem. The story goes, however, that the selection of this flower as Scotland's emblem was not due to admiration. Scottish soil was once, at least, pretty thoroughly covered with thistles. The Danes invaded the country. Danes are now one of the most civilized of nations, but then they went barefooted. They stole up on the Scottish camp by night, unperceived, but one of them stepped on genuine Scotch thistle, and let out a yell of pain. The Scots heard it, awoke, arose, drove away the Danes, and saved the country. So the Scots, out of gratitude, made the thistle their emblem. The thistle is a fine and decorative plant, and nearly every spear of it has a pretty flower and a fragrant one. Certainly the bumblebees love it. It has a long and prolific flowering season.

Speaking of emblems, the Nova Scotians have appropriated our mayflower, the trailing arbutus, for their emblem. Why, being New Scotland and also Canada, did they not choose the Canada thistle for the purpose? They would have been good and welcome to it.—Boston Transcript.

Lord Mayor's Banquets

Mr. T. Lewis Sayer's book, "Gog, Magog and I," on the city of London, touches on the famous eating and drinking of the city; quotes Mr. Bottomley Firth's gibe—"It could be written on the back of many a common councilman, 'Widened at the expense of the city corporation'"; and gives a long list of the banquets in the preparation of which he had a share. One story shows their perils other than that of over-eating. At a luncheon to a prince from Asia the company were actually taking their seats when a trophy of lobster and ice, set right before the royal guest, was hurriedly removed, as the result of a last minute discovery that to him, the lobster, being the scavenger of the sea, was an unclean, forbidden food. — London Times.

Old May-Day Custom

In the Gentleman's Magazine for 1754 a custom is alluded to that only of late became obsolete, says "Brand's Observations on Popular Antiquities."

"They took places in the waggon, and quitted London early one May morning, and it being the custom in this month for the passengers to give the waggoner at every inn a ribbon to adorn his team, she soon discovered the origin of the proverb, 'as fine as a horse;' for, before they got to the end of their journey, the poor beasts were almost blinded by the tawdry party-coloured flowing honours of their heads."

World's Waterfalls

Some of the highest waterfalls in the world, and their respective heights are: Yosemite (three plunges), 2,600 feet; Oroco falls, of Monte Rosa, 2,400; Roraima falls, Guiana (two plunges), 2,000; Grand falls, of Labrador, 2,000; Sutherland falls, New Zealand (three plunges), 1,904; Kukenam fall, 1,500; Gavornie fall, Pyrenees, 1,400; Krimmler falls, Austria, 1,300; Staubbach, Switzerland, 1,000; Bridal Veil, California, 900; Nevada fall, California, 600; Niagara, 165.

Formed to Promote Trade

The international chamber of commerce was established in 1920 at a meeting of chief business interests of Belgium, France, Great Britain, Italy and the United States, and subsequently forty other nations joined. Its purpose was to promote the development of international trade, to remove or mitigate the effect of trade restrictions and to foster harmonious commercial relations among the nations.

Mayans Good Examples of Downtrodden Males

There was no equality of the sexes among the Mayans, who flourished in Yucatan in prehistoric times, but it was the man who was downtrodden and held in subjection by the woman, according to the investigations by Dr. Franz Blom, a German archeologist. The woman was a heavy drinker, but no man was allowed to drink until he had passed the age of sixty. The favorite drink was a concoction of honey, water and certain wild herbs which had a high alcoholic content. The women drank this regularly, but the man who was caught with even the odor of liquor on his breath was subject to immediate corporal punishment.

Woman at that time was the suitor. She would search until she found a man who appeared to be the best mate for her and would then put him through a trial period to see whether he came up to the standards she demanded. If he failed, he was rejected forthwith. If he qualified he had to bring the prospective bride an adequate dowry.

Laughed at Stories of Yellowstone Wonders

When John Colter came back to St. Louis from the Northwest in 1810, he had a hard time finding anyone who would believe his stories. So wild and incredible were the adventures of the shaggy-bearded explorer that residents of the little river trading post shook their heads in honest doubt. "Colter's Hell," as what is now Yellowstone park was known for years in St. Louis, served to give the former hunter for Lewis and Clark a prodigious reputation as a picturesque romancer. But in all the clusters of listeners, no one could contradict the hunter's story. Now, of course, it is borne out by a thousand familiar grotesqueries of nature, a veritable playground of the elements.

Leaving the Lewis and Clark party on the return trip, Colter set out with two companions to have a look at the fire-breathing and cloud-making wonderland of the Indians. The breath-taking exploits which followed make up a dramatic but almost forgotten chapter in the winning of the West.

Original "Patent Law"

In very early times in England the reigning prince considered himself entitled to graut privileges of the nature of monopolies to anyone who had gained his favor. These grants became so numerous, oppressive and unjust that during the reign of James I (1603-1625) a statute was wrung from the king declaring all grievous and inconvenient monopolies to be void. There was a special exception from that enactment of all letters, patents, grants and privileges of the "sole working or making of any manner of new manufactures within the realm to the true and first inventor." Upon these words hangs the whole law of letters and patents for inventions.

Eastern Trumpets

Tibetan trumpets, made of conch shells, mounted in embossed brass and copper, or gilt bronze inlaid with stones, are on exhibition among the oriental collection at Field Museum of Natural History, Chicago.

In Tibet the conch shells in which the spirals wind from left to right, instead of the usual form from right to left, are very high priced. The trumpets made from them are used to summon the lamas to their daily prayer meetings.

Similar trumpets are used by boatmen in middle China and in India, where they are said to have been invented. They are employed to imitate the roar of celestial elephants.

King James' Bible

The authorized version of the Bible is the same as the King James version because the revision was made by some of the greatest scholars of the country and of the world, under the authorization of King James I of England, who was also King James VI of Scotland, and in whose reign England and Scotland were united. James was the son of Mary queen of Scots; the grandson of Henry VIII and the nephew of Queen Elizabeth. He was, under English law, a Protestant, but had extreme leanings toward the Roman Catholic faith.—Washington Star.

Biblical "Usury"

The word "usury" has come in modern English to mean excessive interest upon money loaned, illegal or oppressive. In the Scriptures, however, the word did not bear this sense, but meant simply interest of any kind upon money. The Jews were forbidden by the Law of Moses to take interest from their brethren, but were permitted to take it from foreigners. The practice of mortgaging land, sometimes at exorbitant interest, grew up among the Jews during the captivity, in direct violation of the law.

One list of the symbolism of the various precious and semiprecious stones gives the following: Garnet, credited with endowing the wearer with constancy and fidelity; amethyst, betokens sincerity; bloodstone or aquamarine, courage and truthfulness; diamond, innocence; emerald, happiness; pearl or moonstone, health and long life; ruby, a contented mind; sardonyx or peridot, felicity; sapphire, wisdom; opal or tourmaline, hope; topaz, fidelity; turquoise or lapis lazuli, prosperity and success.

Demand for Ambergris Greater Than Supply

Treasure trove was recently thrown up on a Pacific coast beach in the form of a piece of ambergris; at least that was what its finders called it. Ambergris, always scarce and now even scarcer, has been a coveted possession for centuries in view of the high price it commands. It has figured in history and in fiction, and from time to time it has brought a measure of wealth to those who have been fortunate enough to find a piece of it.

This strange substance comes either from the stomach or the intestines of the sperm whale and frequently contains the beaks of cuttlefish, on which the whale feeds. It is a grayish substance, often mottled with darker streaks. Whalers after a kill sometimes found large pieces of it floating in the water. Long ago chemists discovered that ambergris could be melted in boiling alcohol and used in the manufacture of perfumes. Hence it became a valuable commodity. It is much rarer than it used to be, because of the scarcity of sperm whales. In the early days of American whaling the sperm whale was plentiful, ranging into the North Atlantic for its food.

Paris Claims Treasure

The city of Paris is to have an unexpected item added to the receipt side of its budget owing to a discovery made in the Bois de Boulogne last August, writes a correspondent of the London Daily Telegraph. A railway worker who was making mud pies to amuse his child unearthed a casket containing a number of gold and silver medals and 77 gold coins bearing the effigy of Louis XVI. Taking his find to a police station, he was informed that if no one claimed the treasure for a year and a day it would become his property.

But the city of Paris has now stepped in to register a claim on the coins and medals. Its case is that as the owner of the Bois de Boulogne it is entitled to a half share in anything found there.

Experts See No Future for Hemp Production

Hemp, once a profitable crop in this country, has dwindled in importance, and the vehicle through which it has lost its market was the principal market in former years. It is estimated that in the early Colonial days it took the product of 1,000 acres of hemp to make the ropes necessary to outfit a single sailing vessel of any size.

Now ships bring jute from India and this importation, due to its much lower price, has driven hemp from the market to a large extent. In spite of this loss of market, glowing pictures of prosperity to be had from hemp growing are painted for farmers who have had no experience with the crop. Agents with something to sell have induced many farmers to attempt crops, but little hope of success is held out by Department of Agriculture officials, who point out that by no means is the general run of land suitable for hemp production. Even if it were, there still remains the fact that the demand for hemp is more than filled by present sources, with the result that the prices are too low to make a crop an attractive proposition financially for the grower.—Washington Star.

Iguassu Falls One of Wonders of the World

The Iguassu falls of Brazil are said to be the most wonderful in the world. In the Wide World Magazine R. Hallburton writes: "Half a mile away a vast mass of water seemed to flow forth from the sky. It was a river, which, after wandering quietly through the forests of Brazil, had come at length to the edge of a great plateau. There it girds itself for a grand climax to its career—a climax so spectacular that no one who sees can ever forget that this river surpasses all others in the sublime beauty of its passing, leaving behind one of the wonders of the world. With one mighty charge along a front 10,000 feet in length it hurls over the brink, in superb 200 foot cataracts of foam. Niagara may have greater volume, Victoria greater height, but for artistry and coloring Iguassu stands alene."

Livingstone Worthy of Stanley's Fine Tribute

The finding of a letter written by David Livingstone in the heart of Africa is a reminder that the boys who went marching off in '61 also knew the inspiration of an adventurous hero. Seldom mentioned today, that mild Scot who entered a cotton mill at ten and the Dark continent's wastes in his twenties, was to the Civil war bugle boys what polar airmen are to their grandsons. The letter is of particular interest because it was written shortly after he discovered Lake Nyassa and contains an enthusiastic description of that "great water." His thirty years of explorations took him through a third of Africa—no other man did so much. He worked not in haste for publishers back in London, but carefully for the advance of civilization, and accordingly progressed slowly, living with the natives and noting down everything worthy of record. His were the first white man's eyes to see the Victoria falls, he sounded the slave trade's death knell, he stirred the imagination of James Gordon Bennett. In the end he left a record of accomplishment which led Stanley to write: "We look in vain among the nationalities for such a name."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The Word "University"

"Unus" is the Latin for "one," and "versus" is the past participle of "vertere," "to turn." "Universus" therefore means "turned into one." From this comes the abstract noun "universitas," which at first meant simply a number of separate things or people grouped together into a unit. It was thus used in legal Latin as the ordinary word for a corporation of any kind. It was only in comparatively late medieval times that its meaning became more specialized, owing to the success of learned men all over Europe in forming themselves into highly privileged corporate bodies.

INDUSTRY SEES HOPEFUL SIGNS, BANKERS TOLD

Leading Automobile Unit Expects to Employ More Men This Winter Than Last

MOTOR SUPPLY IN HANDS OF PUBLIC FALLING OFF

Twelve Million Years Less Transportation in Nation's Car Inventory Than Considered Normal, Manufacturer Tells Financiers

ESTIMATING that transportation in the form of automobiles now in the hands of the American public is twelve million "car-years" below normal, and that this deficit will eventually have to be made up, Richard H. Grant, vice president of the General Motors Corporation, recently told the American Bankers Association convention that employment in his company may be greater this winter than last year.

"Employment during the winter months is a very important thing," Mr. Grant said. "So far as our corporation is concerned, in November, December, January and February we will be employing at least as many and probably more men than we did this past year."

In order to gange the outlook for next year's market his corporation, he said, attempts to set up sales indices based on intensive scientific studies in addition to observation and common sense.

"We are in the habit of looking upon an automobile not merely as an automobile but as transporation," he said. "We figure each automobile produced as six years of transportation. Then by following up records of production yearly, we get a graph which indicates what ought to be a normal inventory of transportation in the hands of the American people, and whether there are more or less miles than might be expected. According to our figures, there are about twelve million years less transportation in this inventory at the present time than has been considered normal since 1925.

The Outlook for Business

"Consequently, if we retain the same purchasing power in this country, it is quite evident that on the first upturn of business there will be a rush to replace that inventory. In developing this graph, it has come out very strongly that every third year is a big automobile year. The biggest automobile year was 1929 when 4,100,000 cars were produced for American consumption. This year the industry will produce somewhere between 1,300,000 and 1,900,000 cars. As 1932 is three years after 1929, if economic conditions were normal we could be sure we would do a tremendous business, because the third year is the time when the bulk of the replacing takes place."

He added that there are factors at work that make it uncertain how big the year will be, instancing that "money is being hoarded from lack of confidenec and this takes away some purchasing power that we would otherwise have, while family budgets are being cut on account of changes in income conditions, which again means that purchasing power for the automobile, like a good many other things, will be knocked down." As a result, he said, it was necessary to measure what statistically would be a big year against a practical consideration of the curtailment of expenditures which is going on and determine how big the year will be under these circumstances.

"From a long haul standpoint, regardless of how many automobiles are sold in 1932, we are storing up a big business for the future," Mr. Grant said. "There will be fewer automobiles sold in 1931 than will go to the scrap heap. With 12,000,000 car-years out of the inventory, nine percent more gasoline was used up to August 1, 1931, than was used in 1920. With fewer automobiles, the people must have been running them faster and longer to consume the additional gasoline. This means that we have some 22,000,000 people working hard to make a fine business for our industry when there is an economic recovery.

No False Optimism

"I am not attempting to create any false optimism—I am not speaking without a statistical background. Using the best sense we can, we have drawn conclusions from the figures we have, and I am willing to make the statement that as far as the conduct of our business for the first half of 1932 is concerned, we shall set the indices somewhat higher than the actualities of 1931. We are willing to set our advertising budgets and our selling expense on that kind of indices. With economic conditions as they are, and since the obsolescence is so great and we have sunk so low in this year's sales, we figure that the first half of 1932 must necessarily be better than was the first half of 1931."

Bankers Help

Seven banks of Kennebec County, Maine, cooperated with the county grange, farm bureau, and local creamery, in financing the publication of a booklet, entitled, "The Agricultural Situation in Kennebec County." It presents in a concise manner the farm resources and practices of the county, with suggestions for improvement.

No Longer Doubt as to Where the West Begins

Arthur Chapman wrote a poem, "Out Where the West Begins," which will never sink into oblivion. He wrote it in Denver, where it was published, so that the conclusion may be drawn that Mr. Chapman's West takes its initiative somewhere near the Rocky mountain latitude; but westerners generally place the beginning of the West much farther east than that; and it was long regarded as including everything beyond the Mississippi river.

Perhaps a more definite line would be where the Sunday chicken dinner begins, and that is distinctly in Missouri, F. H. Collier writes, in the St. Globe-Democrat. To the eastward the hot-dog monopolizes all roadside eating places every day in the week; but cross the Father of Waters and you are in the Land of the Chicken Dinner. Not only is it honored of the Sabbath day, but it sends up its fragrant and alluring fumes at any hour on any day in many locations. Leghorn, Shanghai, Plymouth Rock or Rhode Island red, the chicken goes into the pot or pan for the wayfarer everywhere. The West begins where the chickens begin.

Queen Without Qualms as to Her Complexion

An amusing story is told by Sir William Rothstein in his volume of reminiscences, concerning a fellow-artist, since deceased, who had been commissioned by Queen Victoria to paint her portrait.

When the portrait was finished the artist was commanded to bring it to Windsor for inspection of her majesty, who at that period of her life had been dowered by nature with a complexion which may best be described as "brick-dust color."

The queen entered the room, went up to the picture, examined it carefully in silence, and then walked toward the door.

As she opened it she turned around and said coldly: "We are redder than that"; and stalked out without another word.

English Official Mark

The "broad arrow," used as a distinguishing mark on British government property, was the "cognizance" or heraldic symbol of Henry, Viscount Sidney, who was master-general of the ordnance from 1698 to 1706, says an article in the Montreal Family Herald. In time it came to be used by other government departments besides the ordnance board (now the war office), with which it first was associated. Curiously enough, the "broad arrow" was a symbol of power and authority among the ancient Druids. It is felony to obliterate this official mark.

Original Mince Pies

Mince pies date back many yea and were popular as early as 15 when they were known as "mutt pies," says an article in the Was ington Post. In early times they we baked in an oblong box or coffin-li shape to represent the manger which the Christ-child lay and deriv their association because of the highly spiced character, which broug to mind the gifts of incense and myr of the Magi. Mince pies were su posed to represent good luck and each pie consumed one would ha one day's good luck.

Klemme hasn't gone to the bowwows, after all. One of our college boys (who by the way, is a real he-man) does not drink, smoke, dance swear or play cards. I'm proud to consider myself a friend of his.

Hearing a four year old quote scripture over WMT reminded me of my own youth. I studied the Bible from the standpoint of its value as history and literature, while my elder sister memorized chapters. PHEASANT LAW NEEDS CHANGING

PRESENT LAW NOT FAVORABLE TO FARMERS

County Agent Is Swamped With Many Good Suggestions.

Many farmers have called at the Farm Bureau office since the open season on pheasants to discuss the possibility of making changes in the pheasant problem in another year.

The open season according to the farmers may have its good points but as yet the bad points are much more prevalent.

Thirty states in the United States are far ahead of Iowa with respect to its game laws and right now most farmers are ready to do almost anything to bring about a change principally in respect to pheasants As long as the farmer feeds the birds they feel that they are their property and should be entitled to some consideration when dealing with them.

During open season in Nebraska each hunter is required by law to purchase a coupon book which consists of as many slips as the limit on birds. For example, if there is a two day open season with a three bird limit per day, the coupon book would contain 6 slips. In such a case the coupon book would cost $3.00 and along with the coupon book the hunter would also receive six leg bands. When the hunter finished hunting on your farm he would have you the farmer sign the coupon slips one coupon for each bird. Then too the farmers would put the leg band on each bird. The number on the leg band would be put on the coupon. The farmer then retains the coupon stubs which are worth fifty cents (50¢) a piece. Of course some hunters would get away without reporting, but if he is caught with a bird without a leg band, it is just too bad Then too, the hunter must have a signed coupon and number to corres spond with the number on the leg band.

Most Hancock county farmers feel that the signers for open season publised in the county papers. One farmer told me that he would like to have this done so that when hunters come to his place to hunt, he could send them to the farmers that had signed he petition. Another farmer suggess that an open season should restrict anyone not a resident of the county. The same farmer states that in many cases the hunters would lie about hunting on the farm and then some of them would ask for permission for two to hunt then would bring two carloads. All in all, the farmers feel that no consideration is given them while all is given to the hunter. If a change is wanted before another year, now is the time to get started.

A Tip For Poultry Raisers

Poulrymen and women right now isthe time to provide a good egg mash in an open hopper before bird at all times and it is best to feed corn and other grain feeds for weight and quality. Avoid overcrowding the house. Allow three square feet floor space for each bird o light breeds and four square feet for heavy breeds. Regulate opening of windows so as to prevent extreme lowering of temperature inside the house at night. Avoid draughts by proper precaution in ventilation by keeping cracks and knot holes in walls plugged up.

Watch Your Clover

Remember farmers that if ice sheets form on alfalfa or new seedings of clover, they can and should be broken by disk or harrow. Nothing will kill the new seeding as quickly as smothering due to a coating of ice.

A real good protein supplement for your brood sows this winter can be mixed at home and should consist of 50 lbs tankage, 25 lbs. oilmeal and 25 lbs alfalfa meal. Self feed this to your brood sows and you will have better results at farrowing time.

PAUL MUELLER WILL MANAGE CREAMERY HERE

Will Take Over New Duties After First of Year.

At a recent meeting of the board of directors of the Klemme Creamery, the resignation of A. D. Gimer, effective Jan. 1st was accepted. After eighteen years here Mr. Gimer goes to Renwick where he is building a new creamery.

The Board then named Mr. Mueller to succeed Gimer as manager of the local creamery, and Mr. Mueller accepted the appointment. Mr. Meuller has been employed at the creamery for about nine years. During the last few years he has been practically in charge of the butter making and is well qualified and has plenty of experience to manage the business. Mr. Mueller is out of town this week looking up a good man as his assistant.

The Times believes the appointment of Mr. Mueller will meet with the approval of the entire community Mr. Mueller is a fine young man and has many friends who wish him nothing but success

CAR SLIPS OFF JACK; BROKEN BONES IS THE RESULT

Ed Hughes, manager of the Klemme Auto Co. is carrying his right arm in a sling as the result of an accident Saturday afternoon at the garage, resulting in broken bones in his hand. It all happened when a jack slipped and the rear end of the car came down on Mr. Hughes' hand, with the result that he will be laid up for a couple of weeks. Verner Christie is helping Harry Buss while Mr. Hughes is spending a forced vacation.

AND THEY HAD WYOMING TURKEY FOR DINNER

To have a turkey dinner is something but to have a special turkey sent to you from Wyoming is still better. Such was the good fortune of Allie White and wife to have a turkey sent to them from Allie's sister, Mrs. Gordon Sherman of Torrington, Wyoming. The turkey did not arrive in time for a Thanksgiving day spread, but was served Sunday at the White home. Mr. and Mrs. White entertained Albert White and family, Miss Dorothy Toft, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Hughs, all of Klemme, and James Carlson of Ingram, Wis.

COUNTY ENGINEER GIVES ROAD REPORT

85 MILES OF ROAD WERE GRAVELED THIS YEAR

Cost Has Been Greatly Reduced In Past Years

Good progress was made this year in graveling the roads of Hancock county. Our road program contemplated graveling twenty miles of trunk roads and sixty one miles of local roads and all of this work has been completed. Many donations were received for this work and in addition to the work on the program four miles of road were graveled entirely by donation making a total of 85 miles of surfaced road constructed. Besides the construction work many miles of road were improved with maintenance gravel.

The costs of graveling in 1931 were the lowest we have paid in the history of improved roads. For example, to load and haul gravel a distance of four miles cost in 1922 $1 per cubic yard, in 1927 this cost had been reduced to $0.70 per cubic yard in1930 we paid $0.42 per cubic yard, while in 1931 this same work cost us $0.28 per cubic yard. These reduced costs have made it possible for the county to secure many more miles of surfaced road than would have been possible at prices prevailing a few years ago. With the close of this season's work there is no point in the county which is more than two miles from a surfaced road and each year brings the gravel nearer to the isolated farms.

Hancock county owns twenty gravel pits and has purchase agreements on three private pits. With the exception of two miles on the county line south of Kanawha all of the gravel used on our roads this year was secured within the county Much of this gravel is too fine for the best results but we must use it as we do not have enough course gravel to surface all our roads .We have a large amount of high class gravel in the pits west of Hutchins but the cost of hauling it more than ten or twelve miles makes its use prohibitive in most parts of the county.

Geo. Cronkhite of Perry, Iowa, has been given a private contract to erect guard rail on the county roads as follows. On the trunk road one mile west of Klemme 460 feet on the Eagle Lake trunk road 300 feet, on the local roads in Bingham Township 300 feet. The total cost of this work will be $400 With the exception of painting, the guard rail will be complete by the time this is published.

NEW INVENTION GIVES "FLYING HIGH" SCREEN'S MOST UNUSUAL CAMERA SHOT

Thanks to a huge new aluminum crane which permits a camera to be carried high in the air, there to operate hither and yon at will, one of the most unusual "shots" ever made in a motion picture appears in "Flying High" which will open Sunday at the Park Theatre, Clear Lake, Iowa.

The "shot" concerns a brilliant song and dance number, "Happy Landings". When the scene first appears on the screen the camera apparently is hovering over a huge aviation field, from which scores of 'ships' are rising. Suddenly, however, the field slips away, disclosing two score of gorgeously beautiful girls who perform an intricate dance maneuver as directed by Busby Berkley, responsible for the ensembles of 'Whoopee'. Kathryn Crawford is the featured singer of the number.

Only the invention of this new "camera crane" which can go thru new and remarkable evolution made possible this unusual photographic offering.

Myrtle Lanning to Hancock county. Quit Claim Deed Date 11-25-31 $1.00 on S½ SW¼ SW¼ Sec. 32-94 23.

"It's all right, officer," came the reply. "I've got a little touch of the hiccoughs. I'll be over it in a few minutes."

Writing in the Waterloo Courier recently, John C. Hartmen, publisher of that excellent newspaper gave a fine account of the passing of the passenger pigeon. If we are to profit at all by the mistakes of the past regarding fish and game ,this story will be taken to heart by those who read it. Mr. Hartman said, in part: "The passenger pigeon is gone forever. Never will the great flights come thundering on like the trampling of thousands of horses on a beaten road. There will be pigeon weather again in Black Hawk county, but the call of the pigeon won't be heard. The passenger pigeon one of the gamiest of game birds, belongs to the past. It will not return'

FAIRFIELD RESERVOIR SEINED

The state department recently seined the reservoir at Fairfield with some six, or eight hundred persons as interested spectators. "Pat" Volkert and Otto Koch had supervision of the work. Bass weighing up to six pounds were caught in the seines, but were returned to the water, the rough fish only being removed. One buffalo weighing almost forty pounds was taken.

SEINING LAKE CORNELIA

A. D. Eley, Clarion Wright county writes the fish and game department commending the department for its work and particularly that which partains to the recent seining of Lake Cornelia. Mr Eley says "I am writing you in regard to the seining of carp from Lake Cornelia. Your men did mighty fine work of it and I estimate that they took out at least twelve ton of carp. We appreciate this very much, although there are many left." These carp were distributed to needy families and thereby helped in the present economic stress.

DADDY OF THEM ALL

One of the largest, if not the largest, rubber-nosed sturgeon ever taken from the Mississippi river was that recently caught by Dutch Kallenbeger and J. W. Buckley, two commercial fishermen of Muscatine. The sturgeon was six feet, four inches in length, and weighed 159 pounds. I am informed that the fish was cut up for food. It is unfortunate that it was not mounted and preserved for future generations of fishermen to gaze at and marvel that so fine a fish could have escaped their lure.

Editorial comment which sounds good to us and to hundreds of other people who read it appeared recently in the Washington, Iowa Journal Here it it: "The building of lakes to hold the water back on our lands is one of the ways of improving our surface water conditions. The little dried up lakes should be restored; the water holes should be made to yield water again; the muddy spot should be given over to marsh land the springs should be revived again the little streams made to run a steadier flow. Instead of rushing the water away to the river and from there on to the sea, let's hold it back; let it saturate the ground and ooze out and give us the old time surface water level. That's vital for the future."

COTTON AND CACTUS
By El Kaye

I'm not surprised that American girls do not follow the example made by Paris unmarried seamstresses. These spinsters have the privilege to approach any man and ask his hand in marriage. I haven't as yet. noticed an American woman who when given her choice on any dress she wanted could definitely decide. How on earth could she choose a husband?

I'd find it so convenient if the Des Moines Register would revise their radio programs.

The government is not original in tracing checks to discover conspiracies against the dry laws. One wise woman tried that on her husband a few weeks ago and—discovered that it works. She should get a patent on her method.

BEET GROWERS FAVOR ORGANIZING

FARM BOARD REPRESENTATIVE EXPLAINS BENEFITS

Forty Beet Growers Attended A Meeting At Kanawha Thursday

Forty beet growers attended a meeting at Kanawha on Thursday evening to hear Leo Stuhr, representative of the Federal Farm Board. outline a plan for a beet growers' association.

The meeting was held in the grade school basement in Kanawha. It was arranged by county agent, Walt Weiss who had notified the beet growers in the vicinity of Kanawha.

Practically every beet grower in attendance at the meeting favored taking immediate steps to perfect a regional beet growers' association. It is the intention to include the Mason City and Belmond, Iowa and Chaska, Minnesota sugar factory districts in the organization.

After aproviug the general plan or organization, the beet growers in attendance selected a committee to meet with similar committees from other sections of the beet growing territory and who will approve a plan of organization for a regional set-up. The membership of this committee is as follows: Mitchell Sprole, chairman; E. A. Fisher, Britt; Ed Frey, Corwith, Anton J. Anderson, Clarion; Orphie Anderson, Kanawha; Wm. Brummond, Kanawha; Geo. Neal, Alexander; J. J. Bonnstetter, Corwith.

The Federal Farm Board representative discussed the general sugar situation from the world and domestic standpoint. As a remedy for the present depressed condition he referred to the Chadbourne plan, which aims at the curtailment of production of both cane and beet sugar in exporting countries.

In discussing the national organization of beet growers perfected last year, Mr. Stuhr referred to a number of activities undertaken by this association. These include a national legislative program relating to an increase in protective tariff, on sugar imported into this country as well as legislation that may be considered by coming sessions of congress relating to the sugar imported from the Phillipine Islands and possibly that supplied by Cuba. Another problem of major interest to the domestic industry is the elimination of inefficiency and waste in the distribution of the domestic product.

The Farm Board has assisted in the organization of the National Beet Growers' Association and in organizing eight regional associations in the several beet growers' territories of the western states.

The organizaion of a regional in the Iowa-Minnesota territory is in line with the program sponsored by the board in organizing beet growers of the United States. Each regional has its organization affiliated with the National Association.

Other problems with which the regional or local association would be expected to deal with are those relating to hauling costs, labor, improved methods of harvesting and dumping increasing the consumption of beet sugar in the natural trade territory of the factory and the use of sugar pulp in livesock feeding.

Mr. Stuhr pointed out the necessity for organizing beet growers in order that all problems in which they are interested can be dealt with more effectively through the organization regardless of whether these are national or local in character. It is felt that in order to receive the consideration and protection for domestic industry, that growers in all beet territories should support a program sponsored by the national association, which is agreeable to both manufacturers and growers. This is essential if domestic industry is to survive aud prosper in the future.

Mr. Stuhr has been associated with the Federal Farm Board for the past two years first in the organization of wheat growers associations and for the past year and a half in the formation of beet growers' cooperatives.

Prior to that time, he was secretary of agriculture in Nebraska for four years, heading the department which he organized in 1919. He has also served as a member of the Nebraska legislature and has extensive farming interests in that state. He was instrumental in the organization of the National Beet Growers' Association and in the subsequent formation of the regional associations. He has had eight years' experience in the sugar beet business and during this time has made a thorough study of growing, marketing and processing sugar beets.

ACTOR-COACH IS ROCKNE'S DOUBLE

J. Farrell MacDonald, stage and screen veteran who achieved new fame when he played the part of the beloved coach in "The Spirit of Notre Dame" for Universal, renews that accomplishment in a role of similar nature in Paramount's realistic story of football "Touchdown" which comes to the Park Theatre at Clear Lake on Sunday and Monday.

Waterbury, Connecticut, claims MacDonald as her favorite son in the movies. Having left his home in the rock-bound New England town for the greater adventure of a stage life MacDonald trouped through years of ripening experience. He has many stage characterizations to his credit and a great number of screen impersonations.

In "Touchdown!" he appears as the coach at Midwest, famous college where Richard Arlen plays foot ball so well that he subsequently becomes a coach himself. MacDonald bars a striking resemblance to the late Knute Rockne.

O. K. MABEN TO BE CANDIDATE FOR TREASURER OF STATE

Garner Man Was A Founder and Charter Member of Farm Bureau

O. K. Maben, of Garner; prominent house leader among the Cummins forces in the legislative reforms of th thirtieth and thirty-first general assemblies, and active in farm affairs of Hancock county for the last several decades, today announced his candidacy for Treasurer of State on the Republican ticket at the next June primaries.

As a pioneer in farm bureau work farm mutual insurance, and legislative activity in the advancement of agriculture, Maben is expected to call upon these forces in his party for the largest support. He was born and reared on the Hancock county farm on which his father settled in 1857, and is today still operating the same farm jointly with his son. He was educated in the public schools and later attended Breckenridge Academy at Decorah and graduated from Northern Iowa Academy of Garner.

Mr. Maben was one of the founders and charter member of the farm bureau in Hancock county and served as a director for a number of years. He is still active in farm affairs of his district. For 21 years he has been secretary of the Hancock County Farmers' Mutual Fire and Lightning Insurance Association and for the last eight years a director of the Iowa Mutual Tornado Association. He was also a charter members and a director since its organization, of the Allied Mutual Automobile Insurance Association. Through his activity with these associations he has been prominently identified with the farm-mutual insurance movement both in the state and nationally for a number of years.

Although he has not announced definite campaign platform, Mr. Maben is expected to stand actively for a more equitable distribution of the tax burden as an absolute necessity for Iowa agriculture, for still further economies in governmental expenditures. and for legislation in the interests of farmers and working men.

WILL DRY CLEAN SPUDS BY THE TRAINLOAD

"No more need Iowa boys be set to clean and sprout potatoes in dark cellars! A machine is on the way to be demonstrated at the 18th Annual Convention of the Iowa State Vegetable Growers' Association. to be held at Crystal Lake, December 15-17. that will clean five carloads of potatoes per day", announces Rush Gabrielson, chairman of the local committee and cashier of the Farmers' National Bank there.

Another machine will spray a 36 foot swath down the main street of Crystal Lake. In the cucumber, cabbage and potato fields at Galt last summer. Albert Moellering working alone and hauling all the water himself, sprayed 50 acres per day, keeping up 400 pounds pressure on the 30 nozzles on ten rows.

A little tractor will be shown with which one man planted, cultivated and pulled 100 acres of onions last summer. A two row planter that makes potatoes whiter and better shaped, by a new method, is here.

New tools for killing the maggots of cabbage and radishes, for harvesting cabbage, for dusting cabbage to kill worms on graden patches and on hundreds of acres will be on hand; also tractors adapted like tanks to crawl on soft ground and others that can be adapted to rows of 42 inches or 36 inches. A potato digger will be shown all upholstered so that it bruises no potatoes at all and cushioned arrangements which will let big streams of spuds into bins with no damage.

And of course we shall show a big line of poisons and sprays enough to kill all the bugs in the state.

WHY FARMERS PROTEST

The Elgin Echo, Fayette county, reports that Walter Pritchard farmer is nursing a steer, which some careless hunter shot with a small bore rifle. The animal was shot in the head, the ball entering just below the left eye. It is thought that the animal will live, but there is a "no hunting" sign on the Pritchard farm as a result of some one's carelessness.

SANTA CLAUS SPEAKING

—By William Fierschell in Missouri Farmer

GOOD evening, Children! Through the "mike"
I'll just say this before I hike:
No monkey-business goes tonight—
Run off to bed, turn out the light;
Don't snoop around or try to see
What chance you have detecting me.

I'm pretty slick at ketching kids
Who only half-way close their lids;
Why, I don't even hesitate
Where smarty children stay up late!
Don't pull that drink-of-water stuff—
You can't fool me—that's just a bluff!

Best way to do—I've always found—
In all my years of going 'round,
Is just play square with Santa Claus,
For he has certain rules and laws
Which make it necessary—Yes,
That you cut out your snoopiness!

How sweet it is when children do
The things old Santa asks them to.
They never have a sigh or tear
If they believe in him each year.
Say, sometimes, children who are good
Get more than what they thought they would!

How to Make Old Santa's White Beard Fireproof

NEVER a Christmas passes without accidents from fire. Last Christmas a schoolmaster who had dressed up as Santa Claus was badly burned through the cotton-wool of which his white beard was made catching fire.

It is not easy to find a substitute for cotton-wool, but it is not difficult to make cotton-wool fireproof. Dissolve an ounce and a half of powdered alum in hot water and soak the wool in it. Then dry the wool and fluff it out again. Cotton-wool treated in this way will smoulder, but not blaze.

Even tissue paper can be made quite safe by dipping it in a solution of ammonium sulphate, boracic acid, and water. It must be dipped quickly and dried at once.

Canvas or similar material used for stage decoration may be fireproofed by a solution of ammonium sulphate, gypsum, and water. Take four ounces of each and use just enough water to make a liquid about as thick as thin paste. Then spread it on the fabric with a brush.

ST. NICHOLAS DAY

ST. NICHOLAS day is December 6. It is a children's festival in Holland, Belgium and parts of Germany, and serves as a preliminary to Christmas. It is on the night of the 5th that St. Nicholas comes with gifts. Christmas day is observed as a holy day rather than as a holiday.

Uncle Sam Now Leading Germany in Toy Field

GERMAN toys no longer flood the world markets at Christmas time as they did before the war.

Germany's world monopoly in the manufacture of toys has been definitely broken, statistics showing that she now produces only one-third of the world's entire supply. The United States has taken Germany's place as the greatest maker of toys, with Japan as a formidable competitor.

One of the reasons for the huge drop in Germany's production is seen in the high tariff walls which have been erected against foreign competition by those countries which made themselves independent of Germany during the war by creating their own toy industries. Another is believed to be Germany's slowness to adapt her type of toys to the continually changing market demands.

Why Children Are Good

Joke makers would have us think that the children are very good just now so that they may get more and liner presents. A keener observer would note that they are good because they are busy planning aud making the little gifts they will give to others.—Collier's Weekly.

Giant Christmas Tree

England's biggest Christmas tree was that at the Crystal palace in 1878. It was 120 feet high and built up from 1,500 small trees fixed to a central stem. From this tree hung 250,000 presents, flags and bonbons.

Perpetual Calendar Useful

If you get a perpetual calendar for Christmas, preserve it carefully. It will be fine to pass on to somebody twelve months hence.

Christmas Seals

As usual, it is expected that Dora this year will think that Christmas seals are fur coats.

Her Christmas Guest

By H. Louis Reybold

"THAT will do, thank you, Elise," and Elizabeth dismissed her maid with a smile. It was her custom each Christmas to entertain whatever guest the Charities sent to her, without Elise's help.

Once it had been a down-and-out ex-missionary well along in years, once a lonely girl from the West, and several times thin little waifs from the tenements. On those latter occasions Elizabeth had been glad of the fragrant tree which always stood in one corner of the apartment, alight with colored bulbs and hung with varied gifts.

There was no one in sight now—wait, wasn't that some one just turned the corner?

A moment later the bell rang and if, when she ran down the stairs and answered it, Elizabeth was decidedly taken back at the young man who stood before her, it is probable that he, too, had his moment of surprise as he gazed at the slender vision in a white dress.

"Miss Lowry, of the Charities sent me—" he began.

"Oh, yes," nodded Elizabeth quickly. She mustn't let him think for an instant she had hesitated. She had absolute confidence in anyone Miss Lowry, head of the board, might send. "Hang your coat and hat on the costumer at the head of the stairs. And, let me see, your name—"

Still the young man seemed a bit uncertain. Then, "Drake Gibson," he said, resolutely and abruptly.

Elizabeth breathed an unconscious sigh of relief, as she preceded him up the carpeted stairs. After the first embarrassing moments, she had always found that things went more easily.

Yet it was hard to believe, during the meal which followed, that her guest was the sort of down-and-outer with which the Charities were wont to deal.

He talked interestingly and entertainingly and before she realized it, dinner was at an end and there remained as part of the festivities only the ceremony of choosing gifts from the tree.

She had rather decided to pass that part of the entertainment up when she remembered that she had hidden in a red cheesecloth stocking filled with candy a tiny purse with a five-dollar goldpiece in it. Nor was she to be blamed for supposing that a gift of money so tactfully presented would not be amiss to anyone willing to accept a dinner from an utter stranger.

So, in her winning manner, Elizabeth suggested that they each choose a gift from the tree, and laughed when he carefully untied a little furry monkey.

Then she took down the stocking full of old-fashioned Christmas candy.

"At a proper tree there is always something to take home," she said.

He smiled and accepted it. Then, to her horror, drew out his knife and cut the red string at the top.

"Have some?" he invited.

"No—that is—yes, thank you," she said in confusion, and watched him eat several pieces rather absent-mindedly. He seemed to be considering something.

Then he pulled out the tiny purse and, with a frown, opened it.

Strangely enough, she saw no sudden blush or sign of self-consciousness. Rather he seemed almost relieved.

"This means that I must tell you," he said gravely. "And I'm very much ashamed of myself. You see, I've accepted your hospitality under false pretense. I'm—well, I'm only Miss Lowry's nephew home from globe trotting for my paper. She asked me to stop and tell you that the old lady she was going to send to your annual Christmas dinner had not shown up. You made the mistake of thinking I was the one and—oh, I've no proper apology but you know a fool reporter never turns down an experience of any kind." He paused and regarded her so wistfully that Elizabeth's anger melted. After all, it was Christmas time when one should be forgiving.

"I'll promise never, never to do it again!" he said with such an air of little-boyishness that Elizabeth laughed in spite of herself.

Neither one of them realized then that all their Christmases were to be spent together.

TREE DECORATIONS

THE old fashion of decorating Christmas trees with strings of popcorn appeals to the children of ten, more than the glass balls and trinkets commonly used.

Children enjoy helping pop the corn and stringing it. Cranberries at equal distances along the strings of popcorn are attractive. Apples hanging from the tree shine brightly if they have been washed and polished with a dry cloth or a little olive oil. Tin foil cut into thin strips hanging from the tree will sparkle in any light.

If candles are used, be exceedingly careful of fire. Evergreen trees blaze up instantly and furiously if they catch fire, which they do very easily.

Christmas Pudding Was the Victim of a Holdup

THERE may be more Christmas puddings than there were in the past, but there are certainly no bigger ones, writes of columnist in the Manchester Guardian. In 1718 James Austen, inventor of "Persian Pink Powder," planned an advertisement by inviting his customers to share a gigantic Christmas pudding weighing 1,000 pounds. This, after boiling for 14 days at the Red Lion inn, Southwark, was placed in a cart to be conveyed, to the accompaniment of a band playing strange instruments, to the Swan tavern, Fish Street Hill, where the favored guests were assembled. The company, however, waited in vain, for scarcely had the pudding started on its journe, before it was held up by a mob, attacked with knives and choppers, and distributed to many not bidden to the feast.

Another huge pudding resulted from a sporting offer of an old-time Islington innkeeper to make and distribute to the poor of the neighborhood a Christmas pudding the weight of any one of his customers. He reckoned without Daniel Lambert, the heaviest man on record, who was induced by a regular patron to drop in one morning Daniel turned the scale at 700 pounds, but the inkeeper kept to his word and produced a pudding of equal weight.

Five U. S. Communities Are Named Christmas

CHRISTMAS is the name of five communities in the United States. There are communities name Christmas in Gila county, Arizona; Orange county, Florida; Lawrence county, Kentucky; Bolivar county, Mississippi, and Roane county, Tennessee.

Tennessee also has a village named Christmasville in Carroll county. There is a Christmas cove in Lincoln county, Maine, and a Christmas lake in Hennepin county, Minnesota.

Indiana is the only state having a town named Santa Claus. It is in Spencer county. However, there is a St. Nicholas in Duvall county, Florida, and a St. Nicholas in Stearns county, Minnesota.

Study of the Atlas reveals three towns named Santee, one in Knox county, Nebraska, another in Northampton county, Pennsylvania, and another in Charleston county, South Carolina. There is also a Santee Bluff in South Carolina, in Williamburg county.

Santa Claus Existed in the Pre-Christian Era

SANTA CLAUS, as a bearded and benevolent pot-bellied kobold, seems to be much older than St. Nicholas, the Christian bishop whose name he has assumed. Among the hundreds of statuettes of pagan divinities dug up in the great Roman temple district recently discovered at Trier are a number that are very good portraits of the Christmastide friend of children.

What the pre-Christian name of this mythical personage may have been nobody knows as yet, but that he is a real Santa Claus any child could tell you. With his round cheeks, pudgy nose, long beard and pointed cowl there is hardly any mistaking him.

Seasonal Intimidation

"Sonny," said the dietetic mother, "do you want mamma to tell Santa Claus to stay away from here? Then eat your spinach."

"All right," sighed the modern child, "only it sounds like blackmail to me."

A SPEEDY RECOVERY

Cigarette Lighter—Let me congratulate you, Mr. Purse, on getting about again so soon after Christmas.

Bible Scenes Inspired the Writing of Carols

THE influence of the constant visualization of Bible scenes, of which people were accustomed to think vividly, inspired the writing of Christmas carols. They began to make their appearance about the year 1400. This was a new music in what was still almost a new language, of minstrel, literary and folk poetry. The ballad was one of the forms in which many of the traditional carols were cast.

The Christmas tree had its origin in Germany and is of comparatively recent adoption in other countries. It is regarded by many as one of the number of pagan survivals which have been engrafted upon Christianity and Christian festivities. The worshipers of the Norse gods, before the adoption of Christianity, had a place in their scheme of things for Iggdrasil, the tree of the world, which, with its roots and branches, was believed to bind together heaven, earth and hell. The Christmas tree is believed to be related to this tree in its origin. It became associated with the Christian holiday at some unknown time in the Middle Ages.

In the United States the Christmas tree custom is probably less than a century old. Up until the time of the Civil war it had not yet become a popular custom, although it was observed by a large number of the German immigrants. Since then it has been generally adopted in this country and Canada, and is familiar in England and other countries.

Burning the Yule Log, Old Christmas Custom

IN MANY an old British mansion it was customary to light tall candles on Christmas eve, and then a huge log was rolled onto the hearth, called the Yulelog. This log was so large that it required the strength of several men to roll it into place. The log was cut from a tree felled at midnight; and was to be placed on the hearth during midnight mass on Christmas eve, and was to be lighted by the head of the family. A piece of this burning wood was to be laid aside to light the next year's log with, while at the same time, it would protect the household during the coming year. In some sections of Germany a piece of this charred wood was placed under the bed to avert the much-dreaded lighting stroke. The burning of the Yulelog in each homestead seems to have been a survival of the adoration once offered to the sun at the winter solstice.

Jim Williams, Mason City Attorney appeared for the defendant in the case, while County Attorney Meyer, (Britt, represented the state After hearing the testimony, evidence and argument of the attorneys, Judge Suckow decided Anderson was in the wrong and so assessed a fine of $25.00 and costs. We Make All Arrangements

WHEN death occurs at a hospital in a distant city, it is still possible for the relatives to make all arrangements through a local funeral director. This is always appreciated, as it obviates the necessity of dealing on so delicate a matter with unknown parties.

We are able to handle such assignments with the same thorough attention to details as when death occurs at home. If it is impossible for a member of this organization to reach the scene in time, we have connections with out-of-town funeral directors who will act as our agents.

When this procedure is followed, it assures the family of sympathetic service and the protection of their interests.

Pretty Indian Legend

The custom of sacrificing a beautiful maiden by sending her over Niagara falls in a canoe was practiced by the Indian tribes about the falls. The maiden selected paddled a white canoe, filled with fruits and flowers, over the falls. It was counted a great honor to be chosen as the sacrificial victim. Once the only daughter of a Seneca chief was selected by the gathered tribes. Her father loved her dearly, yet he showed no sign of grief. The revels continued during the whole day, and when night came and the moon rose the girl paddled her canoe toward the falls, amidst much tumult and shouting. Suddenly another white canoe darted from the opposite bank. It contained the chief, her father; the canoes met, and together they went to their death over the falls.

Coal Miners' Superstition

The origin of the superstition regarding a woman's entering a coal mine is obscure. It has existed in England, Scotland and Wales from very early times. In many parts of England it is customary for the men to enter aud leave the pits during the night and it is regarded as au omen of bad luck if they meet a woman when they first leave the pits or leave their homes before entering them. A similar superstition exists among the fishermen of Yorkshire. If they meet a woman when leaving home they immediately return home.

Greyhound Not "Animal"

Is a greyhound an animal? This question was raised in the Belfast (Ireland) children's court, when a boy was summoned for leading a greyhound on the footpath. John Graham, for the defendant, said the prosecution was brought under a statute of about 100 years ago, the borough act of 1845, which said that "any who shall lead, drive, or ride any horse or other animal on the public footpath" shall be liable to penalty of $10. He suggests that the words "or other animal" should be read as in connection with a horse, and that the act did not apply to dogs. Magistrate Toppin, with whom were other magistrates, said his interpretation of the law was that it should be as applying to animals like the horse. The boy was freed.

Barley Hardiest of Cereals

Barley, the hardiest of all cereals, can be grown through a greater range of climate than any other. Its production dates from the most ancient times when it was used principally as an article of food. The production of barley ranks third among the cereal crops of the Dominion in acreage and total yield.—Canadian News Bulletin.

Christmas Suggestion— Peace and Contentment

WHEN trials pressed in upon the household of a certain brave woman she used to gather her family about her and say gaily, "Now I will make some graham gems, and open some marmalade, and we will take a little comfort."

And comfort was theirs for the taking, and with comfort, no doubt, came courage and strength and some measure of wisdom for the trials when they had to be faced again.

Most of us spend too much time in taking pains and too little in taking comfort. Martin Luther once advised Philip Melanchthon to give up managing the universe and let the Almighty God do it. An old colored mammy, asked how she could be so cheerful when she had no easy time of it, replied, "Lor, chile, I wears the world like a loose garment!"

And so it is suggested for a Merry Christmas this year that Christ's teaching of peace in the world was not a teaching for principalities and powers, but for individual men and women—each of us, personally. "My peace I give unto you," was his personal pledge to us.

Of course we cannot put aside the demands of life upon us nor evade its issues, but we can take some time out of life for the deliberate cultivation of a peace and contentment that will increase our efficiency, enrich our beings, and make the whole of living more tolerable.—Farmer's Wife.

Keep Harmony in Mind When Giving Presents

IT IS not unwise around Christmas time to reiterate one's color scheme. Members of a family who have no color scheme should be given one. Bring joy to your family by planning to do over the hit and miss rooms. And before you tie up the six or ten rolls of new wall paper for its place under the tree, inform all other members of its tones. So that the pincushions and pictures and even the dressing gowns and slippers may be chosen to harmonize. And when giving your best friend a vase, remember her wall paper. A blue jug may be lovely in the shop but terrible against her black and red walls. Not only should one remember a color scheme in choosing gifts but the period motifs and price scale as well. Too elegant a sofa pillow might throw a friend's living room entirely out of tune.—Chicago Daily News.

TIME FOR CHRISTMAS

"I HAVE often thought," says Sir Roger, "it happens very well that Christmas should fall out in the middle of the winter. It is the most dead uncomfortable time of the year, when the poor people would suffer very much from their poverty and cold, if they had not good cheer, warm fires and Christmas gambols to support them."—Joseph Addison.

Yule Candle and Holly Foretell Good and Evil

THERE are many odd superstitions connected with Christmas candles and holly. One is that if a girl puts three leaves under her pillow, giving each the name of a possible husband, the one that has turned in the morning will reveal her marriage destiny. The Christmas candle is still lighted in some of the old Yorkshire farm houses, and is carried with great ceremony all around the house and into every room. The bearer must be most careful to shield the flame as each door is opened, for it would be the worst of luck should the candle happen to "waff out" in a draught. Especially must the Yule candle be held over the churn. This is done in order to evict that malicious little sprite, Hob-o-the-Churn, who hides therein and spoils the butter.

First Christmas Card

The Christmas card, in its present-day form, was nonexistent until about 1860. Before that date there were Christmas cards of a sort, but they were very expensive, and but little used. The idea for such a card originated with Sir Henry Cole, and the first card printed was issued in 1846 by a London artist, Joseph Cundal.

Use for Christmas Envelopes

The gay linings from Christmas envelopes cut into the shape of flowers make pretty and unique backing for Christmas tree lights. Or, cut into silhouette shapes, they provide something original in the way of seals for decorating the gift packages.

Wanted Package X-Rayed

A dentist's little boy came down the other morning with a package that wasn't to be open till Christmas and asked to have it X-rayed.

Two Christmas Islands

There are two Christmas islands, one in the Pacific and one in the Indian ocean.

A CHRISTMAS PRAYER

IT IS with profound gratitude in our hearts we behold this, another Christmas day. Gratitude not for riches, fame or power attained, but the glorious sun by day that warms our hearts toward all humanity. For the heavenly canopy of night, studded with matchless gems, which brings peace and rest to tired and weary souls—for the flowers and birds—for little children, and little children yet unborn, for the spirit of "Peace on earth, good will toward men"—for the King of Kings, and Lord of Lords—our Christ. Amen.

Christmas Goose Now Is Close Rival of Turkey

IN CONNECTION with Christmas festivities the goose is a close rival of the turkey as the "piece de resistance" at the dinner table. Indeed, some epicures prefer the goose. There are half a dozen varieties of geese, the principal being the Embden, the African, the Toulouse, and the Chinese. All of these are excellent eating but for general purposes, especially breeding for market, the honors are shared pretty evenly by the Toulouse and the Embden.

The Toulouse are natives of France, deriving their name from the town of Toulouse. The present-day Toulouse is larger and finer than the French breed of this name and is the product of English breeders. The Earl of Derby first imported Toulouse from southern France about 1840; the breed undoubtedly dates back to the old, original "gray goose." The desired weights for Toulouse geese are: adult gander, 26 pounds; young gander, 20 pounds; adult goose, 20 pounds; young goose, 16 pounds. The best specimens have a deep, full breast, rather flat back and long body. This breed, in addition to its size and massiveness, is distinguished by a dewlap under the throat and a pronounced keel.

Embden geese are natives of Germany. In an early day, the city of Embden was the central market for the geese of a very large district; hence the name of the breed.—Wisconsin Agriculturist.

"It Is More Blessed to Give Than to Receive"

SOME people will tell you that the true spirit of Christmas has been lost these days in a welter of exchanging presents. They will say the holiday has been commercialized. While there may be a vestige of fact in this view of the modern Christmas, dispel the thought that this is the whole of it, or even an important part. In so far as it exists, it is a grave mistake. But nine-tenths of the giving is done without thought of getting. It is done to increase some one else's pleasure. If in reality the joy of the giver exceeds that of the recipient of the gift, that is incidental and inevitable. Christ himself said:

"It is more blessed to give than to receive."—Boston Traveler.

Toy Soldiers Boast of Distinguished Pedigree

THE toy soldiers which will figure in a number of Christmas stockings can boast of a long and distinguished pedigree. The children of ancient Rome played with miniature warriors, and some of the toy soldiers of the Middle ages are real works of art.

A number of them are still preserved in British museums, and are elaborate models of knights in armor of real artistic value. But they were originally made as children's toys.

Later, in the Seventeenth century, miniature soldiers were made which were really pioneers of the modern mechanical toy, as they could go through the regulation drill of the time.

Warm Christmas Jab

"I suppose you send out Christmas cards about the way you do everything else, Senator," said the Old Crab. "So I'll be looking for yours about the first of May."

The Christmas Spirit

The kind of relative most people like is the one who sends a necktie for Christmas, and doesn't think it looks familiar if she sees it on the janitor.

RAISES SKUNKS

A Red Oak, Montgomery county, man, Jack Richardson, makes a nice living raising skunks. He started with two, three years ago, and today his little family numbers some 27 or more. The wire around the pens is sunk some two feet under ground to prevent the skunks from burrowng out. The scent bags have been removed from the animals which makes them quite easy to handle so far as odor is concerned. The furs are considered quite valuable for certain garments.

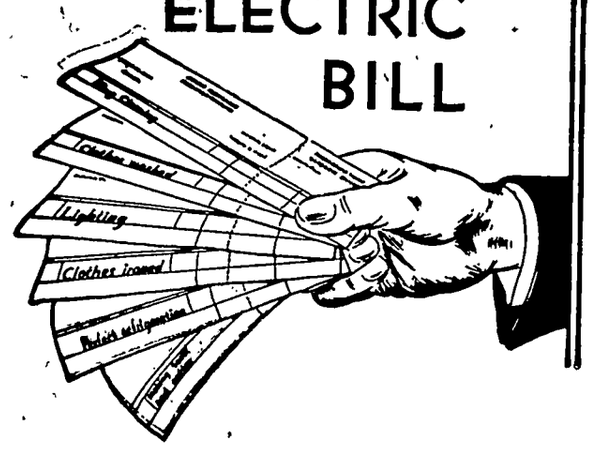
AN ITEMIZED ELECTRIC BILL



THE monthly statement which this Company sends to a customer is generally referred to as a "light bill." In most cases, this is not correct—it is not a "light bill" but a bill for electric service.

If this Company sent a separate bill for each service performed by electricity during the month, the customer would realize the truth of this statement and would appreciate that the monthly statement includes many services besides lighting.

Almost every home would receive bills for a number of services such as washing, ironing, sweeping floors, operating a radio or battery charger, percolating coffee, toasting bread, baking waffles, pumping water, or the various other services the Company furnishes which lighten the drudgery of housework and make the home more comfortable and livable. Many homes would also receive bills for refrigerating and cooking.

If such a method of billing was adopted, the customer would be surprised to learn the small amount charged for each service furnished.

The Star On The Christmas Tree

by Katherine Edelman

SAY, can I get some trimmings for a Christmas tree? Fix up the best assortment you've got, please."

Lena Masters looked up at the sound of the pleasant voice and a smile flashed across her face. "In just a moment," she answered, "as soon as I get this package tied up."

Carefully she went over the counter, selecting such things as she would put on a Christmas tree herself. Yards and yards of silver tinsel, boxes of Christmas snow, numerous tree ornaments, several Santa Claus figures, and all the other things that go to make a Christmas tree a thing to exclaim about. And on the top layer of the box she put a beautiful shining silver star, carefully wrapped in tissue paper. Then she tied the package and handed it across the counter.

"Somebody's going to have a lovely Christmas," she said. "I can imagine how beautiful this tree will look.

The man took the box and started to move away, then returned rather slowly. "Pardon me," he stammered, "but—but there was something about the way you said that that set me to thinking. Do you have folks of your own, and—and a Christmas tree and everything?"

For a moment Lena Masters was silent, then as she looked into the strong, kind face, she answered: "The only relative I have, an uncle, lives in Montana, and—and I have never had a home Christmas. But—but I love the day just the same."

Then John Anderson told her something of his own life. He had gone away at twenty-two—had been sent abroad as the representative of a large concern—now, after five years he had come back at the request of his father, to help him with his business. His father and mother were growing old. And because he had come back, they wanted a Christmas tree, and so he had come for the fixings.

Later that evening, just as Lena Masters was getting ready for closing time, she looked up to find John Anderson standing by the counter. He was accompanied by a sweet-faced old lady—his mother, Lena knew even before he introduced them. "I just had to bring mother down," he said. "As soon as I told her about you today, she just insisted that you spend Christmas with us. You—you've got to see the Christmas tree, you know; you had a part in its making."

The days that followed were the happiest Lena Masters had ever known. The joy of Christmas was multiplied a hundred fold by the kindness and attention shown her. The Anderson family left nothing undone to make her happy. And, they told her over and over again how much her coming had meant to them all. There was but one tiny cloud on her sky, the thought that this could not last forever.

But Lena Masters found the happiness that Christmas had brought her was going to be lasting. From now on, all the joy of happy home life and comradeship was going to be hers. For, as they stood beside the gleaming Christmas tree, John Anderson's hand reached out and clasped hers, and she heard him whisper: "Ever since I put that star on the Christmas tree, it—it seems like a symbol of the happiness that lies ahead for us two."

Snow at Christmastide

There is an inviting loveliness in the snowy Christmas. There's a fascination in watching a snowstorm, especially one at Yuletide, that is unsurpassed by the charm of any other aspect of nature. Snow is beauty obliterating the world. Its glamor is akin to that of moonlight, steeping the visible universe in radiant bloom. There is a power of gentleness in it that we seldom dream of. Snow is gentleness, chaste as the mountain air, virginally cool, compassionately adorning the faded earth.—American Magazine

Always Memorable

Christmastide, with its warm spirit of fellowship, its renewal of old friendships, its generosity and jollity, is always an occasion to be remembered.—American Magazine.

Out of the Depths

by Duford Jenne

ROSS MERVIN paused a moment before he went up the rickety stairs that led to the room where dumb "Soupy" Sam would rent him a bed for the night for the sum of ten cents.

He caught sight of a slight, girlish figure staggering along the street toward him. She stopped suddenly with groping hands.

"Something wrong?" he asked gently.

"I guess—I'm blind! My eyes—" were the whispered words he caught.

Her wide eyes did seem sightless to him. He took her arm quickly under his. "Perhaps it is just for the moment. I'll be glad to take you home if you tell me where to go."

She was a slight thing, and pretty under other circumstances, Ross thought. He learned in that brief but eventful walk that she had been studying art in the city, but success had not come her way. The Christmas rush in the stores had given her an opportunity to earn money. The lights had bothered her after the strain, her eyes had been under in her studying and that night on her way home darkness deeper than the night had come over them.

He suggested getting in touch with the police, but she begged him not to. "I have my rent paid until Sunday night, and if I rest tomorrow my eyes may be all right. After that—after that—"

A rigid faced landlady came to the door. In a moment Ross glimpsed the situation. The woman heard the explanation with a scowl; and he decided to wait until he had seen the helpless girl to her room. Then he said quietly:

"Look after her well, and I will see that you are paid."

"She has her room paid until Sunday night. After that the city will take care of her—unless she has the cash Sunday night. You look like a bum to me, but if you get the money, all right," the woman said shortly.

Ross smiled. "You have my number; but I'll have the money. Be good to her. She's a mere kid and up against it."

"So am I," she replied sharply.

The next morning early he was at an agency. He stepped to the desk just in time to hear a man say, "That's no job for me!" and go on.

"I'll take it," Ross agreed.

The clerk smiled. "This job is driving a truck for the construction company at Millburg. The truck carries explosives for their dynamiting."

For two days Ross drove the truck. Saturday night he received his two days' pay and hurried to 30 East street, paid the grim landlady rent for another week, and talked for one long happy hour with the girl he had vowed to aid. Her eyes had improved a little, and under his quiet determination she agreed to rest during the coming week.

"I—I don't see why you are so good to me," she said hesitatingly at parting.

Her hand sought his. "But—your voice out of the darkness—I know! O, I know!"

The next week, the fates seemed to take a hand in remolding his life, and one event followed another speedily.

He looked up from his engine to see his father's fur-coated figure and hear him say:

"Lad, one of my engineer friends here spotted you and told me. It's almost Christmas. I feel that I have been unjust to you—but won't you come home?"

Ross' mind lingered on the word "Christmas," and he said simply, "I will—if I can bring some one with he. No, not my wife, but a girl I hope to make my wife."

So it came about that one eventful evening Ross bent over a pale, flower-like face and looked into dark eyes to which a great city physician had brought the blessing of sight; and she said:

"Dear, what a dream it seems! This beautiful home—and you with me! And just a few weeks ago, you and I down—"

"In the depths, sweetheart. I began to climb out the moment I saw you that night."

"And you took me with you—" the chime of far-away bells broke into her words with distant music—"what are those bells?" she asked wonderingly.

He touched her lips with his. "Christmas bells, little girl, ringing out the old for us—forever!"

SOME EXCELLENT ADVICE

Although the pheasant and duck seasons are over here are some very good things to remember another year. This was taken from American Field. It is passed on because of its value in saving life. Here it is: "Know where your companions are. When in doubt do not fire. Unload or 'break' your gun when climbing through or over a fence. Never leave a loaded gun standing against a tree. Always carry a loaded gun with the barrel pointed down. About 3,000 persons are killed each year by careless shooting. Careless boys are the chief offenders and victims. What tragedy there is in 'I didn't know it was loaded;' what terrible torture in shooting down a companion. Remember this: The only time a gun is safe is when it is pointed away from a human being"

PNEUMONIA TIME

"Any disease which causes four of every hundred of its victims to die must be cataloged as serious. Such a disease is pneumonia,." says of Iowa State Department of Health "Among children and the aged the fatality rate is considerably higher, 8 out of every 100 children under 3 and 8 to 10 of every hundred in people over 70.

Every precaution should be taken to avoid pneumonia at this season of the year when the weather is changeable. Especial attention must be paid to temperature, ventilation and humidity in homes and offices. Put on suitable outer clothing when you go from a warm atmosphere into the outer cold. Keep your feet dry. Get plenty of sleep. Avoid crowded places and cover your own mouth when you cough or sneeze.

Pershing's Teeth "Gold Mine" for the Marines

A story about General Pershing's teeth was told by Mark Sullivan during authors' night at the booksellers' convention. General Pershing, he said, had trouble with his teeth. A corps of famous doctors insisted the general have them removed pronto. So the general hied himself to a marine hospital.

The marines who performed the task bethought themselves that the teeth would be worth much as souvenirs, and promptly sold them to various and sundry persons at $1 the tooth and upward.

Finally the tale reached the ears of the army overlords, who were aghast. They dispatched an army sergeant to round up the purchasers and collect the teeth—at any cost.

The sergeant didn't return for days. When he did—and he was severely reprimanded for his delay—he produced 216 teeth, all guaranteed to be General Pershing's.—Philadelphia Record.

Has Scientists Puzzled

So far as man's memory extends, Ireland has been without snakes. Whether or not St. Patrick is the reason for the Emerald isle's immunity, England, Scotland and Wales, but a few miles across the water, have always had at least a fair sized population of these reptiles. The nearest approach to a snake in Ireland is a legless lizard called the lag worm, which isn't formidable even in appearance. During recent years there have been many attempts to introduce harmless snakes as an aid to farmers, but the introductions have not been successful. Zoologists are unable to account for the phenomenon.

Solon's Wise Laws

Solon, the celebrated Greek reformer, before the Peloponnesian war, aided present day home owners, renters, and the real estate business. The privilege of willing one's holdings as one pleased, now taken for granted, originated with Solon. Before his time no one, not even the wealthy, could dispose of their property as they wished. Estates of all deceased persons went to their families. Plutarch says that the "Archon" esteemed friendship a stronger tie than kinship and affection stronger than necessity, and thus allowed every man to dispose of his estate, but with some restrictions.

Babcock Milk Test

The Babcock test for milk is a method of determining the quality of milk invented by Stephen Moulton Babcock in 1890. The test is based on the fact that strong sulphuric acid will dissolve the nonfatty solid constituents A definite quantity of the milk to be tested is placed with sulphuric acid in a bottle having a narrow graduated neck The bottle is then whirled for a few moments in a centrifugal machine, hot water is added to bring the liquid fat into the neck of the bottle, which is then whirled a second time, and the column of fat is read off on the graduated scale.

Art Treasure at Palace

The summer palace of the Princess Reuss, at Greiz, in Thuringia, in the foothills of the Saxon Erzgebirge, contains a valuable collection of art works. Of especial interest is the collection of 6,000 copper engravings, including 800 mezzotint engravings after pictures by Sir Joshua Reynolds. Counterparts of these exist only in the British museum.

The collection was made by Princess Elizabeth, daughter of George III of England.—German Tourist Bureau.

We always strive to produce the very highest grade of Butter and we are happy to say that we have succeeded.

Every pound of Butter me manufacture goes on the market as Highest Quality. That is where our farmer patrons receive a direct benefit— for we get extra prices for our grade of Butter and these extra profits are passed along to our farmer fiends in higher prices for his cream.

The Times this week reaches out to many farmers— some of whom have not yet become patrons of our Creamery. To those we extend an invitation to visit us. We will also appreciate your patronage.

IT'S NOT A NEW RACKET IN KLEMME

But It Knocks The Profit Off Of Eggs Handled By Merchants

A "racket", has been and is being pulled on Klemme merchants by some farmers in this trade territory who are laying themselves liable to a fine if reported. We refer to the practice of some farmers who are grading their eggs, sell the best to stations and then dispose of the culls to mechants, who in good faith are buying them as "current receipt eggs". This grade is the regular farm run, not graded and which are sold as such.

The farmer who grades his eggs sells the best and then trys to dispose of the culls lays himself liable to a fine because if he is selling the eggs on grade he must sell all of them on grade, culls as well as the good eggs which bring a higher price.

The farmer who is pulling this stunt is causing the merchant to lose about $2.40 a case on eggs that he bought in good faith. Is it fair?

The Times wants to warn those who are practicing his "racket" to lay off. The "racket" is known and some one may be sorry if they do not heed the warning.

HICKEN THIEVES AT WORK AGAIN

HICKEN THIEVES ROB BIRDS FROM MULLEN FARM

ok Advantage of Situation While Family Were at Basket Social

Friday night shortly after the sket social and program held in a ral school east of Klemme, chick- thieves were at work stealing ickens at the Ben Mullen farm. he Mullen family were at the hoolhouse attending the program d sale of baskets at the time.

Ben Mullen, from whom the chick- s were stolen gives the Times a mplete story of what he has been le to learn regarding the thieves, d we are printing the story as Mr. ullen tells it to us.

On close observation of the rounds about the chicken house d the building itself strands of read and small particles of cloth- g were found on the edges of the ards when the thieves came in ntact with them. These particles clothing were of two colors and her clues indicated that two or ore parties were present.

Mr. Mullen states that the partly rozen condition of the ground left xcellen marks and tracks. Tire acks led to where the chickens ere stored. Saturday night at a- out 8:45 o'clock the young men t in their appearance with sacks get the chickens which had been ored in the old Schroder house st west of town. As we under- and it there were two crates full d fifteen chickens not crated. The oung men made their visit snappy ossibly because of a shortage of cks. and possibly the good or poor dgment of one of the parties on eir trail who did not use a heavy 5 cal. leaves these boys to wonder it pays to steal chickens.

Mr. Mullen has checked up on revious sales of chickens and says seems as though the chicken hieves' business pays pretty good.

Parents whose boys do not regis- r in until 4:00 or 5:00 o'clock in e morning should check up on em. Parents surely do not uphold is kind of thing. Mr. Mullen says at in order for these parents to eck up he is going to give a de- cription of the car used. which was model A Tudor Ford, dirty and ud spattered and had U. S. Peer- ss tires on the rear. License No.— ?The number was withheld. Mr. ullen further described the car as aving Firestone tires on the front heels, but he is postive a front re has been changed.

Mr. Mullen states he got his hickens back and to save grief and mbarrassment to good mothers of hese boys he will drop the pro- eedings this time but says. "Look ut from now on. boys, it's shot you ill be picking out of your hides he next time this happens. not nly at my place but from else- here."

The information The Times used n the above article is directly from r. Mullen who will verify any of he above statements.

Farmers Post A Reward

This reward is open o anyone and is a standing offer. ny who want to help along can ontribute to the fund.

TWO CONCRETE BRIDGES WERE BUILT IN HANCOCK THIS YEAR

Bridge Expenditures for Hancock Comparitively Small

In some counties of this state a larg part of the road money must be spent for bridges. We are fortunate in this county as we have no large streams and consequently our bridge expenditures are comparitively small During 1931 we built only two bridges that cost more than one thousand dollars. The one on the trunk road six miles west of Klemme cost $3610.00 and the bridge on the trunk road six miles east of Corwith cost $2348.00 Both of these bridges were built with steel beams resting on concrete abutments with foundations four feet below the bed of the stream and have concrete floors. They are as permanent as we know how to make them.

The crooked wooden bridge two miles east of Hayfield was torn down and rebuilt at a cost of $650 and the wooden bridge west of the John Terhufen place in Liberty township was rebuilt at a cost of $520. Wooden bridges are built on the local roads carrying light traffic as their cost is only about one fifth of the cost of permanent bridges. Four concrete culverts were extended to provide for wider grades and many wooden bridges were repaired. The largest repair job was the placing of a new floor on the 150 foot wooden bridge east of Goodell.

AMERICAN LEGION AUXILIARY NOTES

The American Legion Auxiliary met on Tuesday afternoon, Dec. 18 in the Legion rooms. 12 members were present.

A large amount of new and used clothing was collected during the past month. Some of this was used locally; the rest was sent to the supply shelf at Des Moines. The unit uses this column as a medium for thanking all those who contributed.

A bake sale was planned to be held some time before Christmas. The time and place will be announced in the local columns of this paper.

Tentative plans were made for a Legion-Auxiliary party to be held New Year's Eve. However definite announcements will be made later

The secretary announced that money for the Christmas Cheer boxes for veterans in hospitals has been sent in.

The Klemme unit is again sending "dimes for the disabled". Ten cents for each member has been sent based on last year's membership.

A stream of silver dimes is again beginning to flow from American Legion Auxiliary members throughout the country to the Auxiliary's national headquarters to be transformed into a stream of dollars flowing to the disabled veterans of the World War. Every member of the Auxiliary will be asked to contribute ten cents to a special national fund for the aid of disabled veterans and very dime contributed will place approximately $3.50 in the pocket of some needy disabled veteran. The money is donated by the Auxiliary to the American Legion for use in helping veternas establish claims for government compensation. Last year the Auxiliary raised $40,000 through the ten cent contributions and this sum enabled the Legion to recover approximately $1,400,000 in compensation and allowances for disabled veterans and families of the dead.

FIRST AND SECOND TEAMS WIN FROM CORWITH FRIDAY NIGHT

Gimer Scores 11 points in Cage Battle with Corwith Reserves

In a closely fought basketball contest Friday night the Klemme High School Basketball team came from behind in the last quarter to win from Corwith 19 to 16.

Corwith has a strong basketball team having lost to Hyafield by one point in an overtime period and defeated Crystal Lake almost two to one.

The green and white were unable to find the basket in the first half of the game but their team work and defensive play was much superior to Corwith. They came back in the second half stronger and with the same old fighting spirit, rallying in the fourth quarter to build up a six point lead which Corwith was unable to overcome.

The lineup is as follows:

Klemme — 19

In the curtain raiser the Klemme second team won from the Corwith second team 22 to 13. The Corwith boys in the first half out scored the Shamrock reserves, but the green and white came back strong in the second half to make 15 points compared with 3 for Corwith.

Gimer showed up good in the second team lineup. He scored 11 points against the Corwith reserves Keeper showed up good in the first team game when he went in and scored six points to put the game on ice for Klemme.

We will have to give each and every boy credit for their part in winning the game with Corwith.

Klemme has a strong, fast team and they are quickly developing. If you want to see a gaad snappy game of Basketball come out and watch Klemme battle with Kanawha on Friday, December 18. The team needs your loyal suport and backing. Come out and back the team on their way to victory.

WINTER WEATHER IS REALLY HERE NOW

We believe the weather man is all through with his tricks and has perhaps really given us a little winter weather. At least the thermometer has dropped down to the freezing point and Saturday night we had a light snow. The weather is clear and crisp and is far better for Iowa than the rain and damp weather which we have experienced. It seems that winter is really here now, although still mild.

CHAS. LONGLAY HAS SNOW BALL ROLLING CALF

Believe it or not, but Charles Longlay, who lives on a fanm in Avery township has a yearling calf that delights in rolling large snow balls. The calf did not receive any special education, but pickd up the trick of its own accord.

Mr. Longlay has a small patch of rye which grew up nice and green. He turned the calf into the patch of rye and when the snow came the calf learned that by pushing the snow with its nose the ball grew larger and exposed the delicious green feed to view. As the calf would eat the green morsel he would push the snow ball farther and expose more green to view. He continued this method until the snow ball got too large to handle and would then start rolling up another ball and get more green rye. The calf had rolled up at least a dozen large snow balls some nearly three feet in diameter and these are scattered about the yard.

Since the snow has frozen too hard to stick together to make good snow balls, we presume the calf will figure out some other system to get the juicy, green rye.

CONTEMPTIBLE THIEVES

It's a disgrace to the animal kingdom to even rank a sneaking, dirty, yellow streaked chicken thief as the lowest form of a two-legged animal. A poison injecting rattlesnake is an angel compared to this contemptible night prowling rat.

The chicken thief is again at work and again struck Friday night in Ell Township. The story of this will be found on the front page and we hope the guilty parties will soak it in thoroughly.

Heed the warning, young men, You are right on the road to the penitentiary and for your own good stop, and stop quick, while you have the chance. Men are on your trail and they mean business. You have pulled your last job in this community, don't try it again. And o the parents who read this article, it might be well for you to investigate the activities of your own son. The information given us points out that four young men (one not so young) are implicated in Friday night's peisote, or had a part in it later.

A substantial reward has been raised in Ell township for catching and turning over any chicken thieves caught stealing in that township. The reward is a standing offer. The local vigilance committee have pledged their support in running down thieves in this community. In other words, this community is going to make it plenty hot for you!

AND, IT'S THE COP'S JOB!

A few weeks ago in this department the Editor suggested that perhaps the local fire company might be overlooking one of its duties in which we stated that we thought it was their duty to inspect chimneys and other fire hazards at least once a year.

The editorial drew the attention of the local fire boys and on investigating and looking up the matter they found the duty of inspecting fire hazards is the duty of the Town Marshall. This information was given the Times by one of the members of the fire company and he stated that the Town Marshall and Mayor were both present when the facts were presented.

Fine work! We will now see what Marshall Coobs will do about this job of inspecting. If that is his duty let him perform it. We give the fire boys full credit for their interest in the matter.

ANNUAL STATE 4-H BOYS SHORT COURSE

The annual State Boys' Short Course and State Convention of the 4-H clubs to be held at Iowa State College at Ames, December 28-31, 1931, is the 17th year that special work has been offered for the Juniors.

Demonstrations on special agricultural subjects, illustrated lectures boys' conferences,, radio programs, reports of outstanding achievements by 4-H club boys, Boys' State chorus livestock and crops judging contests recreation and gymnasium work will be featured.

The Sixth Annual Boys' 4-H Club Convention will be held at which the annual election of officers will take place. Each county is entitled to select one voting delegate and an alternate.

Livestock and Grain Judging

Livestock and grain judging will again feature the Boys' Short course Iowa 4-H boys attending the annual boys' short course each year look forward to the competition provided in the grain and livestock sessions arranged by the Farm Crops and Livestock divisions. Trophies, medals and other achievment awards add interest and zest to this part of the short course program.

For the 1931 boys' short course held December 28 to 31, a proposed new feature, which if approved, will be added to this part of the work follows: Instead of each county naming its judging team before the contest, the three boys from a county with the hignest total score are considered the county team. Also, every boy will be competing against himself for a rating. That is, all boys with a total score of 90 or more in livestock will be rated blue ribbon livestock judges. Those with scores of 80 to 89 will be rated as red ribbon and those with scores below 80 white ribbon. The same principle will be used in the grain judging.

Counties with the largest percentage of blue ribbon judges will also be given a rating. A county must have at least five boys to compete in this rating. This classification makes it important tha from a county take part ing and insruction work if he were a judging tea

WOMEN'S HOME PROJECT CHAIRMAN NOMINATED

Mrs. Ed. Oxley had an all day meeting of her County Women's Project Committee at the Farm Bureau office Friday. The women's Achievement Day plans which were drawn up at the meeting Wednesday with Miss Neale S. Knowles of Ames presiding were discussed and approved. Mrs. L. F Weaver of Ell township was unanimously nominated as County chairman of Women's work for the coming year of 1932. It was decided at this meeting that it would be best to have every township in the county meet with another township in taking the women's work In this way, Miss Phyllis White, Home Demonstration Agent, will have more time to put on club work

The townships represented at this meeting were Madison, Concord, Garfield, Britt, Magor, Liberty, Ell and Orthel.

Following the business meeting a short Christmas program was enjoyed by those present.

RABBITS STARTING TO DAMAGE YOUNG TREES

If you will journey out to your young shelterbelt, orchard or woodlot, you will notice that already the rabbits are starting to do harm and many cases will kill he young trees.

To avoid further damage you should either fence entire shelterbelt, orchard or woodlot or else use a one fourth inch wire screen as a loose wrapper about the trunks' However if this is done, the screen should be raised with each additional snow, otherwise the snow will bury the screen.

You might have good success by just wrapping the tree trunks with heavy wrapping apper. It is essential that steps be taken right away against the desructive work of the rabbits, mice and other orchard pests.

WHEN one thinks of the traditions of Christmas celebration in New England, the Middle states, and even farther West, in the early part of the Nineteenth century, it is to vision snow-covered ground, sleigh rides, and the jingle of sleigh bells, with Christmas trees and Santa Claus, much as today in those sections. Whole families going visiting in the bob-sled, to partake of the Christmas feast built around the turkey!

Those were great times and days, and their annals live in the works of famous literati of the East coast when our Republic was comparatively young.

But at the same time a mighty civilization was being builded on the West coast, though how different was the Christmas observed in the sparsely settled and undeveloped land that is now California! And how few to leave record!

However, Albert Robinson, a clerk who left Boston for California in July, 1828, and after 110 days reached Valparaiso, and Monterey on February 15, 1829, has left in his "Life in California," published in the late forties, a description of a Christmas celebration held at the mission in San Diego that shows the contrast between such events on the east and west coasts at that time.

Robinson's business took him to various parts of the (now) state, and while on a visit from his headquarters in San Francisco to his friend Don Jose Antonio Estudillo, comandante of San Diego, wrote of the Christmas festivities he had witnessed:

"Don Jose Antonio . . . was ever on the alert seeking for some new device for my gratification. It was nearly time for the religious festival of 'la noche buena' (the holy night) and he directed the customary exhibition of the 'pastores.' They were rehearsing night after night, till at length Christmas arrived, and I had an opportunity of beholding the midnight mass and the subsequent performances.

"At an early hour illuminations commenced, fireworks were set off, and all was rejoicing. The church bells rang merrily, and long before the time of mass the pathways leading to the presidio were enlivened by crowds hying to devotion. I accompanied Don Jose Antonio, who procured for me a stand where I could see distinctly everything that took place. The mass commenced, Padre Vincente de Oliva (died 1845) officiated, and at the conclusion of the mysterious 'sacrificio' he produced a small image representing the infant Savior, which he held in his hands for all who chose to approach and kiss.

"After this, the tinkling of the guitar was heard without, the body of the church was cleared, and immediately commenced the harmonious sounds of a choir of voices. The characters entered in procession, adorned with appropriate costumes, and bearing banners. There were six females representing shepherdesses, three men and a boy.

"One of the men personated Lucifer, one a hermit, and the other Bartolo, a lazy vagabond, whilst the boy represented the archangel Gabriel. The story of their performance is partially drawn from the Bible, and commences with the angel's appearance to the shepherds, his account of the birth of our Savior and exhortation to them to repair to the scene of the manger.

"A dialogue is then carried on of considerable length relative to the attributes of the Deity, which ends in the submission of Satan.

"The whole is interspersed with songs and incidents that seem better adapted to the stage than the church.

"For several days this theatrical representation is exhibited at the principal houses, and the performers at the conclusion of the play are entertained with refreshments. The boys take an enthusiastic part in the performance, and follow about from house to house, perfectly enraptured with the comicalities of the hermit and Bartolo."

How different from the gay Christmas celebrations of California's present millions! And how different from what was taking place on the east coast!

Richard II Entertained in Big Way at Yuletide

CHRISTMAS celebrations of Old England, are inextricably interwoven with the earlier Yuletide observance of the Celts, and many of them have a pagan origin, writes Isabelle Florence Story in the Washington Star. It was in feudal times, however, that the observance of Christmas, still called the Yule feast, reached its greatest magnificence. Old records tell that King Richard II gave a great Christmas feast at Littlefield in the Fourteenth century at which 2,000 oxen and 200 tons of wine were consumed. But this monarch was accustomed to entertaining on a grand scale, for every day 10,000 persons dined at his expense, and it is said that he employed 2,000 cooks. Those surely were the good old days!

Got Just What He Wanted

"It's just what I've been wanting," said the office cynic, referring to some Christmas gift he didn't get.

Perhaps Santa doesn't have whooping cough, but I'm sure that he must have paralyzed purse strings.

I had feared that men would adopt the Gandhi garb—but since the Pope refused to meet the man I am sure that the people of one religious sect will still be wearing trousers.

Warnings do not make the Christmas tree less apt to burn, but my nature cannot resist the impulse to advise.

One of our "unfair sex" has permitted a local swain to think she is in love with him. Now she may as well attempt to unscramble an egg as to get the notion out of his mind.

If I were a film director, I would choose the twenty-two year old hired man of a farmer to play the part of the Prince of Wales. I'm sure the young man would do splendidly for he is not only better looking but resembles the Prince of Wales more than the Prince does.*

I have been informed that a young man whom I personally admire is a chicken thief, but I assure myself that it is a mistake because this lad is not leaving for the state of eternal sunshine.

If I were Frank Gibbs, I'd secure the unsalaried services of the local loafers during this annual flood of Christmas mail. At least, they would have an ideal excuse for decorating Main street with their beings.

Who said parents don't keep their children under mental submission? Friday, a junior in the high school was horrified to learn there was no Santa Claus.

I rebuked my sister for following her boy friend like a thread following a needle. She retorted that a thread would be useless if it did not. Thus a lovely argument ended.

I was so elated over the manner in which our four year.. old recited his Christmas selection. Some of the conceit was taken from me when I discovered hat a two year old resident could not only repeat his brother's recitation, but could count to 20 and sing several songs, including Christmas songs—and a clever ditty he heard at the Junior Carnival.

I never could quite understand why the number of singers in the choir makes such a decided increase just before the holidays.

To explain the brevity of my column, I confess I spent many a valuable moment trying to discover which gentleman escorted the neighbor's guest home, since there are two identical Chevrolets in town.

YES, VIRGINIA, THERE IS A SANTA, HE LIVES FOREVER

Virginia's Question, "Is There Santa Claus?" Directed to New York Sun Many Years Ago Is Answered Most Satisfactorily

"Is there a Santa Claus?" This question was addressed by a little girl to the New York Sun many years ago and the kind editor appreciating the anxiety of the little one, her childish joys and griefs made the reply we publish below. It is the most complete and convincing answer to the oft repeated question. "Is there a Santa Claus?" ever published.

"Dear Editor..... I am eight years old..... Some of my little friends say there is no Santa Claus..... Papa says, If you see it in the Sun, it's so"..... Please tell me the truth, is there a Santa Claus?—Virginia O'Hanlon."

"Virginia, your little friends are wrong. They have been affected by the skepticism of a skeptical age They do not believe except they see. They think that nothing can be that is not comprehensible by their little minds. All minds, Virginia, whether they be men's or children's are little. In this great universe of ours man is a mere insect, an ant, in his intellect, as compared with the boundless world about him, as measured by the intelligence capable of grasping the whole of truth and knowledge.

"Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus. He exists as certainly as love and generosity and devotion exist, and you know that they abound and give to your life its highest beauty and joy. Alas! how dreary would be the world if there were no Santa Claus! It would be as dreary as if there were no Virginia's. There would be no childlike faith then, no poetry, no romance to make tolerable this existence. We should have no enjoyment, except in sense and sight. The eternal light with which childhood fills the world would be extinguished.

"Not believe in Santa Claus! You might as well not believe in fairies. You might get your papa to hire men to watch in all the chimneys on Christmas Eve to catch Santa Claus but even if they did not see Santa Claus coming down what would that prove? Nobody sees Santa Claus but that is no sign that there is no Santa Claus. The most real things in the world are those that neither children nor men can see. Did you ever see fairies dancing on h lawn? Of course not, but that's no proof that they are not there. Nobody can conceive or imagine all the wonders that are unseen and unseeable in the world.

"You tear apart the baby's rattle and see what make the noise inside but there is a veil covering the unseen world which the strongest man nor even the united strength of all the strongest men that evere lived, could tear apart. Only faith, fancy, poetry, love romance can push aside that curtain and view and picture the supernal beauty and glory beyond. Is it all real? Ah, Virginia, in all this world there is nothing else real and abiding.

"No Santa Claus! Thank God! he lives and he lives forever. A thousand years from now. Virginia, nay ten thousand years from now he will continue to make glad the heart of childhood.

How often do you, whose shadow is pointing eastward, indicating the gradual setting of the sun, ener the chamber of dreamland and live again the days of your childhood. those days so full of expectancy and yet so clouded with childish sorrows You recall the thrill that came the morning after Christmas when you found Santa had passed your way and had not forgotten you. The remembrance may have been an orange, a few sticks of striped candy or a tinsel that glistened in the lamp light like a diamond, a tiny toy, a pair of mittenst tha tired hands had fashioned while weary eyes were longing for rest. How you danced with joy and looked forward with glee to the coming of another Christmas day. Many incidents in life are lost in the mists of fading memory but Santa's visits will remain vivid always.

Isn't it great to live those days over again in dreamland, while burning embers slowly turn to grey and the horizon, where the night is waiting for the new day, seems but a step away?

THIEVES WRECKING HOUSE IN ELL TO PROCURE LUMBER

Geo. Albers Offers $25 Cash Reward For Information

George Albers, Ell township farmr, is offering a cash reward for information that will lead to the apprehension of parties guilty of stealing from one of his farms. Mr. Albers reports to the Times that he first noticed a loss about a monh ago when he discovered that nine windows and window casings had been removed from his tenant house which is two miles north and four miles east of Klemme, in Ell township. As no one is living at the place and as Mr. Albers goes to the place but seldom, it is not known just when the windows were stolen. A few days ago he again visited this farm and discovered that the inside stairway had been removed, the gable of the house taken and other lumber removed. Only the best lumber is being taken from the building and this leads Mr. Albers to believe that the material is being used in a building somewhere.

REPORT LOSSES TO THE TIMES

Farmers in and near Klemme who have had losses by thieves during the fall and early winter can assist greatly in stopping the practice if they will report their losses. We suggest that they report to he Klemme Times any loss they have had this year. Give a full description, state about the time the loss occurred. This information may prove valuable in checking up.

NOTICE

We, the buyers of poultry, eggs, etc. in Klemme offer our assistance in putting down chicken thievery. Report your losses. We assure you of our confidence and help. MARK YOUR POULTRY.

Henry Lewis Mrs. Fern Gram
Klemme Produce Co. C. Boland Opr.

We, the buyers of livestock, offer our assistance at any time in the loss of livestock by thieves. Report your losses at once. Give description, time, etc. Cooperation will make it hard for them.

C. A. Larsen Joe E. Johnson
E. C. Buntenbach

This kind of cooperation from the business men should in a big sense help to rule out thievery in this community.

Loss of Grain, Fodder. Corn, etc. can be traced easily if reported.

Such losses have been reported. Here's your warning, you dirty skunks. It's time to get out and hustle instead of steal.

FRANK SCHOUN OUT FOR COUNTY SUPERVISOR

Frank Schoun, born and raised in Garfield township and resident of Hacock county during his life of 48 years, will be a candidate to succeed himself in the office of supervisor. Mr. Schoun was appointed to the office last February, following the tragic death of his brother-in-law, Frank Urich. who died of burns following an auto accident near Klemme. Since his appointment Mr. Schoun has given the county good service, as far as the Times can learn. and has given his office careful and honest attention.

Mr. Schoun's prsent appointive office will expire following the election next fall. and despite his experience as supervisor, he is to be classed as a "new man" in the running. However he believes that he has the necessary experience for continuing the work. He has been a farmer all of his life and knows the problems confronting the farmer. He has had first hand experience in drainage matters and knows what they cost. We can truthfully say that he is conservative and can be trusted to perform his duty to the best of his ability.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Grove drove to New Hampton Saturday to spend the vacation with her parents. Mr. and Mrs. Hunter expect to leave today for Charter Oak to spend the vacation wih both their parents who live there.

DOINGS AT SCHOOL THE PAST WEEK

STATE INSPECTOR REPORTS SCHOOL PROGRESSING NICELY

High School Faculty Entertained Students to Christmas Party

W. H. Simons, state inspector, and Mr. Baggs, county superintendent spent most of the forenoon one day last week visiting classes and inspecting the building in general. Many favorable comments were made in the report. Mr. Simons mentioned the orderly conduct of the children entering the buildings and in the halls. Miss Goll's room received much praise in regard to the many things she and the students have made. The post office, aquarium, movie, nature study cage and many other things. The inspector was very well satisfied with the work books which were introduced last fall in the first grade.

The light color ceilings were very satisfactory. The report as a whole showed that the school is doing nicely and that good order and discipline existed in the entire school.

After Christmas vacation any student who drives his car to school must have a permit from his parents if he desires to drive his car at noon. This should prevent much unnecessary driving at noon and place the responsibility on the parents if excuses are given.

The high school faculty gave the grade teachers and high school students to a Christmas party Wednesday evening. The attendance was unanimous and every one reported a good time. Games were played during the first part of the evening. The later part of the evening was spent in giving presents,

The grade classes ended at two-thirty Friday. The later part of the afternoon was spent having Christmas parties in each room The high school had their regular classes and held a pep meeting just before dismissal.

LARGE CROWD ATTENDS HORSE BREAKING DEMONSTRATION

More than 100 farmers defied mud and bad roads to attend the horse breaking demonstration at the Verdie Anderson farm near Goodell last Saturday afternoon under the supervision of Harry Linn from the Iowa Horse and Mule Breeders' Association.

A seven year old gelding weighing exactly 1,950 pounds furnished the opposition for the afternoon and Harry while having his hands full broke and drove the horse with no trouble of any kind. Unless you have seen Harry Linn work, you cannot realize what a big advantage there is in being kind to the colt that is being broke. Harry never whips he colt he is work ing with, but, instead handles them in such a way that they think he is helping them get out of trouble. I have seen real western colts follow Harry like a dog after he has driven them and turned them loose in the pasture.

Not only did Harry break the 7 year old to dirve, but, he also rode him saying that "while you are doing one thing you might just as well do everything because the colt figures that that is part of the breaking and in many cases they ride as well as they drive".

Mr. Linn takes plenty of time and does a thorough job, taking no chances on being kicked. As he told the group at the Saturday demonstration, "you can be brave and daring by just getting missed by a horse's flying hoof for a million times, but, just the minute you get kicked some one in the crowd will say, 'Well, the damned fool got just what was coming to him'."

Klemme Produce Company

C. C. Boland, Manager

TWO stockings hung from either side of the mantlepiece of an old-fashioned room. They were well filled. They bulged inartistically but generously at every possible place. Over the pictures on the walls were large branches of spruce green. In one corner of the room stood a small Christmas tree, gayly bedecked with tinsel and favors and on the very top was perched a cardboard Santa Claus who still appeared as ruddy and festive as he had when first he had stood there seventeen years before.

The stockings which hung so heavily looked as though they would drop their load any minute but they were securely fastened and held down at the top by heavy books.

"Mumsie," cried a girl's voice. The front door had just opened.

"Hello," came back the answer from the woman sitting before the fire in the living room. She gazed with half wistful eyes at the stockings, then she called, although she knew the answer—

"Yes! Who is it?"

"Oh, Mumsie," the girl exclaimed as she came in the door, "how lovely the house looks! And you've trimmed the stairway since I've been gone. Did you put some green in the pulpit?"

Louise Waterbury ran out of the living room and up the stairs, around the bend of which was an opening which strongly resembled a pulpit architecturally. There again and again as a child Louise had preached "sermons" to Mumsie who had sat on the stairs, the sole listener to her oft-repeated text and sermon on the theme she loved the best. It gave her a chance for so many repetitions, and again and again, in her own way she would give her text.

"'Sam'el, Sam'el'; and he answered 'Here am I.'" Again and again the Lord would call Samuel in Louise's recitation. If she had gathered some of her friends together at any time she had formed a choir processional and they had added to the service by singing "From Greenland's Icy Mountains." It was such a graphic hymn. She could see India's coral strand, the great icy mountains of Greenland and the hot soil of Africa—all vividly in her mind. She was glad the hymn had been written by some one who had traveled—she was sure it must have been.

Yes, the pulpit had been decorated with great branches of green spruce and pine and hemlock. There was nothing in the house which didn't show that it was Christmas time and the room where they sat, with its four windows, its wreaths at each one, its white woodwork, its huge open fire dancing gayly and throwing shadows and lights and making a wonderful series of fantastic, fanciful pictures on the walls, all breathed the spirit of the season.

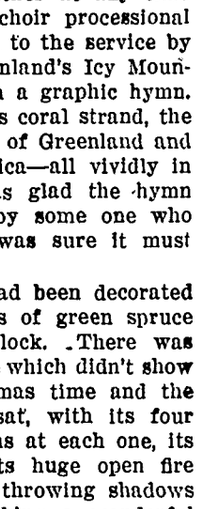
So they had sat every Christmas eve now for seventeen years. Mumsie had waited until Louise was a year old to decorate the house.

"Hadn't we better be having supper now? We've a long evening ahead."

So these two celebrated their Christmas together, one of them old, the other young. And when Louise said good-night to Mumsie one little happy tear did escape her, and Mumsie felt it on her cheek.

"What's the matter, dearie?"

"Nothing at all!" Louise exclaimd. "Only I've been thinking that the most wonderful gift of all, the most beautiful Christmas gift, or gift of life or anything and everything, is the way you have always made us have so much happiness and so much joy out of keeping 'days' and entering into the spirit of them, and in making the day-by-day living something so beautiful and so happy. Oh, Mumsie, you put the spirit of Christmas into every moment of the year."



And Mumsie hugged Louise and said:

"My dear, you're the secret of it all. It is because a young, young creature such as you, has never, never made me feel old!"

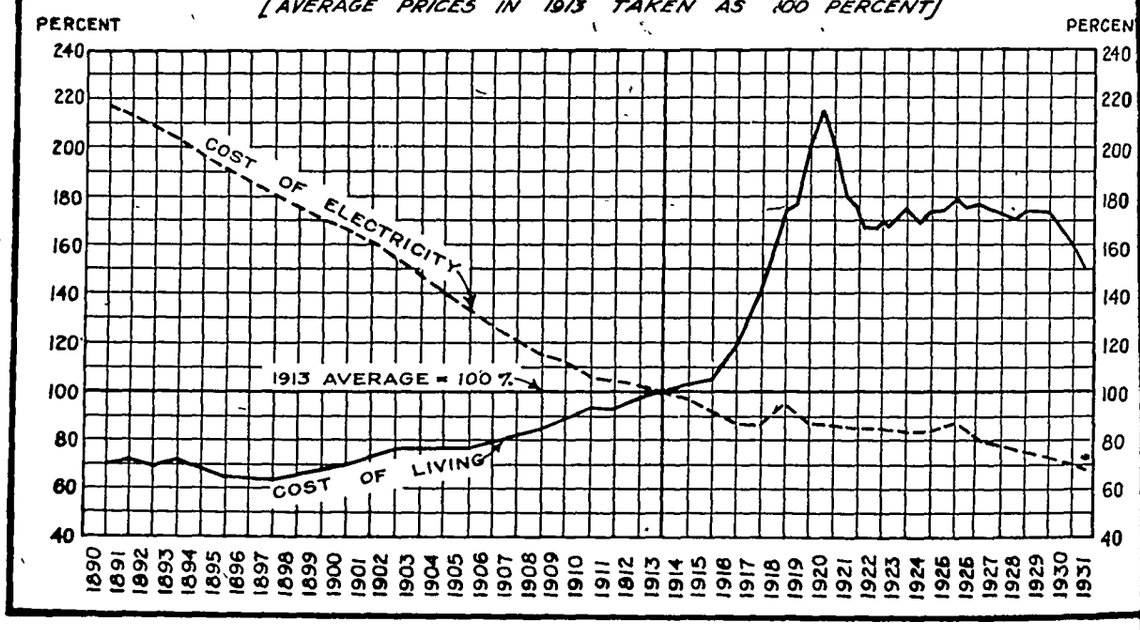
COMPARISON OF COST OF LIVING
AND THE AVERAGE COST PER KWH OF ELECTRICITY IN THE U.S.
BASED ON U.S. BUREAU OF LABOR STATISTICS
[AVERAGE PRICES IN 1913 TAKEN AS 100 PERCENT]



"Why doesn't the price of electricity come down too?'

The number of times this question is asked proves that the majority of the people do not realize the truth about the price of electricity.

While there was a marked decline in the cost of living (foodstuffs, clothing, fuel, housefurnishings and the various other items of household expenses) during the last two years, the cost of living is still 50% higher than it was in 1913.

On the other hand the price of electricity today is almost one-third lower than it was in 1913—in fact is lower than it ever has been in the history of the electric industry.

The decline in the cost of living is apparent to everyone and seems greater than it really is because it all came within a short period of time. The decline in the price of electricity has been less noticeable because it came in a series of reductions starting in 1918 and continuing to date—in other words the electric industry has been continually reducing the price of electricity for thirteen years while most of the other industries continued to maintain the price of their products at an abnormally high level up to 1930 and were then compelled, because of financial conditions, to make marked reductions in these prices within a short time.

The above chart based on figures compiled by the Bureau of Labor of the United States shows the trend of the cost of living and the average cost of a kilowatt hour of electricity during the forty years prior to June 30, 1931. The reduction in the average cost of electricity in your locality has been greater than the average shown above for the United States.

ARE THESE OUR CHILDREN

Our Christmas Gift Record

by Clara Agee Hays

AN OLD, old lady told me something strange one time.

"Santa Claus," she said, "is the saint of little children. But there is a grown-ups' saint at Christmas time, too, who stands beside us measuring our gifts aud recording them truly. He wouldn't judge by the means we use. For," the old, old lady smiled sweetly, "love makes a gift great at Christmas time."

In a small bungalow at the edge of a western town, a woman named Martha, and her daughter, Ruth, sewed. They and their house were a bit shabby. But that does not matter at Christmas time.

"Dear me!" Martha sighed as she took the last stitches, "I dread Chirstmas every year. It means work and sacrifice. I could have had a good pair of stockings for what I paid for Aunt Caroline's present. But I'd be ashamed to send her less."

"Yes!" Ruth snapped. "She and Anna probably think we're trash anyway. And look at what they give us! Last year Anna sent a bunch of fancy boxes. Imagine what on earth we'd do with them!"

"Anna's selfish, that's what!" Martha nodded with sudden conviction. "She wouldn't work the way you've had to. She'd think it was beneath her."

The idea enraged Ruth. She glared. "I'll show her some day, the inane snooty thing! I'm going to be somebody. And she with her pampered life—!"

Martha nodded. "She's just like her mother. Caroline always had to have her way. Always haughty and proud.

"Anna's Selfish, That's What!" Martha Nodded.

I never could understand why your uncle Lemuel married her."

"Huh!" Ruth wrote their names on the tags. "Me, either! What a life he must lead with those two."

"With them it's always 'me and mine.'"

"And Anna is as crude as she can me. Remember the time—"

But the recording saint went on. He had found the value of their gifts. And he was anxious to see Aunt Caroline and Anna.

They were in a large living room before a merry fire. There were great holly wreaths in the beautiful windows. And from the kitchen came the song of the cook. Suppose she had been the most expensive cook in the city. That has nothing to do with Christmas.

Anna smiled across at her mother. "Almost through with Aunt Martha's present?"

Aunt Caroline nodded. "Yes. And if you've finished Ruth's handkerchiefs, we'll get the package off. I hope Martha likes this."

"She will. Aunt Martha's a dear. Wouldn't it be great if they could spend Christmas with us some time?" Anna's eyes glowed.

"Wouldn't it! Too bad you and Ruth can't know each other better. You're so near the same age. Martha writes that Ruth is working hard. She's going to amount to something!"

Anna arose to write the names on the tags. "I'll bet she does. Remember when she was a little girl, she used to be so ambitious? I'm going to use this pretty tag on her package. Isn't it fun getting things off to them! I wish we could send them something nicer."

Caroline smiled. "Martha is sensitive and I wouldn't hurt her by sending things so much better than she could afford for us. Little things can express our love just as well. I'd be happy with only a card from them. It's the thoughts, you know. . . ."

Anna smiled and placed each package tenderly into a box.

And the packages passed each other in the mails. By chance they had the same kind of tags:

"Merry Christmas and love from Ruth and Aunt Martha."

"Merry Christmas and love from Anna and Aunt Caroline."

But the grown-ups' Santa made very different notations. For Christmas is a memorial to a Prince whose greatest commandment was "Love one another" and who said "Judge not" and "revile not."

What will our Christmas gift record be? For who can prove that the old, old lady was not right?

Chance For Every Reader To Take Part In Tax Reduction Movement

The Klemme Times is giving much attention to the tax problem because the situation is extremely acute. When it takes forty 200 lb. hogs or nearly 1,000 bushels of corn to pay the taxes on a Hancock Co. farm of 160 acres it is time for some body to get busy.

The last legislature created a committee to work for reduction of public expenses and reformation of tax methods. The governor appointed a sub-committee of half a dozen men in each county to formulate suggestions. These committees recently met in Des Moines and discussed the situation at length. Scores of suggestions were made and twenty-one of them have been selected for public consideration and discussion. The legislative committee is anxious to ascertain the feeling of the tax payers toward its suggestions.

In ordr to get an expression from our readers we are printing herewith the list of twenty one suggestions and urge our readers to vote upon these. Simply mark a cross after the word "yes" or "no" as they appear after each suggestions, clip the list out of the paper and mail it to us. You can sign yoru name or not as you prefer. What is wanted is an honest opinion on each proposition. Will you not do this now befor you forget it? Reforms come by popular demand. Tax reform is up to the tax payers. It is up to you. Give us your help. Mail your vote to the Klemme Times and we will forward it to the state committee. Your name if signed will not be printed.

COUNTY ENGINEER AGAIN GIVES REPORT

ALL ENGINEERS MUST PASS STATE EXAMINATIONS

Much Work Required In Planning and Building Roadway

In his article I shall give a few facts in regard to the engineering which is a necessary part of road work. Section 24 of the Bergman Secondary Road Law enacted by the 43rd General Assembly reads as follows: 'All construction and maintenance work shall be performed under the direct and immediate supervision of the County Engineer who shall be held responsible for the efficient, economical, and good faithful performance of said work.' This section and many other sections of the law make it necessary for the county to employ an engineer. The law also provides that the County Engineer shall have passed the examinations required by the state for registered engineers just as a doctor or a lawyer must pass certain examinations before he is allowed to practice.

Before any road work is done plans should be prepared just as you would decide in advance as to the type of house you expect to build and the number, size and arrangement of rooms. Grading by casting requires very little in the way of plans but end haul work must be surveyed and drawings must be mado to show the grade line which it is proposed to use and where dirt is to be secured and placed to mako the finished roadway The location and size of the necesary bridges and culverts are an important part of the road plan. In making the surveys for a construction job many operations are necessary such as finding the corners, staking the line, taking the cross sections and staking fence and pole lines. Often changes in plans are desired by property onwers which make additional surveys necessary. As the farmer goes thru the various operations of plowing, disking and harrowing on the same ground to prepare it for planting, so the engineer must go over the same ground several times bfore the contractor can start moving dirt.

While the contractor is doing his work the engineer must see that he follows the plans and specifications and when the work is completed additional surveys must be made to secure data from which the number of cubic yards of dirt excavated is computed. Careful planning and well supervised construction are very important in building concrete bridges as the failure of one of these structures migh cause more damage than the amount of the engineer's salary for the entire year. The bridge failure record for this county is very good as we must go back in the history of the county more than twenty years to find the example of a concrete bridge which fell into the river soon after it was constructed.

As to the cost of engineering work a comparison can be made between the cost of county engineering in this county and in other counties of the state. The figures given below are taken from the 1930 report of the State Highway Commission and are for the year of 1930:

Engineering cost in Hancock Co. $7562.05

Average engineering cost in 99 counties $8590.82

A more accurate comparison can be made by taking the percentag of the total construction and maintenance expenditure which is requred for engineering in the various counties which is as follows:

In Hancock county 3.44%

Average of 99 counties 3.84%

The Highway Commission report does not agree with the State Checker's report as published by the County Auditor because the checker's report for Hancock county in 1930 includd the engineering expense for 13 months. The engineerig expense of this county was re-

My attention has been called to the fact that we are lacking so many sreet crossings (which prove to be an absolute necessity in such mud as we can now boast of). H. C. MEYER CANDIDATE FOR RE-ELECTION

Henry C. Meyer. Britt, who is at present serving as County Attorney is this week announcing that he will be a cadidate for another term in that office.

Mr. Meyr needs no introduction to the voters in the county, as he is well known having served as supervisor, auditor and county attorney. The fact that he has served in these several offices shows that the voters have evidently been well pleased with his services and even should he be opposed in the present campaign which is unlickely, he will cut a wide swath.

IT STANDS THE TEST

The stock market inflation of 1928 and 1929 taught the investing public the wisdom of conservative and careful investing.

Today—the wise investor is seeking an investment that will assure the safety of the principal and pay a reasonable return—not speculative profits.

Past experience has proven that the public utility industry offers such a field for investment. The record of companies furnishing gas and electric service is not equalled by any other industry. This is due to the fact that they furnish a service that is a daily necessity in practically every home, office, store or factory. They have the reputation of being "depression proof" because of their ability to meet their dividend and interest requirements under the most unfavorable financial conditions.

The Central States Electric Company has a record equal to that of the utility industry as a whole. Those who have invested in its securities have received interest or dividends regularly—not promises of increased values or large returns which disappeared in a few days or weeks.

Before you invest—investigate the Central States Electric Company. It will give you what you want—safety and a reasonable return on your money.

LIBERTY 4-H CLUB GIRLS MET SATURDAY AFTERNOON

The Liberty 4-H club girls held their monthly meeting at the home of Betty Velau Saturday afternoon December 26. About ten of the members were present.

New officers voted in were: Mrs. Ben Reimer, leader; Lucille Kropp, president; Mildred Schoenwetter, vice president; Lillian Brown. Secretary and treasurer; Dorothy Haber kamp, newspaper reporter;.

Lessons for the coming year were discussed after which a delicious lunch was served by the hostess.

GIVE THE BROOD SOW SOME PROTEIN

The big pig at birth is usually the big pig at weaning time. In fact, according to data recently gathered at the Iowa Experiment Staion .a one pound advanage at birth usually amounts to seven or eight by weaning time.

Such being th case, swin producers should consider carefully those factors influencing size and strength of pigs at farrowing.

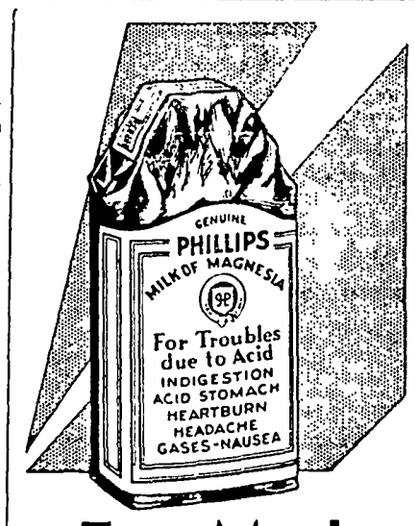
That the ration fed the sow during pregnancy is an important factor influencing the pig at birth, has been quite definitely established thru experimental data. At the Iowa Saión gilts fed ear corn only, produced pigs weighing 1.7 lbs. each at birth, those gilts getting a good protein supplement along with corn farrowed pigs weighing 2½ lbs each at birth.

With hogs at such a low figure and with corn at an equally low price, there may be a tendency this coming winter to fail to provide adequate protein supplementary feeds to enable the brood sow to produce a litter of good sized strong pigs.

Protein feeds such as soybeans. soybean oilmeal, and tankage, as well as some of the commercial mixed feeds are so low in price that one had better exchange some of the corn for protein feeds in order to balance the ration for the brood sow. One-third of a pound of tankage per day. or ½ of a pound of a mixture made up of two parts tankage, one part soybean oilmeal and one part alfalfa meal will balance a corn and oats ration for sows Coybean oilmeal has been substituted for linseed oilmeal on account of price. With old sows, the above protein supplement might be limited to the latter part of the pregnancy period.

One of the good hog producers in a section of the state where alfalfa is plentiful, self feeds his brood sows ground barley and alalfa mixed equal part by measure. adding some tankage or other high protein supplement toward the close of the pregnancy period. Some corn is also fed, the amount depending upon the condition of the sows. In sections where soybeans are cheap ½ to 3-4 pound of whole soybeans per day per sow along with some good alfalfa or clover hay will care for the prtein requirement very satisfactorily. Skimmilk to the extent of a gallon to a gallon and a half per day per sow will care for the protein requirements.

A simple mineral mixture made of 10lbs. limestone, 10 lbs. steamed bone meal and 1 lb common salt or 20lb. salt, 39 lb. limestone. 39 lbs. bone meal special steamed, 2lb. Iron Oxide and ½ oz. Potassium Iodide should be self fed, or mixed in with the protein supplement on the basis of 4 or 5 pounds to 100lbs. of the supplement.



Too Much ACID

MANY people, two hours after eating, suffer indigestion as they call it. It is usually excess acid. Correct it with an alkali. The best way, the quick, harmless and efficient way, is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained for 50 years the standard with physicians. One spoonful in water neutralizes many times its volume in stomach acids, and at once. The symptoms disappear in five minutes.

You will never use crude methods when you know this better method. And you will never suffer from excess acid when you prove out this easy relief.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids 25c and 50c a bottle—any drug store

The ideal dentifrice for clean teeth and healthy gums is Phillips' Dental Magnesia tooth-paste.

However we should not reduce the engineering work to such an xtent that the efficiency of our road work will be impaired.
